TATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Aside from the beauty of the structure, St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church is historically significant because it was the third church erected at Harpers Ferry and was the only one not located on government land.

The original tract of land on which the church stands was owned by Harpers Ferry's founder, Robert Harper. In his will, dated September 1782, he gave specific instructions to have a church built on the site he designated. Nothing was done until 1831 when the Wagner family donated the land to the Roman Catholic Church.

It was finished and consecrated by 1833 and has served the Roman Catholic faith from that day to this. A list of the pastors who served St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church from its establishment through the end of the Civil War include the Reverends John B. Gildea, Richard V. Whelan, John O'Brian, Joseph Plunkett, Andrew Talty, and Michael Costello. The Reverend Costello remained at the church to protect it during the Civil War; thus, it was the only church to escape serious destruction or desecration. According to Bushong's Historic Jefferson County, Private Luke Quinn was one of the marines killed during John Brown's raid, and according to a paper done by the Reverend Charles Pfab, the Reverend Costello conducted the funeral of Private Quinn. After the funeral, Quinn was laid to rest in a nearby cemetery. In May 1940, a monument was erected over his grave.
