DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Winchester Historic District is approximately forty-five city blocks in size and envelopes both commercial and residential properties. The district follows a gridiron plan, eighty percent of which lies within the city boundaries set following the Wood and Fairfax additions of 1758 and 1759. The district is bordered to the east by the Town Run, the railroad line, the Mt. Hebron Cemetery, and a small industrial tract. The northern boundary follows historic city limits along Fairfax Lane in a westerly direction from Kent to Loudoun streets. At this point the boundary extends north along Loudoun Street to North Avenue then west to Fairmont Street. This latter section, though not part of the city boundaries as established in 1759, contains one 18th- and several 19th-century structures of local and state significance. Notable examples among these are a series of late 19th-century Italianate houses on the west side of the 300 block of N. Braddock, Stonewall Jackson's Headquarters (Gothic Revival, 1854, 415 N. Braddock), "Fairmont" (Georgian, 1812, 1830; 311 Fairmont), AME Church (vernacular Gothic Revival, 1878, 428 N. Loudoun), and 303 and 445 Fairmont (Italianate, ca. 1875-1880).

The western boundary follows Fairmont and Washington streets, two tree-lined, upper middle-class, residential avenues. Though historic city limits extend one block further west to Stewart Street, most existing structures in this area reflect post-1930 development and thus do not meet National Register criteria. The southern axis of Washington Street is marked by the large lawn fronting Handley High School. The district's remaining southern border extends along Germain Street, a residential street containing worker housing from the second half of the 19th century. South of Germain Street lies a higher concentration of post-1930s commercial structures, spotted by occasional 19th-century builder houses. All boundaries were determined by historical precedent and/or degree of architectural integrity.

The core of the Winchester Historic District is firmly set by a four-block pedestrian mall extending along Loudoun Street from Cork to Piccadilly streets. The mall is flanked by numerous late 19th- and early 20th-century buildings of brick construction, two and three stories in height. Most of these structures display modernized false fronts along the street and second-story levels. Dating from the 1930s to the present, these fronts exhibit such varied styles as streamline moderne (Snow White Grill, 159 N. Loudoun), English half timber/Tudor Revival (The Oxford Shop, 23 N. Loudoun), and Colonial Revival (Jay's Boys and Girls Shop, 25 N. Loudoun). J. C. Penneys (2-6 N. Loudoun), Leggett (13-19 N. Loudoun), Cooper's (101 N. Loudoun), the Virginia ABC Store (22-24 S. Loudoun), and Bell's (124 N. Loudoun) exemplify designs unsympathetic to the established historic scale, form and/or detail of most buildings facing on to the mall. Though modernized on the first floor, 7 N. Loudoun and 165 N. Loudoun retain much of their ca. 1870s period appearance on the second and third floors. The Masonic Lodge and Gray and Eddy Building (116-118 N. Loudoun) has recently undergone restoration to reflect more closely its turn-of-the-century appearance. A less-accurate restoration is witnessed at 137 N. Loudoun where paint has been stripped from the cornice, eave, eave brackets, and window heads and lintels, leaving the wood unpainted.

Mall buildings retaining much of their original period appearance include 12-14 N. Loudoun (Federal, ca. 1840), the First Presbyterian Church (114 S. Loudoun, Gothic Revival, 1841/1883), Farmers and Merchants Bank (106 N. Loudoun, Renaissance Revival, 1902), Shenandoah Valley National Bank (201 N. Loudoun, Beaux Arts ca. 1905), and the Commercial and Savings Bank (186 N. Loudoun, Neo-Classical Revival, ca. 1900).

Though fewer in number, examples of late 18th- and early 19th-century stone buildings are noted in the southern half of the mall (see 21, 28, and 117-21 S. Loudoun in inventory).

7. DESCRIPTION

The historic nucleus of Winchester is the Frederick County Courthouse (Greek Revival, 1840, attributed to Robert Cary Long), located in Court Square on the mall. The brick, two-story, three-bay building is fronted by a formal portico and crowned by a three-tiered cupola. The brick has unfortunately been sandblasted. The portico consists of four Doric columns supporting an architrave, stylized metope and triglyph frieze, and low-pitch pediment. Fronting the courthouse is a small public square containing a garden and five deciduous trees laid on axis with the courthouse entrance. As no parks exist within the confines of the district boundaries, this shaded garden, though small, provides an important public green in Winchester's urban fabric.

To the sides of the courthouse and garden are one- and two-story, brick, Federal and Italianate buildings (now offices) dating from ca. 1830 to 1875. A two-story, flounder- or shed-roof building (ca. 1850), unusual in this area, is located within this group at 9 Court Square. The Frederick County Clerk's Office at 23 Court Square (Federal, 1832) has an attractive pedimented central entrance with delicate multi-paned fanlight, beaded molding, and punch-work swags. The pediment is supported by attenuated pilasters with recessed rectangular panels. North of the courthouse, 18 Rouss Avenue is the only building of Huff's Row (14-20 Rouss Avenue) retaining a second-story porch with Doric columns and sawn balusters. Northeast of the courthouse at 30-38 Rouss Avenue stands a large two-story, gable-roof Italianate building with bracketed cornice, paneled frieze, and three double chimneys with gable curtains. The building is fronted by a one-story, five-bay, simple-bracketed porch. Like many of Winchester's restored buildings, 30-38 Rouss Avenue has been sandblasted.

Commercial activity is concentrated in the central and northeast portions of the district. This area is presently dominated by mid- to late 19th-century commercial architecture (especially as noted along Loudoun Street) and late 18th- and 19th-century residences altered to suit the needs of 20th-century commercial enterprise.

The remaining portions of the district are residential with commercial spotting. Older residential areas are to the south and contain numerous stone and log houses. Here houses are situated on small lots with setback lines usually not exceeding ten feet. More often, houses are set almost on the street itself with no setback line. S. Kent Street is lined with mid- to late 19th-century, two-story, log and frame worker houses, many displaying elaborate porch and eave scrollwork.

Rental housing is concentrated in the southeast portion of the district. Though currently in varying states of disrepair, these houses maintain much of their original 19th-century period appearance.

Bungalows and turn-of-the-century Colonial Revival builder houses appear throughout the district, with concentrations in the areas north of Piccadilly and south of North Avenue. Nineteen-fifties and sixties ranch tract houses lie along portions of S. Washington (205, 217, 315, 518, 611, 618 and 712) and Fairfax Lane (123, 127, 131 and 134).

