addition. A modern brick ell is at the rear but it is not visible from the front. Some alterations have been made to the door on the main facade. A 1912 photograph indicates the sidelights were a part of the original entry and the pediment above the door was added after 1912. Although the photograph would not copy well enough for inclusion herein, it provided evidence that an Eastlake-style porch, probably dating from the 1880s, was on the front facade in 1912. This porch was probably removed when the brackets, overhanging eaves, and gabled dormers were added in the twentieth century.
