Historic Resources of Lee's Summit, Missouri

Summary

The Southwest Market Street Historic District (Photos 1-15; Figs. 1-3) consists of a compact two-acre area located along the southwest side of Southwest Market Street, in the city of Lee's Summit, Jackson County, Missouri. The district is associated with the "Historic Resources of Lee's Summit, Missouri" Multiple Property Documentation Form (NR 2005; hereafter referred to as "the MPDF" and incorporated by reference into this document)<sup>1</sup> and meets the MPDF's registration requirements as described under the category "Single-Family Residential Property Types, c. 1965-1960." The nominated area contains a total of 14 buildings, all of which are either residential in character or are outbuildings associated with specific residential properties. The district is topographically flat and consists of an unbroken row of eight houses of frame construction, built on elongated lots running westward from Southwest Market Street to an unnamed alley between Southwest Market Street and Jefferson Street. Southwest Fifth Street marks the district's southern boundary and one property, 314 Southwest Market Street, is across Fourth Street from the balance of the district. The district is located west of downtown Lee's Summit (Lee's Summit Downtown Historic District, NR 2006). All but 3 buildings (newer outbuildings) are contributing to the character of the district and the district as a whole retains integrity in all of its composite qualities of location, design, setting, feeling, association, materials, and workmanship.

Elaboration

The Southwest Market Street Historic District contains a concentration of eight residential properties and their associated outbuildings. The lots along Southwest Market Street are long and narrow, typically 50' x 150' in dimension (Photo 11). The double house at 408-410 Southwest Market Street (Photos 3, 4) occupies three lots and 418 (Photos 1, 2) Southwest Market Street occupies two lots; the other houses are on single lots. The rear lots of 314, 400, and 418 Southwest Market Street have been subdivided off and contain newer houses which are not included in the district. All of the buildings in the district are of wood frame construction and are built on foundations of coursed rubble and cut stone; one addition, that on 418 Southwest Market Street, rests on a foundation of ceramic tile. The district's resources stand side-by-side on the southwest side of Southwest Market Street, in a residential area west of downtown Lee's Summit. The buildings exhibit both gabled and hipped roof forms, universally clad in asphalt shingles. Window forms in the district are all rectangular, principally employing double-hung 1/1 sash. The house at 418 Southwest Market Street exhibits several single-hung windows with decorative geometric tracery, along with some art glass upper sash, the only instance of such embellishment in the district (Photo 2).

The buildings in this district have a generally uniform front-lot setback along Southwest Market Street (Photo 1). Side yards are modest in their proportion, but the 150-foot depth of the five lots that have not been subdivided assures that the houses have generous back yards (Photo 11), likely accommodating gardens during the early decades of the development of the neighborhood. Landscaping includes some mature deciduous trees, both in yards and in the tree lawn between the curb and the sidewalk. The landscaping of individual lots varies considerably from mowed lawns to more ambitious landscaping including ornamental trees, shrubbery, and plantings.

Resource Inventory

The following properties are found within the Southwest Market Street Historic District. Their relative locations and addresses, along with the district boundaries, are shown on the district map prepared with this nomination.<sup>3</sup>

314 Southwest Market Street; c. 1880; contributing

This is a 1-story side-gable-roofed vernacular wood frame gabled ell built on a random ashlar foundation and finished in asbestos shingles, with a forward-projecting front-gable wing on the north side of the façade, creating an L-shaped footprint. The main entry to the house is through the side of this projecting wing, and incorporates a single-leaf door. In the angle of the ell on the facade is a 1-bay concrete and brick stoop shielded by a flat-roofed porch which is supported by plain wood posts resting on brick piers. Windows are flat-topped, 1/1 and 3/1, some with non-historic exterior fixed shutters. On the Fourth Street (south) elevation is a 1-bay porch with Eastlake-style turned posts and a balustrade with square wood balusters. The side porch supports likely date from the original construction but the front porch supports and 3/1 windows appear to be a c. 1920 modification as is a basement-level garage that has been added onto the west elevation.

In the 1880s, Lee's Summit's postmaster, P. H. Bowler, lived here and between 1905 and 1935, Joseph Carter made his home here.