7. DESCRIPTION

Washington and Fairmont streets contain the highest number of architect-designed residences, most of which date from 1870 to 1910. These residences tend to be large in scale, set high off the street, and fronted by spacious, well-landscaped yards. A notable example is the imposing brick, 2½-story Federal house at 521 S. Washington. Built ca. 1870, this house features a Greek Revival doorway set behind a formal, giant order, three-bay central portico with Corinthian columns. At 202 S. Washington is a brick, 2½ story residence (ca. 1895) with three large decorative semicircular arches defining the bays. The house exhibits decorative brickwork beneath the roof eave and above the first-floor arches (similar to the Rouss Fire House). A second-story, Colonial Revival, open sleeping porch marks the central bay.

Two attractive brick Queen Anne houses at 24 and 117 S. Washington display picturesque roof lines with chimneys, corner towers, and intersecting gable and hip lines. A more flamboyant example of the Queen Anne is located at 5 S. Washington. Built ca. 1895, this house reflects the height of Victorian playfulness in Winchester. Of special note are the brickwork on the side and central chimneys, a three-story tower with an oblong copper-roofed dome, a bell dome capping the north two bays, and an imposing eclectic sleeping porch.

The Colonial Revival is handsomely expressed at 15 S. Washington and 205 Fairmont, probably designed by the same (unknown) architect. These 2½-story, three-bay houses share in common Palladian windows in the first-floor side bays, an elaborate Colonial Revival doorway in the central entrance, a bay window on the second-floor central bay, pedimented dormers, and a Colonial Revival porch with paired Doric columns.

The Tuscan Villa style is represented by 445 N. Fairmont (ca. 1870), an unusual house with polygonal window hoods and a central Gothic Revival window hood. Set back from the street, access to the house is gained by an 1889 iron bridge (manufactured by the Pittsburgh Bridge Company, Nelson and Buchanan Agents). A second and more traditional example of Tuscan Villa is found at 447 N. Loudoun.

Located at 414 S. Braddock (ca. 1891) is the only major architect-designed example of the Second Empire in Winchester, and 303 Fairmont (ca. 1875) is the only example of Italian Villa style. Though differing in their detailing, both buildings are of brick 2½ stories with a central projecting tower pavilion, five bays, and fronted by a one-story porch.

Religious and institutional buildings crisscross the district, often picturesquely placed at intersections. Gothic Revival churches dominate with tall spires, giving visual interest and variety to the city's skyline. Churches of architectural significance include the Episcopal Church (Greek Revival, 1828, alterations, ca. 1890, 1900, 1916; John Bruce, architect; NE corner N. Washington and Boscawen), Presbyterian Church (Gothic Revival, 1841, 1883; 114 S. Loudoun Street Mall), Market Street Methodist Church (Classical Revival, 1854; NW Cameron and Cork), Sacred Heart Catholic Church (Vernacular/Italianate, (See Continuation Sheet #4) 1870; 403 S. Loudoun), Grace Lutheran Church (Greek Revival, remodeled as Gothic Revival, 1841, 1875; 26 W. Boscawen), and, in the north section of the district, the African Methodist Church (Vernacular Gothic Revival, 1878; 428 N. Loudoun).

Schools, fire halls, and government buildings, all of which reflect civic pride, also accentuate Winchester's neighborhoods. Significant examples are the John Kerr School 1883, 1908; (203 S. Cameron), Rouss City Hall (Modified Romanesque Revival, 1900; NW corner N. Cameron and Boscawen), Handley Library (Beaux Arts, 1908-1913; Stewart Barney and Henry Otis Chapman, architects; 100 W. Piccadilly), Rouss Fire Hall (Romanesque, 1895; 103 W. Boscawen), and Friendship Fire Hall (Italianate, 1892; 10 E. Cork).

The Winchester Historic District is graced by numerous tree-lined streets. The rich greenery of large old trees provides a relaxing contrast to the color and form of town houses and adds unity, color, and warmth to the district as a whole. Tree-lined streets of note include 300-700 S. Kent, 400 S.-100 N. Cameron, Fairmont, and Washington streets. Streets laid along an east-west axis display richer landscaping as they approach Washington Street, the location of Winchester's middle to upper middle-class houses.

While strongly expressing its historic origins, Winchester has been clearly affected by changes during the 20th century. These changes range from such minor alterations of buildings as the application of bricktex siding to the demolition of downtown buildings to make space for needed parking. The historic character of the district has been altered most greatly in the commercial areas. Here parking lots, telephone and electric wires, and commercial signs detract from the historic nature of the city's core. Specific areas adversely affected include 0-100 E. and W. Piccadilly, 0-100 N. Braddock, 0-100 W. Cork, 4-100 N. Cameron (site of the Conrad house), the intersection of Cork and Kent, and 0-100 N. Washington.

Intersections previously adding strong visual interest to the urban fabric have been weakened through the erection of buildings uncomplementary to established architectural patterns. At the intersection of Boscawen and Washington streets, a contemporary one-story brick bank breaks with the scale and character of the turn-of-the-century buildings occupying the neighboring three corners. A similar situation occurs at Cameron and Cork and at Cameron and Boscawen streets.

In spite of these weak areas, the Winchester Historic District displays a sense of historic continuity and evolution. The district is unique in the variety of materials and styles evident in construction. Virtually every 19th-century architectural style is expressed from Late Georgian, Federal, and Greek Revival to Italianate, Queen Anne, and Colonial Revival. Though marred in the past by lack of preservation awareness in its downtown areas, the Winchester Historic District as a whole continues to express its historic heritage.

North Cameron Street (Formerly Market Street)

Once a strong visual focal point in Winchester, the intersection of Boscawen and Cameron streets has been marred by parking lots and a gas station. The Kurtz Building at the northeast corner stands alone flanked by a large city parking lot to the north and east. City Hall occupies the northwest corner. A three-story, brick, Italianate office building is to the southwest and a gas station lies to the southeast.

Tall windows in each bay are topped by an entablature and brackets. 1st-floor windows with bull's-eye wood lintels. 1st-floor level accentuated through horizontal bands of beveled brick. HABS I.
- 132: frame and brick, 2 stories. Vernacular. Ca. 1890. Asbestos shingles.
- 136: brick, 1 story. Commercial Vernacular. 1967. This building of poor architectural design is the only weak spot in an otherwise strong intersection. The building breaks with the scale of the 2- and 3-story structures occupying the remaining 3 corners. In addition, its lack of ornamentation (being an International Style derivative), contrasts with the turn of the century decoration of its neighbors.

