ARCHITECTURE

STATEMENT

This house is a good example of a distinctive Davenport dwelling form, here executed in wood with detailing similar to that of 3-W1946 in the city's west end. Principal features include form and facade arrangement, and simply-molded window surrounds. A sunburst design in the small porch pediment is the only decorative element in a simple, straightforward design.

HISTORY

DESCRIPTION

This house was built in c. 1872 by William McKinny. The McKinny family continued to reside here until after 1900. The house is located in a neighborhood composed largely of Irish immigrants and their descendents.
