Describe the present and original (if known) physical appearance

The Dawson Woman's Clubhouse, built in 1913, is a rustic, one-story gable-roofed log cabin with a recessed front corner porch and a board and batten rear ell. It is located on a small city lot in an historic residential area of Dawson, Terrell County, Georgia.

The log cabin is constructed of round, saddle-notched, unchinked logs that rest on a primitive pier foundation composed of stacked fieldstones. Gable ends are finished with rough-cut weatherboards. The house is square in plan with a square recessed porch in the southwest corner of the front facade. Porch posts are fashioned from rough tree trunks. Two porch entrances have rustic double doors made of diagonal tongue and groove boards. Windows vary in size and shape, but those on the front facade are twenty-five-over-one double hung sash. All have simple wood surrounds. A rustic exterior chimney of local fieldstone is located on the east side. The gable-roofed rear ell, added in 1928, has board and batten siding.

The interior consists of one large L-shaped room, with a dining area in one leg of the ell and an assembly area in the other. The rear addition, which leads off the dining area, contains a kitchen and restroom. The walls and ceiling are finished with pine boards laid in board and batten fashion; floors are of pine. The fireplace, located in the assembly area, has a simple wood mantel. The building contains its original wiring and plumbing systems, although they are in need of repair and maintenance. Gas was added in the 1960's.

The Clubhouse is located on a small city lot between two houses in an historic residential neighborhood dating from the early years of this century. The level lot is modestly landscaped with trees, shrubs and flowers. The property has no out-buildings.

The Historic Preservation Section has determined that the photographs taken in February, 1981 still represent the character and appearance of the property. No significant changes have been made since that date.

Statement of Significance (in one paragraph)

The Dawson Woman's Clubhouse, built in 1913, is historically significant in the areas of architecture, elucation, landscape architecture and social/humanitarian history. These areas of significance support property eligibility under National Register criteria A and C.

Architecturally, the clubhouse is significant as a good example of a log cabin-type structure built in the early twentieth century for public use. Many similar buildings are associated with parks, recreation and public service facilities of this period. Such structures reflect an early twentieth century design interest in rustic and vernacular architecture. The women's selection of the log cabin form for their clubhouse and the use of rather crude, locally available materials in its construction suggests the new awareness of and interest in conservation prevalent in the early 20th century. It is the only women's clubhouse in the county.

In terms of education, the clubhouse is historically significant as the setting for a variety of "continuing education"- type programs for adults and children sponsored by the Dawson Woman's Club. Classes were offered in arts and crafts and various areas related to home economics and the domestic arts.

In terms of landscape architecture, the clubhouse is historically significant for its informally landscaped grounds, which reflect early twentieth century landscaping principles and practices. The modest grounds, with trees, bushes and flowers scattered throughout the grassy lot, are typically casual and low key. More importantly, the Dawson Woman's Club and its successor, the Dawson Woman's Garden Club, were involved with various landscaping projects around Dawson. These include landscaping Cedar Hill Cemetery, establishing gardens at the Georgia Power Company and at the library, landscaping the grounds around the Terrell County Hospital and planting trees throughout the city.

In terms of social/humanitarian history the clubhouse is significant as the headquarters of a local women's club, an important women's institution of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Women's clubs in Georgia caught on rapidly after the formation of the first women's club in the state in Atlanta in 1895 and the formation of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs a year later. The Dawson Club, founded in 1905 as the Wednesday Afternoon Club, became a member of the Georgia Federation in 1907. By then there were already over fifty member groups. Their purpose was primarily public service; through federation they hoped "to become a unit of power in all necessary reforms and high humanitarian work" in the state. The Dawson Women's Club, as the group became known in 1912, was no exception. From the beginning it was active in community improvement, building a children's playground, founding a Library Association and helping to introduce a home economics department in the local school, among other projects. Since 1950, when the inactive club was reorganized as the Dawson Woman's Garden Club, community improvement has continued to be a goal, although limited to the area of city beautification. The clubhouse has been lent out on many occasions to other local groups such as the PTA, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Kiwanis Club. increasing its use as a center for groups with a social/humanitarian focus.