The 200 block of South Cameron Street contains several of Winchester's earliest houses.

The intersection of South Cameron and East Cork streets exhibits one of Winchester's stronger architectural groups. To the southwest is the John Kerr School, to the southeast is the Centenary Church, and to the northwest is the Market Street Methodist Church. A one-story contemporary (1967) commercial building lies to the northeast and breaks in scale and character with its neighbors.

202 (Centenary Church): brick, 1 story with 3-story corner tower, gable roof, 3 bays. Gothic Revival. 1905. This structure is an important visual terminus to this residential block. HABS I.

Court Square

Court Square is a major focal point in the historic district. Fronting the Frederick County Courthouse, the square contains five deciduous trees and a small flower garden. As no public parks exist within the city (partially a result of the in-lot and out-lot system which only minimally provided for public spaces), this small green takes on extra significance.

South Washington Street

Washington Street is the location of Winchester's larger and more prodigious residences. Unlike most houses in Winchester, residences here enjoy large yards with rich landscaping. Many Washington Street houses are architect designed and date from ca. 1875-1925. Yards are often fronted by hedges, picket or cast-iron fences, or are fronted by a high retaining wall. Houses on the west side are set higher than the street and are occasionally approached by formal steps (see 205, 407, and 521 South Washington Street).

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Located at the northern end of the Shenandoah Valley, the city of Winchester has played an important role in state and national history. Settled during the mid-18th century as a small farming community, the town gained regional prominence as the county seat of Frederick County. By 1860 the town was fairly prosperous and had grown to moderate size. Travelers from both the north and east passing through Winchester on westward routes contributed to the city's rise as a trade and mercantile center. Others chose to settle in Winchester, their houses reflecting a rich mixture of architectural traditions. Winchester's strategic location in the Valley caused the community to figure during the French and Indian, Revolutionary, and Civil Wars. From the 1870s to the 1920s Winchester served as the commercial and industrial center of the Valley with glove manufacturing the leading industry. During the present century, the city has become the center of the Virginia apple industry.

Architecturally, Winchester holds a wide variety of styles representative of all periods of the city's growth. Of special importance is the large number of late 18th- and early 19th-century houses employing either log or stone construction. These buildings scattered throughout the city impart visual cohesiveness to the historic district in their proportion, scale, and detail. While most are vernacular houses, many reveal a clear understanding of late Georgian and Federal architectural principles. Because of Civil War activity in the area, the town's growth was severely curtailed during mid-century. However, indications of regained prosperity by the end of the 19th century are clearly demonstrated by the numerous architect-designed Victorian mansions lining Washington and Fairmont streets.

The earliest known inhabitants in the Winchester area were the Shawnee Indians from North Carolina. The Shawnee established a village at Shawnee Springs, near what is now Winchester, as early as 1690 on lands Charles II of England has granted to Lord Culpeper 1664. The property was conveyed in 1710 to Lord Fairfax. The first accounts of European settlement in this area state that two houses were erected by 1738 near the town. By 1743 a courthouse town known both as Opequon and as Frederick's Town had been founded. When the town was officially established in February 1752, James Wood, its founder, renamed it Winchester after his native city in England.

Wood came to Virginia as a surveyor in 1734. He moved carefully in establishing the town because of the monopoly held by Lord Fairfax over much of the area. Although Wood requested the General Court's permission to establish the town as early as 1744, the court would not accept his title to the original twenty-six lots as clear. Winchester was finally chartered in 1752 after Wood conveyed the lots to the county, which in turn sold the land to settlers. This awkward land transference procedure was taken to guarantee clear title of land to the new owners. By the chartering date, there were eighty lots in Winchester, Lord Fairfax having added fifty-four lots of his own. (See Map #1)

8. SIGNIFICANCE

Winchester was incorporated by an act of the Virginia General Assembly in 1779 and was governed by a mayor, aldermen, and councilmen. This charter remained in effect until 1874, when Winchester was incorporated as a city.

During the 18th century, land in Winchester was sold according to a system of "in-lots" and "out-lots". Each "in-lot" had attached to it an inseparable "out-lot" of three to five acres for gardening and pasturage. Privately owned out-lots were fenced, while the unsold out-lots were commons to be used by all. Purchase agreements of in-lots stipulated construction of a house within two years of "either framed work or squared logs, dovetailed, at least of the dimensions of 20 ft. by 16 ft."

In 1758 Wood added 156 lots to the town.² Fairfax followed suit the following year with 201 additional lots (See Map #1). Aside from the conversion of an out-lot to an in-lot in 1782, no further expansions of Winchester occurred until 1905 and 1921. In spite of the Wood and Fairfax additions, legal contracts barring construction of buildings on out-lots discouraged town growth during later years.

At the start of the French and Indian War (1754-1763), Winchester was described as a small frontier community of about sixty houses.³ Six years later in May 1760, Andrew Burnaby, visiting northern Virginia counted nearly two hundred residences in Winchester. This rapid increase is attributed to both the Wood and Fairfax additions and to the construction in 1756 of a military fort in Winchester to secure the lower valley area.

Named after General Loudoun, commander of British troops in America, the fort was laid out and erected under the supervision of George Washington.⁴ The bill appropriating funds for the fort indicates the town's vulnerability during the war noting, "...it is now judged necessary that a fort should be immediately erected in the town of Winchester, in the county of Frederick, for the protection of the adjacent inhabitants from the barbarities daily committed by the French and their Indian allies."⁵

During the Revolutionary War, perhaps because of its remoteness from the coast, Winchester was chosen as a prison site for British and Hessian soldiers. Prisoners were confined both in town and in barracks erected four miles outside of town.⁶ In June 1781 it was feared that Colonel Tarleton would attempt to free the large number of prisoners held here, but fortunately Winchester was spared the British onslaught.⁷ After the war, several Hessians apparently remained in Winchester and entered the building trades. Both Thorn Hill Manor (407 S. Washington, ca. 1787), and 614 S. Loudoun (ca. 1797) are said to have been built by Hessians.⁸

8. SIGNIFICANCE

Unlike most Virginia courthouse towns, Winchester grew to moderate size during the 19th century. The site of market days and fairs during the late 18th and early 19th centuries, Winchester was regularly frequented by new visitors and merchants. Cartmell notes vacant town lots were eagerly purchased by tradesmen and "Ordinary Keeper(s)" during the bi-annual fairs.⁹ These fairs, combined with the area's military and court activities and early booster efforts by John Wood, formed a solid base from which the town grew.

