Narrative Description (Describe the historic and current condition of the property on one or more continuation sheets.)

The Hasselborg Lake South Shelter Cabin was built in the Adirondack style as a three-sided shelter. It has a peeled log superstructure and shake walls and roof.

The structure is well-maintained, and its current appearance is similar to its original appearance. The sill logs have been replaced with ones similar to the original. This was apparently not done, however, until the lowermost parts of the vertical posts had rotted considerably. Replacement was done by cutting off the bottom foot or so of rotten post, and shimmying each with a whole round of the approximate same diameter and appropriate length. The wall shakes are thirty inches long and overlap. None of the roof or wall shakes is original. Some of the horizontal nailers for the wall shakes have been replaced with treated two-by-four timbers. The roof peak has a single set of shakes protecting the ends of the rafters above the smoke vent.

The natural context, with a view overlooking Hasselborg Lake, is unchanged from the original.

Narrative Statement of Significance (Explain the significance of the property on one or more continuation sheets.)

The Hasselborg Lake South Shelter Cabin is a three-sided shelter built by Civilian Conservation Corps crews on the Admiralty Island Canoe Route in the mid-1930s. It is also significant as an example of a three-sided Adirondack style shelter cabin built for public recreation.

The natural environment is unchanged from the time when the structure was built. The shelter cabin has been maintained using original types of materials that have maintained its architectural integrity.

Verbal Boundary Description (Describe the boundaries of the property.)

The Hasselborg Lake South Shelter Cabin is adjacent to a lake shore staging area and a trailhead, all in a small circumscribed area of less than one acre in the NW 1/4 of the NW 1/4 of the SW 1/4 of Section 33, Township 48 South, Range 69 East, Copper River Meridian.

Boundary Justification (Explain why the boundaries were selected.)

The Hasselborg Lake South Shelter Cabin includes an obvious localized activity area arising from its function as a temporary stopping place on a recreational canoe route. The boundary encompasses the cabin, staging area, and trailhead historically associated with the site.