400 Southwest Market Street; c. 1903; contributing (Photos 8, 9)

This house is repetitive to 402 Southwest Market Street, located immediately adjacent to the south. It is a substantial 2½-story American Foursquare of wood construction, finished in the original weatherboard and built on a poured concrete foundation. An exterior red brick chimney is on the south elevation. The building exhibits a hip-roofed porch above which is a hipped dormer on the façade. The dormer has a three-part window unit with a 6-light center sash flanked by 4-light sash. The main entry is offset on the north side of the 3-bay façade, with a single-leaf wood door with a glazed upper panel; the second story is two bays in width. The corners of the house are finished in prominent corner boards and a horizontal trim board with a molded cap extends around the house below the second-story windows. On the north elevation is a mid-story hip-roofed oriel with three vertical windows which likely open onto a stair landing. Beneath the oriel is a single-leaf solid paneled door leading to the basement. The façade exhibits an open hip-roofed porch supported by Doric columns that rest on red brick piers; the porch is enclosed within a wood balustrade with square wood balusters and the original porch skirting, consisting of vertical slats, has been retained. Windows are flat-topped, 1/1, with modest molded heads and exterior storm sash. What appears to be an early 1-story compatible addition has been built onto the rear (west) elevation.

<sup>2</sup> Error! Main Document Only. The term "vernacular" as it is used here conforms to the definition in Ward Bucher's Dictionary of Building Preservation: "a building built without being designed by an architect or someone with similar formal training; often based on traditional or regional forms." This term is not to be interpreted as a pejorative, since so many more buildings built nearly everywhere reflect local building traditions and the skill of local builders rather than the work of formally-trained architects.

This is a second-generation house along this street, having been erected by Dr. Samuel Ellis on the site of another home he acquired from William and Mary Dryden. In 1905, Harold E. Lamkin of Lamkin & Sons was residing with Dr. Ellis. Ellis (1835-1933) was an 1866 graduate of the Medical College of Ohio at Cincinnati and purportedly constructed both of the buildings at 400 and 402 SW Southwest Market Street. Eventually, he moved to 402 Southwest Market Street and gave 400 Southwest Market Street, his former residence, to his daughter.

This house is repetitive to 400 Southwest Market Street, located immediately adjacent to the north. It is a substantial 2½-story American Foursquare of wood construction, finished in the original weatherboard and built on a poured concrete foundation. The building exhibits a hip-roofed porch above which is a hipped dormer on the façade. The dormer has a three-part window unit with a 6-light center sash flanked by 4-light sash. The main entry is offset on the north side of the 3-bay façade, with a single-leaf wood door with a glazed upper panel; the second story is two bays in width. The corners of the house are finished in prominent corner boards and a horizontal trim board with a molded cap extends around the house below the second-story windows. On the north elevation is a mid-story hip-roofed oriel with three vertical windows which likely open onto a stair landing. Beneath the oriel is a single-leaf solid paneled door leading to the basement. The façade exhibits an open hip-roofed porch supported by Doric columns that rest on red brick piers; the porch is enclosed within a wood balustrade with square wood balusters and the original porch skirting, consisting of vertical slats, has been retained. Windows are flat-topped, some with the original 1/1 sash and some with replacement 6/6 sash lacking true divided lights. Windows are finished with modest molded heads and some have exterior storm sash. A modern open deck of treated wood is on the rear.

Outbuilding; c. 1980; non-contributing

Single-story front-gable outbuilding at the rear of the house, built of wood construction and finished in T-111 siding. It appears to have been built in two stages and is accessed from the alley behind the house.

This was the home of Dr. Samuel Ellis after he gave the adjacent house at 400 Southwest Market Street to his daughter.

This is a single-story Folk Victorian wood frame L-shaped house with an intersecting gable roof and an L-shaped façade. A wrap-around Eastlake-style hip-roofed veranda extends across the façade and a portion of the north elevation. The veranda incorporates turned wood posts, sawn fan brackets, and a turned upper and lower balustrade. The main entry on the façade is set back on the north side, with a single-leaf entry door. Windows are flat-topped, 1/1, set singly and in pairs, with flat casings and modest molded heads.

Outbuilding; c. 1980; non-contributing

One-story pyramidal-roofed garage of smooth-dressed concrete block, with two paneled metal overhead garage doors. The garage is accessed from an unnamed alley behind the house

This was the home of William B. Hook, a dealer in grain.

This 1½-story wood frame house appears to have been built as a double house, with one entrance on the Southwest Market Street (east) elevation and the second on the north elevation, providing a degree of privacy to both occupants. It is irregularly massed, with a multiple hipped and gable roof system. Its massing and roof system give it a varied profile which included offset gables and wall dormers. Among its most distinctive features are its elaborate hip-roofed Eastlake-style porches, one shielding each entry. The porches retain their original lacy spindlework, including a profusion of sawn and turned trim. A window on the north side of the façade is shielded by a concave hood beneath which is a band of turned balusters. Windows are flat-topped, set singly and in pairs, retaining their original 1/1 wood sash.

Outbuilding; c. 1880; contributing (Photo 10)

At the rear of the lot, accessed from an unnamed alley, is an interconnected outbuilding consisting of at least three gable-roofed sections, one of which is larger than the others. The first appendage is built onto the north gable end of the larger unit and the second is built at right angles to the first, oriented to the east. They are variously finished in vertical board siding and shiplap siding.