In 1796 Winchester had 350 houses, an increase of 150 residences in ten years.¹⁰ Morse's American Gazetteer of 1810 describes Winchester as, "a handsome and flourishing town standing on low and broken ground, ... [having] a number of respectable buildings, among which are courthouse, jail, Presbyterian, Methodist, and new Roman Catholic churches.¹¹ The dwelling houses are about 350 in number, several of which are built of stone.¹¹ By 1836 Winchester's population stood near 4000 with the number of dwellings estimated at 500. The city was described as "very compactly built,"¹² a description which still holds true today.

Construction of new roads and improvements of old roads occurred following the Revolution. Most significant was the completion of the Winchester and Potomac Railroad in 1836 (chartered 1831). Although not located on the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio, this secondary rail line linked Winchester and the lower Shenandoah Valley with the Potomac River, thus providing new commercial outlets for Winchester's wheat stores and its hide, fur, tobacco and hemp trades.

Location of the junction of nine major roads (most of which were macadamized) and on a secondary rail line, Winchester was considered an important military site during the Civil War. In 1862 General Thomas J. "Stonewall" Jackson, commander of the Valley District, established his headquarters in Winchester (415 N. Braddock, Gothic Revival; 1854). Military action in and around Winchester remained intense until the Union victory at the third Battle of Winchester (September 19, 1864) secured the lower valley. A local newspaper wrote at the conclusion of hostilities:

Winchester is now deeply scarred all over with the injuries it received. The main street, where mills and stores stood has been razed to the ground; the Courthouse stands an empty shell; many of the private dwellings in the vicinity are a heap of ruins; and there is not a street or lane in which property has not been destroyed.¹³

Following the war the town rebuilt itself as a manufacturing and commercial center for the lower Shenandoah. The 1870 census reveals 751 houses in Winchester and a population of 4477. To stimulate growth, the town considered temporarily granting new businesses immunity from municipal taxation. By 1886 Winchester's industries included four glove factories, three furniture factories, five tanneries, two foundries, one shoe factory, one flour mill, one farm implement factory, one soap factory, and one sumach¹⁴ and bark mill. Over six hundred residents were employed in the glove industry alone.

Though Lippincotts New Gazetteer (1906) notes, "extensive manufactures of gloves and leather,¹⁵ woolen goods, paper, lumber products, flour, and distilled liquours," in Winchester, commercial apple industries were beginning to supplant Winchester's manufacturing industries. The first commercial orchard (by John L. Lupton) was planted as early as 1871. By 1905 the area around Winchester processed over 100,000 trees producing seasonal shipments close to one million bushels. In 1925, 355 commercial orchards provided Winchester its major source of commercial income. Today Frederick County remains one of Virginia's leading apple producers.

In addition to its historical associations, Winchester is significant for the variety of 19th-century architectural styles exhibited and for its substantial number of early log and stone houses. Virtually every architectural style from late Georgian through Craftsman is represented within the district's boundaries. Residences range from small, early 19th-century vernacular log dwellings to late 19th- and early 20th-century lavishly decorated, architect-designed mansions. While many individual houses in Winchester have only minor architectural significance, their similarity in form and character provide rhythm and harmony to the entire city. Color and texture within the district is supplemented by late 18th- and early 19th-century stone dwellings. In spite of such 20th-century improvements and changes as parking lots, electric signs, and recent construction of buildings not maintaining established 18th- and 19th-century patterns, most of Winchester's streets continue to acknowledge clearly their historic origins.

Many of Winchester's earliest extant buildings (prior to 1800) are of limestone construction. These vernacular random rubble structures dot the district and usually exhibit late Georgian and Federal details on their cornice and door surrounds. Refined craftsmanship is externally articulated in quoins, jack arches, and occasional facade course work as seen at 28 S. Loudoun (Godfrey Miller Residence, ca. 1790), 143 W. Boscawen (Seymour Residence, ca. 1830), 137 W. Boscawen (Little-Holliday Residence, ca. 1800), and 602-04 S. Loudoun (Charles Grim Residence ca. 1775). Stone remained a popular construction material until supplanted by local production of brick at the turn of the 19th century. In addition to the large two-story, three- and four-bay, gable-roof examples presently surviving, numerous one- and 1½-story stone dwellings also populated late 18th- and early 19th-century Winchester. Unfortunately few of these smaller houses remain. Three examples survive (all moderately altered) at 8 E Cork (ca. 1810), 116 Wolfe (ca. 1820), and 204 S. Kent (ca. 1790).

Log construction was popular in Winchester until the third quarter of the 19th century. Eighteenth-century land purchase agreements required that either a log or frame dwelling be constructed within two years from the purchase date. The minor occurrence of box frame dwellings (see: Ambler Hill, 223 Amherst Street, 1786) in Winchester suggests a scarcity of carpenters familiar with this building method.

8. SIGNIFICANCE

Most log houses today are located in the southern section of the historic district along S. Kent, S. Cameron, and S. Loudoun streets, and connecting cross streets. The majority of these are two stories in height, three bays in width, and topped by a gable roof whose ridge parallels the street. Stucco, weatherboard, or German siding have been applied to afford the log core protection from the elements. Most log dwellings, originally one and 1½ stories in height, presently exhibit second-story and side-wing frame additions. The structure at 211 S. Kent Street (ca. 1810), while displaying dormer and porch additions from the late 19th century, still retains much of its original form. Victorian attempts to modernize log dwellings are expressed both in porch additions with simple to elaborate scrollwork and in cornice additions with decorative brackets (see: 212 E. Boscawen (ca. 1830), 209 S. Cameron (ca. 1790, 1870), and 422 S. Cameron (ca. 1790, 1880).

The basic "I" house form of the log dwelling and Federal house was retained by most builders when frame construction gained in popularity after 1820. As a result, the southern section of the district, which holds the largest concentration of log and early frame residences, exhibits great homogeneity in the overall form of most houses and, due to Victorian cornices and porch additions to log houses, in their details as well. The end result is a unified architectural streetscape with buildings sharing a similar roof height and shape, similar internal rhythms of bay width distribution, and, as all houses are set on the street, a uniform setback line. Irregularities and whims of individual builders combine with tree-lined streets, stretches of brick sidewalks, and occasional cast-iron fences to impart an informal picturesque atmosphere to these residential neighborhoods.

