EXTERIOR DESCRIPTION

This structure is located on the northeast corner of the block at the intersection of 12th and Ash streets. The area consists of late 19th century and early 20th century residences as well as some industrial warehouses and new commercial construction. The building fills 90 percent of its lot which also includes a noncontributing residential structure to the northwest. The minimal surrounding yard is enclosed by a wooden, six foot high fence and is used to store odds and ends.

Rectangular in plan, the approximate dimensions are 60 feet by 40 feet. The two story building rests on a concrete foundation with a full basement and is covered by a hip roof of composition asphalt shingles. Exposed square rafters are below the exaggerated overhanging eaves. A small hip dormer projects from the center portion of each face and has three one-over-one double-hung windows framed by combed cornerboards and narrow lapped siding. Three red brick chimneys rise from the roof, but are not in good condition. There is a small skylight at the top of the eastern face. The entire exterior surface is clad with narrow lapped siding. Combed cornerboards extend the full height of the building. The predominant window type is wide one-over-one double-hung sash found in various sizes. The window trim on the second floor is accented on the bottom by projecting sills.

The front (east) elevation is symmetrical in appearance. On the first floor, there are three storefront glass bays with wood trim. Each bay has a recessed entry and double glass panelled doors. Above each of these three bays is a row of square pane transoms. The bulkheads below the display windows are ornamented with molded panels. One doorway in between the bays has an architrave surround as do the other single doors found on the first floor elevations. The surface of the second story on the front elevation is broken by two polygonal bays United States Department of the Interior National Park Service projecting from the opposite ends. Two more polygonal bays with similar placement are found on the second level of the north elevation. The only other ornamentation present on this structure is the fascia board beneath the eave and a belt course that separates the first floor from the second.

The only apparent minor alteration to this building is the aluminum gutters.

INTERIOR DESCRIPTION

The interior of the building was designed with three ground-level storefronts and apartments on the second floor. The storefronts have been altered to allow one business to use the entire commercial space. Recessed entrances, display windows, transom lights, side-wall window surrounds and lath-and-plaster walls have been retained. Numerous changes have been made to the walls that previously partitioned the three storefronts. Doorways have been cut through, surfacing materials have been added, as well as new partitions constructed.

The upstairs appears to be generally as constructed. Entered from a separate entrance on the facade, the steps to the second floor rise to a small lobby. From the lobby, two narrow halls run parallel and provides access to the individual units. Stairs to the attic also depart from this lobby. Finishwork is simple but intact, although several doors have been removed, and in some cases, replaced.

The Gottsacker Grocery Building is significant at the local level, under Criterion C, as a rare, intact example of an early wood commercial-residential building. A number of buildings of this type once existed throughout the residential areas of Southeast Central Portland, providing convenient local shopping and inexpensive housing for the burgeoning population. Today only a handful remain, almost all of which have had numerous alterations. The subject building is one of the last remaining properties of its type which is relatively intact as built.

The opening of bridges spanning the Willamette River, beginning in 1887, and the subsequent extension of streetcar lines had a tremendous influence on the development of southeast Portland's neighborhoods. Prior to the 1880s the area consisted primarily of a small commercial hub, in the vicinity of Oak and Washington Streets at approximately 3rd, with scattered residential development nearby. The rest of the area was characterized by open farmland and orchards. By the outbreak of World War I, however, almost all of the area's inner neighborhoods had been densely developed. Mixed commercial, industrial and residential uses extended from the river east to approximately 12th Avenue with residential neighborhoods stretching beyond.

Numerous small commercial areas developed to provide goods and services for the growing population. Among those who capitalized on the booming growth was Henry Kuehle. Kuehle, originally a carriage maker by trade, moved into the automotive business shortly after the auto had emerged as an alternative means of transportation. Apparently an astute businessman, he parlayed his considerable financial gains from the carriage/auto works business into a variety of development activities, including construction of the subject building. He purchased the large corner lot at 12th and Ash in 1906 and completed the building in 1909, renting out both the first floor retail space and apartments above. The building remained in the Kuehle family until 1972.

The first occupants of the building were Edward J. and Anna Gottsacker, who established Gottsacker Grocery and Meats in the first floor retail space, and took up residence in a second story apartment, in 1910. Edward Gottsacker, born in Wisconsin in 1877, came to Oregon with Anna sometime prior to 1890. He operated a bakery and candy store for a number of years before moving into the subject building. Gottsacker and his family, which included several sons, operated the grocery in this location for well over thirty years.