Subject: The Dawson's Womens Clubhouse, Terrell County

Dear Dr. Lyon:

In reference to your Notice of February 8, 1982, we have reviewed the information on the subject nomination to the National Register of Historic Places.

We find no approved transportation plan or proposed project which would have an affect on the site. However, it is requested that, wherever possible, highway rights-of-way not be included in the nomination. If this is not possible, please contact Peter Malphurs or Toni Gardner of my staff to resolve this issue.

Yours very truly,

RE: Dawson Woman's Clubhouse; Dawson, Terrell County

Dear Mr. Sawyer:

The Historic Preservation Division's National Register staff has reviewed the information that was provided to our office regarding the October 2017 relocation of the above-mentioned property from 311 6th Avenue to 293 Stonewall Street within the National Register of Historic Places-listed Dawson Historic District. We again thank you for your patience and persistence regarding this request.

The Dawson Woman's Clubhouse was identified as a contributing resource to the Dawson Historic District when that district was listed in 1997. Additionally, the clubhouse was previously individually listed in the National Register in 1982. The individual nomination for the clubhouse documents it as the only woman's club in Terrell County. The Dawson Historic District nomination notes the building as architecturally distinctive for its rustic style, and use of locally available raw materials.

As you are aware, moved buildings can be problematic as far as National Register eligibility is concerned. The National Register criteria limit the consideration of moved buildings because significance is embodied in locations and grounds as well as in buildings themselves. Their setting, integrity, and appearance, must be taken into account, as well as the effect of the move on the distinctive historical and visual character of not only the relocated properties, but the district as a whole.

According to the information provided, the clubhouse was moved approximately 1.5 blocks northwest. Only the building's front stair was not relocated. The building historically faced south, and was located in the middle of a block, while the building now faces east and is located on a corner. The building was moved onto a lot formerly occupied by a residence that was also identified as a contributing resource to the Dawson Historic District when that district was listed in 1997. The residence was torn down in order to relocate the woman's club building onto a more visible location that afforded more convenient parking.

Per federal regulation 36 CFR 60, individually listed resources that are relocated without prior approval from the National Park Service are automatically delisted from the National Register. Per applicable federal regulations, our office will submit a notice to the National Park Service for delisting of the Dawson Woman's Clubhouse from the National Register as an individual resource. This letter shall serve as notification to you, the property owner, of this pending delisting process. We will also be notifying your local elected officials, as required by federal regulation.

As the resource is also within a listed historic district, we have analyzed the opportunity for the clubhouse to be determined a contributing resource to the Dawson Historic District in its new location. National Register staff has reviewed the information provided and determined that the clubhouse in its new location can be determined a contributing building to the Dawson Historic District. We have based our determination on several factors.

First, while it is extremely unfortunate that a contributing residence was demolished in order to facilitate this relocation, as the loss of this residence is detrimental to the district's historic character and integrity, this residential resource does not appear to have been of equivalent historic or architectural significance as the Woman's Clubhouse. The historic district nomination notes the district's architectural significance as paramount, stating: "Such an excellent, intact, and large collection of architecture is unparalleled in South Georgia." The clubhouse retained its architectural integrity during its relocation, and continues to contribute to the district's architectural significance in its new location.

Additionally, the clubhouse was moved a short distance within the same general area of the district in which it was historically located, retains a comparable relationship to the street as it did historically, and remains able to convey its documented significance as a community landmark building within the Dawson Historic District in its new location.

We will update our file on the Dawson Historic District to reflect the Dawson Woman's Clubhouse relocation and the resource's contributing status at its new location, and we will provide you with a copy of the NPS' delisting of the resource's individual nomination from the National Register of Historic Places when such is received.

Please contact me at 770-389-7843 or stephanie.cherry-farmer@dnr.ga.gov if you have further questions. Thank you for your interest in historic preservation in Georgia!

Sincerely,

Stephanie L. Cherry-Farmer

Dear Ms. Abernathy:

We are requesting removal from the National Register of Historic Places of the above-referenced historic district in Terrell County, Georgia. The property was individually listed in the National Register of Historic Places in 1982, but no longer retains historic integrity. Please see the enclosed letter referencing the removal of the clubhouse from its historic location without prior approval from the National Park Service. The property owner and local officials have been notified and did not comment.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.