Federal and Greek Revival buildings appear across the district. In addition to the Court House (Greek Revival, ca. 1840), prominent examples are: 25 W Piccadilly (Greek Revival, ca. 1845), 135 N. Braddock (Greek Revival, ca. 1850), 106 N. Cameron (Federal/Greek Revival, 1810, 1850), 12-14 N. Loudoun (Federal, ca. 1840), and 130 S. Cameron (Federal, 1820-30).

The Gothic Revival in domestic architecture is only marginally represented in Winchester, suggesting that residents preferred to reserve this style for ecclesiastical buildings. Examples of domestic Gothic Revival include Stonewall Jackson's Headquarters (415 N. Braddock, 1854) and 427 N. Loudoun (ca. 1865). A Gothic Revival barn and two outbuildings behind 320 S. Cameron are also worthy of note. Of frame and board-and-batten construction, these buildings share similar lancet windows and/or vents and decorative bargeboards.

The Italianate was popular in Winchester, though it often received conservative interpretation. The sole example of the Italian Villa Style (303 Fairmont, ca. 1875), curiously merges with elements of the Georgian Revival as indicated in the architect's use of gabled dormers, a gable roof, and a strong adherence to symmetry. Clarity and simplicity of design is noted in the handsome Greek Revival/Italianate building at 331 N. Braddock (ca. 1865). The severity of its cube form and rational articulation of bays is relieved in part by a reserved bracketed cornice and decorative round-arched window molds on the second floor.

Other examples of the Italianate in Winchester include 230 W. Boscawen (Greek Revival/Italianate, 1854), 523 S. Cameron (ca. 1890), 10 E. Cork (Friendship Fire Hall, 1892), 321 N. Loudoun (ca. 1875), 130-32 W. Piccadilly (ca. 1880), 28 Peyton (ca. 1860), 203-05 N. Washington (Friends Meeting House, 1871), 30-38 Rouss Avenue (Lawyer's Row, 1872), 124 Amherst (ca. 1880), and 445 Fairmont (Tuscan Villa, ca. 1870). Vernacular interpretations of the Italianate are widespread with many examples being simple "I" houses capped by bracketed cornices and fronted by porches displaying decorative sawn and, occasionally, spindlework.

Late 19th-century, architect-designed residences are located on Washington and Fairmont streets. Fronted by large, richly landscaped yards, these spacious houses greatly contrast with the compact string of worker houses lining S. Kent, S. Cameron, S. Loudoun, and S. Braddock streets. Queen Anne, Romanesque, and Colonial Revival examples are well represented in these areas. These buildings visually group together in their size and character to define the west edge of the district.

The Gate House of Mt. Hebron Cemetery (Stewart Barney and Henry Otis Chapman, 1902) is a rare example of the Chateausque both in Winchester and Virginia. Providing a strong terminus to E. Boscawen, this picturesque stone building lies outside the historic district, tangent to the east border. An elaborate decorative cast-iron fence surrounds the cemetery and also helps to define the east side of the district.

The remainder of the residential sections contain numerous turn-of-the-century builder/speculative housing and early 20th-century bungalows. Two Craftsman bungalows of interest are found at 303 and 311 S. Washington Street. An earlier and more substantial Craftsman house is noted at 703 S. Washington Street.

While the commercial center of Winchester has lost much of its historic integrity through the demolition of architecturally significant buildings and subsequent construction of newer buildings not sympathetic to established patterns, it still retains several areas of major importance. Mall entrances from both the north and south provide major focal points within the district and efforts should be made to insure the preservation. Neo-Classical and Beaux Arts buildings at the north entrance of the mall, near the courthouse, and 40 W. Piccadilly (United States Post Office, 1910-11) define the downtown area through their associative imagery with commercial and civic institutions. The most handsome examples of these to be found in the Winchester Historic District is the Handley Public Library located at the northwest corner of Braddock and Piccadilly streets. Placed on the National Register in 1969, the library was also designed by Stewart Barney and Henry Otis Chapman of New York, (1908-1913).

8. SIGNIFICANCE

Recent building unsympathetic to established patterns includes construction of several large Colonial Revival office buildings and banks (205 Cameron, 48 S. Cameron, 115 N. Cameron, and 120 N Braddock). These buildings tend to break with the established scale, massing, and detail of the district. In addition, utility wires clutter many streets detracting from both the architecture and trees lining the street. Parking lots deemed essential for the economic survival of downtown, have extensively altered the character of Winchester's commercial areas. Because the Loudoun Street Mall¹⁶ is closed to through traffic (and therefore on-street parking) and because of growing demands by citizens for more parking areas, the city has resorted to the demolition of nearby buildings to make way for parking lots. The razing of these buildings is regrettable for both 1) the loss of the buildings and their associative historic values, and 2) the effect on the street facade through the creation of voids and breaks in established growth patterns. The end results are jarring visual changes to the center of an area densely populated with historic buildings. Winchester's greatest recent loss was the Conrad House (demolished 1967) located across from the Rouss City Hall.

In spite of these and other changes experienced during the past ten years, the city of Winchester still possesses much of its historic identity. Individual buildings, streetcapes, and the street plan continue to reflect the city's rich architectural and historical heritage. A movement to create a greater public awareness of the city's unique architecture began with the establishment of Preservation of Historic Winchester in 1964. Though unsuccessful in its early bid to save the Conrad House, by 1970 Preservation of Historic Winchester had established a revolving fund to purchase and sell historic properties. Restrictive covenants accompanied each property sold thus assuring their preservation. A further triumph for local preservationists came with the creation in 1976 of a city Board of Architectural Review responsible for review of all new construction and of all alterations of buildings over seventy-five years old. Their efforts combined, these two agencies should afford protection of Winchester's historic resources.

Winchester Historic District (Update 2014)

City of Winchester, Virginia

National Register of Historic Places
Continuation Sheet

Section number Additional Documentation Page 1

Introduction

The following continuation sheets provide additional documentation for the Winchester Historic District [Virginia Department of Historic Resources (VDHR) Architectural Inventory Number 138-0042], located in the independent City of Winchester, Virginia. The Winchester Historic District encompasses approximately 1,058 properties and was listed in the Virginia Landmarks Register (VLR) in 1979 and the National Register of Historic Places (NRHP) in 1980. The boundaries were expanded in 2003 and 2008, adding 17 additional properties to the historic district, and the period of significance for just the expansion areas was increased to 1951. However, the original district's period of significance remained unchanged, ranging from 1752 to 1929. Given the passage of time and the continuation of cultural development within the city, the period of significance for the original historic district area should be expanded to 1964 to include resources that were constructed in the mid-twentieth century that contribute to the persistent growth and improvement of the city.

