A black and white photograph of a wooden door set in a white frame. The door features a large, dark, arched decorative panel at the top, possibly a stained glass window or a dark wood inlay. Below this panel is a horizontal decorative element with a central finial and curved ends. At the bottom of the door is an oval-shaped panel with a double-line border, containing the number 113. A door handle is visible on the left side. The door is set against a background of horizontal siding.