This was the home of Samuel Breitenbaugh and later of his daughter, Dolly. Breitenbaugh sold his store in Virginia and became Lee's Summit's first retired citizen in 1868. In 1905, residing at this address were Dolly Breitenbaugh, Fred Dryden, of Samuel Dryden & Sons Grocers, and Thaddeus O. Davis.

This is a 1½-story gabled ell vernacular residence of wood construction, finished in asbestos shingles and capped with an intersecting gabled roof system. The L-shaped facade incorporates a shed-roofed open porch in the angle of the ell on the northeast corner of the house, supported by wood posts that are trimmed stylized curvilinear brackets. The main entry is beneath this porch, with a single-leaf 10-light wood door. Windows are flat-topped, 2/2 and 4/1, with flat panel surrounds and modest molded heads; some are shielded by metal awnings. In the pediment of the gable on the facade is a 4-light fixed window and on the north elevation the pediment incorporates a blind semi-circular lunette.

This is a single-story shed-roofed garage with paired paneled metal overhead garage doors which open onto an unnamed alley behind the house

This house and the adjacent house at 416 Southwest Market Street were built on the site of the home of livery operator and feed dealer John Ragan.

This is a single-story side-gable-roofed vernacular cottage of wood construction, built on a foundation of coursed rubble and finished in asbestos shingle siding. The 3-bay symmetrical façade has a centered entry with a single-leaf 8-light wood door. The entrance is accessed from a 1-bay concrete stoop shielded by an engaged pedimented portico which extends forward from the main roof and is supported by attenuated Doric columns. The portico has partial returns of the cornice and incorporates a 2-light semi-circular lunette in the pediment. Partial returns of the cornice are also present on the north and south elevations. Windows are flat-topped, with flat board surrounds and modest molded heads.

Outbuilding; c. 1950; contributing

North of the house, at the end of a short paved parking pad, is a side-gable-roofed garage of wood frame construction with paired overhead garage doors.

This house and the adjacent house at 414 S. W. Southwest Market Street were built on the site of the home of livery operator and feed dealer John Ragan.

This is a 1½-story Queen Anne-style house of wood construction clad in asbestos shingle siding with T-shaped façade with a wrap-around hip-roofed veranda on the façade (east elevation) and on portions of both the north and south elevations. The veranda exhibits Doric columns and lacks a balustrade. A gable dormer penetrates the slope of the roof on the north side of the façade. On the north and south elevations are matching hip-roofed oriel windows and at least one addition has been erected onto the rear elevation. This gable-roofed addition is distinct from the rest of the house due to its ceramic tile block foundation and lower roofline. Windows are flat-topped, with modest surrounds and molded heads; some windows under the veranda have thin geometric wood tracery and both rectilinear and curvilinear art glass.

Outbuilding; c. 1900; contributing

A gable-front wood frame outbuilding with access doors with strap hinges is adjacent to the house to the north. The outbuilding is finished in vertical wood boards.

This was the home of Nathaniel C. and Susan E. Scoville. Nathaniel Scoville (1837-1898) was a Pitcairn, New York native who graduated from Harvard in 1864 and received his LL. B. from Harvard Law School in 1868. He initially set up practice in Kansas City and moved to Lee's Summit in 1875, practicing law here and operating an orchard until his death.

The Southwest Market Street retains integrity in all of its composite qualities of location, design, setting, feeling, association, materials, and workmanship. Alterations to individual properties have been minimal and include some use of non-historic finishes, although the original finishes are assumed to remain beneath. Likewise, some window replacement has occurred but replacement units appear to be scaled to the original.

Summary

The Southwest Market Street Historic District meets National Register Criterion C for architecture in that it consists of an unbroken row of domestic architecture representing elements of many of the architectural designs which were popular during the district's c. 1870-c. 1950 period of significance. The beginning of the period of significance marks the approximate date of construction of the earliest of the resources in the district, 408-410 Southwest Market Street, and ends c. 1950. The closing date corresponds to the approximate date of construction of the contributing outbuilding associated with the house at 416 Southwest Market Street. As noted above, the district consists of eight houses and their associated outbuildings and retains integrity in all of its composite qualities.

The Southwest Market Street Historic District is associated with two of the historic contexts described in the aforementioned National Register Multiple Property Documentation Form, "Historic Resources of Lee's Summit, Missouri", which, as noted above, is incorporated by reference into this nomination. The historic contexts associated with this district are Residential Development: 1860-1960 and Architectural Styles and Vernacular Property Types: 1860-1960. The associated property type described in the MPDF and found within the Southwest Market Street Historic District is Single-Family Residential Property Types, circa 1865-1960.