Building upon a 2011 investigation, a reconnaissance survey of all resources built between 1930 and 1964 within the Winchester Historic District was conducted in September 2013 to determine their potential for individual NRHP listing and their contribution to the historic district overall. Based on additional information from the 2013 survey and further historical context research, this update provides the following:

1. The full, updated inventory of all resources within the Winchester Historic District's original boundaries; resources built between 1930 and 1964 have been updated to reflect their new status within the district.
2. Additional context and historic data to support the expansion of the period of significance of the entire district, including the evaluation of each of the 191 resources that date to the years appended to the period of significance as contributing or non-contributing features within the district.

Rather than replicating information from the initial nomination form, these continuation sheets contain only additional information based on the resurveying of properties built between 1930 and 1964 in the Winchester Historic District. The inventory included does give a full list of all of the historic resources within the boundaries of the original 1980 historic district and their contributing or non-contributing status. All content is keyed to the section headers on the current edition of the NRHP nomination form; for reference, the 1980 edition section numbers are in parentheses.

Summary Description

As established in the 1980 NRHP nomination, the Winchester Historic District originally contained 127 acres, or approximately 45 city blocks, and enveloped both residential and commercial properties. The 2003 Winchester Historic District Boundary Increase added buildings at 120 and 126 North Kent Street; and the 2008 Boundary Increase of the district included the 300–400 blocks of North Cameron Street, 12 Clark Street, 110 East Fairfax Lane, and 145 North Baker Street. However, for the purposes of the current period of significance expansion, only the original historic district boundaries will be affected and are described hereafter. The district follows a gridiron plan and is bordered to the east by South East Lane and North Kent Street. The northern boundary follows Fairfax Lane in a westerly direction until turning north in line with Kerns Lane to North Avenue. From there it extends west along West North Avenue (including resources located on both side of the street) to Fairmont Avenue. Resources along Fairmont Avenue are included within the western boundary which extends south to Stewart Street where it continues south before jutting west along Amherst Street to encompass resources situated on Stewart Street between Amherst and West Boscawen Streets. The boundary then comes back east to Washington Street and continues south to Germain Street. The southern border extends briefly along Handley Boulevard and juts east between Pall Mall and Germain Streets. The eastern boundary generally follows Town Run situated to the east of South Kent Street between East Germain and East Cork Streets, finally terminating at East Fairfax Lane.

Marking the City of Winchester's historical significance is its architecture and landscape with buildings ranging in date from the mid- to late-eighteenth century through to the twenty-first century laid out in the original street grid pattern. This wide array of buildings allows for a comprehensive study of nearly every architectural style from the late-Georgian period through the Modern Movement, with vernacular log dwellings standing alongside grand architect-designed residences and builder-influenced Ranch houses. The majority of these buildings are residential in nature, with commercial, institutional, social, and religious buildings lining major thoroughfares. The residential construction is typically one- to two-and-one-half-stories, single-family or duplex, with several multiple-family dwellings and apartment buildings scattered throughout the district area. The residential buildings surround the commercial core, which is lined with nineteenth- and twentieth-century buildings that speak to the ever-changing influences of the American consumer. Buildings constructed from 1930 to 1964 help continue the architectural context of the City of Winchester throughout the mid-twentieth century.

In 2011, EHT Tracerics, Inc. identified 147 properties (a "property" in this context includes the primary resource and any secondary resources associated with it) constructed between 1930 and 1964 within the existing boundaries of the Winchester Historic District. Although most were originally identified in the 1980 National Register Nomination, they were considered non-contributing resources to the historic district because they were not constructed within the original 1752–1929 period of significance.

In September 2013, Dovetail Cultural Resource Group (Dovetail) conducted a survey of the 147 properties previously identified. Based on survey results the resources were considered contributing or non-contributing to the Winchester Historic District based on their construction date (with the expanded period of significance of 1930–1964) and their capacity to convey reliable historic information about the physical and cultural development of the city. In total, the 147 properties yielded 153 contributing resources and 33 non-contributing resources. Eleven historic resources in the updated period have been demolished. In this document a "property" includes both the primary resource and any secondary resources associated with it (example: a house with two sheds counts as 1 property); while in contrast, a "resource" is any above-ground resource identified (house, shed, garage, etc.). Therefore, the contributing resource count individually tallies each house, shed, etc. as do the non-contributing resources.

Narrative Description

The Winchester Historic District is still graced by numerous tree-lined streets, with mature trees providing a relaxing contrast to the color and form of the town's houses, as well as shade. The district still retains its historic street pattern, with residential neighborhoods surrounding the commercial core. While telephone poles and streetlights have been added to the landscape, they reflect the continuing development of the district to adapt to the needs of its residents and businesses. The district as a whole continues to express its historic heritage through its continuously evolving landscape and architecture, which includes resources constructed between 1930 and 1964.

Between 1930 and 1964, approximately 147 primary resources were constructed within the original Winchester Historic District boundaries. A majority of the buildings continued to be designed in the popular Colonial Revival style; other enduring styles include Craftsman, Tudor Revival, and the commercial-form. However, during this time period additional designs such as the Minimal Traditional style and the American Foursquare form began to be incorporated in the landscape, as well as the Ranch and other modern styles in the 1950s and 1960s. Secondary resources include sheds for storage and garages which became more prominent with the increased popularity of the automobile in the mid-twentieth century.

Beginning in the late-nineteenth century and continuing to the present, the Colonial Revival style has been the dominant domestic architectural style in the City of Winchester, as well as one of the most popular styles across the country. Within the current historic district, Colonial-Revival-style dwellings are found along most streets, including Amherst, Boscawen, Braddock, Cecil, Clifford, Cork, Fairfax, Germain, Kent, Leicester, Loudoun, Monmouth, North, Peyton, Stewart, and Washington streets. These buildings are typically two- and two-and-one-half-story dwellings that have rectangular plans and are covered in a range of materials, such as wood weatherboard, vinyl or aluminum siding, brick, and stucco. In general they have symmetrically fenestrated façades and favor double-hung sash windows. They are often capped by a gabled roof, although examples of the circa-1930s Dutch Colonial Revival style, located at 431 Fairmont Avenue (138-0042-0446), 210 West Germain Street (138-0042-050), and 217 South Washington Street (138-0042-1008), are topped by gambrel roofs. Another variation on the Colonial Revival style in the City of Winchester includes the Cape Cod, popular in the 1930s and 1940s. These elements are displayed on the circa-1935 dwelling located at 517 North Braddock Street (138-0042-1128) and the circa-1950 house at 110 East Clifford Street (138-0042-0340). The Cape Cod form includes one-and-one-half-story dwellings with symmetrical, three-bay façades clad in brick or weatherboard and accented by dormers.

