Brooklandwood, built in the mid-1790's, has, during its long history, been associated with affluent Baltimoreans: Charles Carroll of Carrollton, signer of the Declaration of Independence, George Brown, banker, of Alexander Brown & Sons, and Isaac Emerson, the inventor of Bromo-seltzer. Of the notables who have owned the house, Charles Carroll (1737-1832) holds the most scholarly place in having the most political and historical eminence. He is followed by the later owner, Isaad Emerson, whose invention of Bromo-seltzer holds eminence in the field of international gastronomic eloquence. The highly respected financier, George Brown was a third owner; who, as son of the founder and as the second head of the respected banking firm of Alexander Brown and Sons, guided the firm that has been, and is still, responsible for the affluence of many wealthy Baltimoreans.

Carroll is remembered as a signer of the Declaration of Independence, member of the Continental Congress, Maryland's first United States Senator and an ardent Federalist. He dispersed a considerable portion of his fortune in supporting and providing homes for his children.

Brooklandwood is but one example of the houses he provided for his offspring. By 1790 Carroll had purchased over 400 acres in Baltimore County for a country home for his daughter Mary Carroll Caton (1770-1846), wife of Richard Caton (1763-1845), in order to replace their "Castle Thunder" estate situated where Richard Caton laid out, in 1810, the town of Catonsville

By 1793 the Catons had moved to Brooklandwood, their Country house. Carroll, who in his later life made his residence with the Catons at their townhouse at Lombard and Fronto Streets, Baltimore, the Carroll Mansion, also spent time with the family at Brooklandwood.

NATION Mary Caton, the wife of Richard Caton, and the daughter NATION for Charles Carroll, was the mother of three daughters reknowned as beautiful women in their era and social world; these Ministry daughters married titled persons and became, respectively: (see Continuation Sheet)

Marchioness of Wellesley, Baroness of Strafford, and Duchees of Leeds. One of Mrs. Caton's visits to her daughters was recorded in an 1830 letter from Queen Adelaide, consort of King William of England, the Marchioness of Wellesley.

Through the death of Charles Carroll (1832), Mary Caton inherited Brooklandwood from her father, and sold it fourteen years later (1846) to George Brown (1787-1859) of Alexander Brown & Sons, a banking house "...founded in 1800, and the oldest private banking house not only in the United States but the whole of North America,... " The Story of Alexander Brown and Sons, 18. This should not be confused with corporate banks, e.g. the Bank of New York (1792). Brown's father, Alexander Brown (1764-1834), founded the banking firm which George Brown administered after his In addition to banking, George Brown was father's death. instrumental in the creation (1827) of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad (financed by Alexander Brown & Sons); became the B & O's first treasurer; involved himself in significant early nineteenth century Baltimore philanthropic projects such as the House of Refuge and the Peabody Institute. Brooklandwood remained in the hands of the Brown family until 1916 when Isaac Edward Emerson purchased the estate.

Emerson, born in Chapel Hill, North Carolina, was educated as a chemist at the University of North Carolina and made a fortune by inventing Bromo-seltzer and marketing it through the Emerson Drug Company. The Bromo-seltzer Tower in Baltimore City is dedicated to Isaac Emerson.