Elaboration

The historical development of Lee's Summit and the economic and cultural forces which accounted for the community's growth and maturity are described in the MPDF. As noted in the Resource Inventory included in Section 7, this district was home to an early postmaster, along with merchants and professionals including a local physician and an attorney.

Applicable National Register Criterion and Property Types

With respect to this district, National Register Criterion C, for architecture is applicable. The Southwest Market Street Historic District contains a row of domestic architecture representing some of the styles and property subtypes set forth in the MPDF. These include the "National Folk Houses 1950-1890" and include modest vernacular designs such as the gable-front and gabled ell. Within this district the gabled ell at 314 Southwest Market Street represents this property type and house form.

A second property sub-type found in this district falls into the MPDF typology of "Victorian Period: 1860-1900." Regarding this category the MPDF records

During the Victorian Period, increasingly accessible builder's pattern books spread the latest trends in house designs and styles to the growing communities throughout the country. The expansion of the railroad system after the Civil War made building materials, including milled lumber and mass-produced nails, accessible to anyone living in relative proximity to a rail line. Milled lumber included decorative turned and cut pieces that conveyed ornate Victorian motifs.<sup>4</sup>

This property subtype is represented by the adjacent properties at 404 and 408-410 Southwest Market Street Photos 3-6), each of which is an otherwise modest vernacular dwelling, built without reference to any particular style but in both cases ornamented with lacy Eastlake-style verandas incorporating the turned and cut pieces referred to in the MPDF.

The Queen Anne style is typically thought of as embracing large-scale domestic design with varied surface treatments, an irregularity of form, and a lively profile. However, Virginia and Lee McAlester, in their Field Guide to American Houses,<sup>5</sup> ascribe this style not only to such grand homes, but also to far less pretentious design, and the MPDF follows their characterization of the style. Within this district, the house at 418 Southwest Market Street (Photo 2) conforms to this definition.

Moving into twentieth-century design preferences, the American Foursquare was perhaps the most ubiquitous house type to appear on the American cultural landscape between the turn of the century and the Great Depression. 402 Southwest Market Street (Photo 7), specifically referenced in the MPDF, as well as its repetitive neighbor at 400 Southwest Market Street (Photo 8), exhibit all of the design characteristics of the American Foursquare.

In addition to representing many of the specific styles of architecture described in the MPDF, the buildings in the Southwest Market Street Historic District also meet the registration requirements set forth in the document. The MPDF states that the Single-Family Residential Property Type may be listed under National Register Criteria A, B and C. In the case of the Southwest Market Street Historic District, the associated Criterion is Criterion C, for the architecture of the district. The MPDF further notes that significance of this property type is for its local significance and its contribution to the history of Lee's Summit. The buildings in the Southwest Market Street Historic District represent sub type A-1, single-family residences that illustrate the initial development of neighborhoods in late nineteenth and early twentieth century Lee's Summit.

Clearly, the Southwest Market Street Historic District and its individual components represent the property types set forth in the MPDF, retain integrity individually and as a unit, meet the registration requirement set forth in the MPDF, and is eligible for the National Register under Criterion C.

Verbal Boundary Description

The boundaries for the Southwest Market Street Historic district consist of that area depicted on the map submitted with the nomination documents, prepared by the City of Lee's Summit GIS Department, at a 1:100 scale.

Boundary Justification

The boundaries for this district include only that contiguous row of properties in this neighborhood which are chronologically linked and retain integrity. As illustrated in Fig. 1, the downtown and modern commercial development lies to the east and the properties which are nearby on the other sides of the nominated area date from a significantly later period and represent distinctively different architectural styles from those in the Southwest Market Street Historic District.

- Bayles Addition Historic District
- Southwest Third and Southwest Madison Streets Historic District

Dear Mr. Miles:

As Chair of the Historic Preservation Commission of the City of Lee's Summit, Missouri, a Certified Local Government, I am pleased to inform you that the Commission has reviewed the National Register nominations for Southwest Market & Southwest Fifth Streets Historic District, Bayles Addition Historic District, and Southwest Third and Southwest Madison Streets Historic District in Lee's Summit, Jackson County, Missouri. It is the opinion of the Historic Preservation Commission that these properties are of historic significance and we recommend these district nominations to the National Register of Historic Places.

The nomination efforts were initiated by the City of Lee's Summit, who enlisted the professional services of Taylor and Taylor Assoc. to perform the necessary tasks to file the National Register nomination. The City of Lee's Summit Department of Planning and Development has received no letters or phone calls in opposition to the proposed nominations as defined.

The above referenced documents were reviewed by the Historic Preservation Commission at their scheduled public meeting on September 24, 2012. The Commission, by a unanimous vote, recommended approval of these three National Register nominations.

Sincerely,

Kathy Smith