In the City of Winchester, Craftsman-style dwellings were first constructed in the early-twentieth century and continued to influence architecture into the 1930s. The style was used for larger two-and-one-half-story dwellings along East Germain Street, East Leicester Street, and Sharp Street. However, the versatile style was also used for one-and-one-half-story houses, which were geared toward single families from a range of socio-economic backgrounds, like the dwellings situated along Leicester and Loudoun streets. These dwellings are clad in many different materials, including weatherboard, brick, shingles, and stucco. Regardless of size, façades tend to feature prominent front porches and double-hung sash windows, such as these circa-1930s houses at 433.5 North Loudoun Street (138-0042-0665), 17 East Leicester Street (138-0042-0597) and 19 East Leicester Street (138-0042-0598). Some are double houses, such as the circa-1935 buildings located at 211 Sharp Street (138-0042-0956) and 18 East Germain Street (138-0042-0469). The former features wide over-hanging eaves and exposed rafter beams, while the latter has distinctive short, square upper columns resting upon massive piers.¹

The American Foursquare form dwelling became popular in the area in the 1920s and 1930s for middle class residential development. Utilizing restrained Colonial Revival- and Craftsman-style details, these houses are situated throughout the City of Winchester on North Loudoun, East Monmouth, and Stewart streets, and include circa-1930 houses at 441 North Loudoun Street (138-0042-0672), 107 and 124 East Monmouth Street (138-0042-0828; 138-0042-0836), and 5 North Stewart Street (138-0042-0965). These two-and-one-half-story dwellings feature rectangular forms clad in brick or weatherboard with two ranks of windows and an off-centered entrance. They have a one-story, full-width front porch, and fenestration are either wood or vinyl double-hung sash, typically paired windows.

Although not prominent, the Mission/Spanish Revival style did make an appearance in the City of Winchester at 418 North Braddock Street (138-0042-0109), circa 1930. This multi-residential building contains details of the style including a roof parapet and one-story porches with arched roof supports. Although representing a rare style for the area, the two-and-one-half-story dwelling blends into the neighborhood with its understated brick façade with brick detailing accents around fenestration.

After World War II, dwellings were constructed in the new Minimal Traditional style that emerged in the late 1940s and 1950s. Like Tudor Revival-style houses, Minimal Traditional-style dwellings generally have a dominant front gable but the roof pitch is shallower and the façade is simplified with fewer ornamental elements.² More customary Minimal Traditional-style resources are located on South East Lane, Fairmont Avenue, East Germain Street, East Leicester Street, and West Monmouth Street. These are typical examples of the style being generally small one- to two-story dwellings clad in wood, brick, or a mixture of these wall-cladding materials. However, some dwellings, such as the single-family houses located at 111 East Monmouth (138-0042-0830) and 15 Peyton (138-0042-0879) streets, illustrate a strong Tudor Revival influence with a primary façade dominated by a prominent cross gable with a steeply pitched roof.

The Ranch house became the dominant style throughout the country in the 1950s and 1960s, making its debut in the City of Winchester in the mid-1950s. Ranch-style dwellings reflect an increasing dependence on the automobile, and often incorporate garages into their design. Indicative to the Modern Movement and the Ranch house, these dwellings have low, close-to-the-ground silhouettes, with entry and window openings placed strategically to allot for informal living. They are also clad in a variety of veneers, the dominant of which is brick. These one-story dwellings are interspersed throughout the city, located on West Fairfax Lane, West Germain Street, South Kent Street, West North Avenue, and South Washington Street. Most of the single-family dwellings emphasize the rambling form by maximizing the façade width, such as the circa-1953 house at 315 South Washington Street (138-0042-1015) and the circa-1960 dwelling situated at 120 West Germain Street (138-0042-0502). In addition, the circa-1960 house at 134 East Fairfax (138-0042-0419) emphasizes the automobile with a prominent attached carport on the west elevation. Due to the configuration of the lots, the circa-1964 house at 712 South Washington Street (138-0042-1039) and the circa-1950 dwelling situated at 117 West North Avenue (138-0042-087) are turned so the narrow end of the building fronts the street. This shows the adaptation of the style to the city's lot sizes and street orientation.

The Tudor Revival style also continued to be used in the suburban neighborhoods in the form of commercial buildings (138-0042-0084) and filling stations (138-0042-0683). The circa-1945 resource at 132 North Braddock Street is an example of a commercial building constructed with Tudor Revival style details, such as elaborate decorative patterns in the arrangement of bricks and tall, narrow windows grouped into strings of three. Located on the northwest corner of the intersection of North Loudoun Street and West North Avenue is the circa-1930 former filling station at 501 North Loudoun Street. This filling station in the City of Winchester was made to look like a small house, containing small offices, storage rooms, and public restrooms.

The Modern Movement heavily influenced the commercial architecture built in the City of Winchester in the mid-twentieth century. Located primarily in the commercial core along Loudoun, Cameron, Cecil, Cork, and Piccadilly Streets, these buildings represent a break with traditional building forms and an emphasis on clean lines and minimal ornamentation. They are usually constructed of concrete block and faced with brick or metal panel veneer. Rectangular in form with flat or shallow-pitched roofs, these resources tend to have large plate- or float-glass windows which allow natural light to penetrate the façade, and primary entrances are single- or double-leaf glass-and-metal doors. These buildings are generally one story; however, some reach two stories in height (25 North Loudoun Street, 138-0042-0691, and 16 East Piccadilly Street, 138-0042-0905) and even three stories (19 West Cork Street, 038-0042-0392). Other modern designs are seen in other commercial buildings such as the circa-1963 one-story bank situated at 202 West Boscawen Street (138-0042-0056) with a hipped roof covered with standing-seam metal and finished with an overhanging pent, and a circa 1945 former auto showroom located at 318 South Braddock Street (138-0042-0166) with two stories and a stuccoed concrete-block structural system.

