A black and white photograph of a two-story stone building. The facade is made of rough-hewn stone with visible cracks. There are four windows: two on the upper floor and two on the lower floor. The upper windows are arched at the top and have white frames. The lower windows are rectangular with white frames and dark muntins. The central entrance features a small, white-painted portico with a pedimented roof supported by two square columns. The double doors are white with glass panes. Above the portico, a rectangular sign is mounted on the stone wall. The sign contains the text "G. HABERKORN." on the top line and "1870." on the bottom line. A small, dark, ornate object, possibly a door pull or handle, is visible on the lower step of the entrance. The foreground shows a concrete walkway leading to the steps and some dark foliage on the left.

G. HABERKORN.
