DESCRIPTION

Comprised of house and six outbuildings, the Gailey Hollow Farmstead is located in rural Benton County near the Logan community. The house is T-shaped, one-and-one-half stories with traditional double pen facade and side gables. A wide four-window dormer pierces the roof of the facade, and the side elevations are distinguished by a trio of windows on the lower level and a single window in the gable. Shed-roofed screen porches are attached to both sides of the rear T. The house is sheathed in weatherboard and all windows are two-over-two double-hung. Also included on the property are a smoke house, a garage, a barn, a grain crib, a carriage house and a chicken house.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Criterion: CArea of significance: architecture

The Gailey Hollow Farmstead, although in deteriorated condition, survives intact and is significant as a collection of buildings which exhibit characteristics typical of an early twentieth century farmstead. The number of outbuildings remaining and the integrity and detail--chamfered posts, ornamental screen doors--of the house make it a significant architectural resource unique to the area.
