Describe the present and original (if known) physical appearance

The Hotel Normandie was built in the early 1940's by Mr. Félix Benítez Rexach. It is an excellent example of "Art Nouveau" (or art deco style) that is worth preserving. The Normandie was one of the few plush hotels of its time and many social events took place in its hall and for sentimental reasons this building is full of meanings for several Puerto Rican generations.

This art deco architecture refers to a specific type of buildings style that was developed between the years 1920 thru 1940. This term "art deco" came out of the 1925 Parisian design fair called "Exposition Des Arts Decoratifs Et Industriels Modernes", but it was in America that it was really used and developed very broadly.

In the art deco architecture, the effects were deliberately horizontal or vertical with frequent massing of connecting or overlapping projections. Arrangements could be axial and pyramidal, or calculated asymmetrical. Smoothness was sought and suavity was suggested.

The Hotel is triangular in shape with rounded vertices and a total of seven floors plus a cellar. The first floor has an interior patio with a swimming pool. The other floors have a corresponding open interior with corridors overlooking the swimming pool. The building have been closed for the past 6-8 years and it has been greatly affected by its physical deterioration and a large degree of functional obsolescence as a hotel.

The existing building area is divided as follows:

- A) Cellar area used for storage room, electric power panels, emergency power plant, water, pressure pumps, etc...
- B) First floor having various commercial area and hotel rooms as well as the main entrance lobby, back entrance lobby and interior patio with a swimming pool.
- C) Second thru fifth floor consists of hotel rooms with large waiting parlors, elevators and stairs at the northern and southern vertices.
- D) Sixth floor consists of a dance hall which used to be known as the "Gold Room" a banquet room known as the "Silver Room", a dining room with kitchen area and a large room used for a casino. There are also separate sanitary facilities for ladies and men, and ample interior corridors.
- E) The seventh floor had various large hotel rooms, a kitchen area and a small dining room.

As mentioned previously, its physical deterioration is so great that none of the elevators are able to work and most (or all) of the electrical, telephone and plumbing infrastructure are not functioning and have to be replaced. The building is very sound structurally and it will need extensive plastering, painting millwork and windows.

Statement of Significance (in one paragraph)

The Normandie Hotel was planned and built in the early 1940's to resemble one of the most famous steamships of that era. It is a "perfect" example of the art deco style that was developed in those years and it is a vivid example of an epoch of flamboyance and luxury. The distinguished engineer Félix Benítez Rexach, builder of ports and a man of great imagination and culture, left in this building a symbol full of meaningful association for several generations of Puerto Ricans. Many social events of significance took place in its luxurious rooms, when affluence meant social interior halls and the fine craftsmanship is a unique example of a disappearing art which merits preservation.

The placement of the structure adds to its significance, in that the Normandie forms a mayor visual focal point for all traffic entering Old San Juan.