Post-World War II architecture also allowed for experimentation with styles, which is reflected in those buildings that have not been greatly influenced by one style or another and are categorized as "Other," "Vernacular," or "No Discernible Style." Examples of these buildings can be found in both residential and commercial buildings along most streets in the district, and include the circa-1940 commercial building located at 620 South Braddock Street (138-0042-0199), the circa-1953 dwelling situated at 518 South Washington Street (138-0042-1028), and the circa-1940 house at 118.5 East Cork Street (138-0042-375), to name a few. These buildings constitute those that do not accurately portray a common style or have details that warrant their categorization in a previously mentioned grouping. These resources reflect the changes in the city's growth and development as it evolved in the twentieth century through their materials, use, and age.

The City of Winchester is a dynamic urban environment that has continually changed to meet the needs and technologies of the people who live, work, and visit the area. Modern parking lots and buildings have taken the place of some of the residential and commercial buildings, especially those close to the commercial core such as those on the northeast corner of North Loudoun Street and Fairfax Lane. Of the 199 resources documented as part of the 2013 survey, nine primary resources and two secondary resources are no longer extant. The demolished primary resources are: 126 North Cameron Street (138-0042-0213), 202 East Cork Street (138-0042-0385), 113 East Germain Street (138-0042-0477), 212 North Loudoun Street (138-0042-0630), 302 North Loudoun Street (138-0042-0634), 2 North Loudoun Street (138-0042-0686), 124 South Loudoun Street (138-0042-0750), 21 West Monmouth Street (138-0042-0845), and 29 Wolfe Street (138-0042-1054). Secondary demolished resources within the district include sheds at 24 East Leicester Street and 124 East Monmouth Street. These resources have been demolished for several reasons including the construction of parking lots, a parking garage, and expansions of nearby buildings. But as the 1980 nomination states: "In spite of these weak areas, the Winchester Historic District displays a sense of historic continuity and evolution."³

Landscape Features

Generally, all of the downtown streets in the Winchester Historic District are surfaced with bituminous asphalt paving with the notable exception of the portions of North and South Loudoun Street that comprise the Loudoun Street Pedestrian Mall. Most downtown streets still have remnants of brick or cobble paving intact except in places where twentieth- and twenty-first-century excavation for underground utilities such as water, sewer, storm drainage, gas, etc., have obliterated the historic base surfacing.

In 2007, East Boscawen Street between Cameron Street and the pedestrian mall, as well as West Boscawen Street between the mall and Braddock Street, was changed from standard asphalt paving to stamped asphalt with red dye to give a brick paver appearance. All signalized intersections in the downtown have stamped asphalt crosswalks.

Two years later, in 2009, as part of a major utility project coupled with a conversion of Braddock Street and Cameron Street from one-way to two-way traffic, all of the haphazard array of poured concrete, brick paver, concrete paver, and other sidewalk surface materials of various colors and sizes were replaced with consistent red brick pavers over a concrete base. The exception to this is the use of rubber pavers over crushed stone in limited areas near where mature trees with large roots were preserved. Considerable stretches of limestone curbing were preserved as part of this effort, although some segments were relocated together to create a more consistent run of limestone in mid-block areas where gaps had been created over time due to utility work or the introduction of poured concrete driveway opening. As part of the 2009 project, four raised medians were installed in Cameron Street with limestone raised tree planters and brick pavers.

Approximately 100 additional street trees (multiple species) within defined tree wells were added in 2010 along Cameron and Braddock Streets. Traffic signals attached to wooden and metal poles via span wire were replaced with black metal mast arms attached to decorative upright poles which also support newly introduced pedestrian crossing signals. All intersections were upgraded to comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) which include ADA-accessible sidewalk ramps with truncated dome detectable surfaces. New and replacement street lighting of a Victorian design was introduced at this time as well. In places where historic porches, stoops and steps to private residences and businesses encroached out into public rights-of-way, these features were preserved. There are a few carriage steps and horse hitching posts retained in the historic district, particularly along South Washington Street. Low wrought-iron fences with gates define the front yard of many properties where the structure is set back from the public sidewalk. Where the adjacent private property is raised up from the current street and sidewalk grade, limestone walls are common as are concrete walls with brick facing. Some perimeter hedges and wooden fences are also scattered through the district, mostly along the residential streets to the west.

In 2013, as part of a major utility replacement project the running bond brick and poured concrete surface of the Loudoun Street Pedestrian Mall that was installed in 1974 was removed and replaced with an irregular layout consisting of square paver stones laid in a grid and bricks laid in a herringbone pattern.

Below is a full inventory [generated using the Virginia Cultural Resource Information System (V-CRIS)] of all properties within the original National Register Winchester Historic District boundaries, noting address, ID number, primary and secondary resources, primary resource style with date of construction, and contributing status or non-contributing. The properties are placed in sequential order under the street names which are listed alphabetically. The properties constructed between 1930 and 1964 have been updated to reflect their status as a contributing or non-contributing resource within the district and the address line of each of these properties is underlined. For the purposes of this survey, "historic" was defined as possessing the capacity to convey reliable historic information about the physical and cultural development of the City of Winchester. A property was considered "contributing" if: (1) the primary resource was constructed in or before 1964; or (2) the resource conveyed consistent historic information about the physical and cultural development of the city. A property was determined to be "non-contributing" to the historic district if: (1) the primary resource was constructed in or after 1965; or (2) the primary resource was altered to a level that any historic integrity it might have possessed was significantly destroyed or obscured.

8. Statement of Significance (Section 8)

Applicable National Register Criteria

- A. Property is associated with events that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of our history.
- B. Property is associated with the lives of persons significant in our past.
- C. Property embodies the distinctive characteristics of a type, period, or method of construction or represents the work of a master, or possesses high artistic values, or represents a significant and distinguishable entity whose components lack individual distinction.
- D. Property has yielded, or is likely to yield, information important in prehistory or history.

Period of Significance

1752–1964

Statement of Significance Summary Paragraph

In 1980, the Winchester Historic District was placed on the NRHP under Criteria A, for its role in state and local history, and Criteria C, for its architecture.⁴ Based on these factors, the district was previously determined to have a period of significance spanning 1752 to 1929—the NRHP 50-year age minimum of resources at the time of the nomination. “Settled during the mid-18th century as a small farming community, the town gained regional prominence as the county seat of Frederick County” and became a trade center for the region.⁵ Those who settled in the city constructed residential and civic buildings of a wide variety of styles, representative of all periods of the city’s growth. “These buildings scattered throughout the city impart visual cohesiveness to the historic district in their proportion, scale, and detail.”⁶ Eight are individually listed on the NRHP, including the mid-to-late-18th-century Washington’s Headquarters (138-0025) located at the corner of North Braddock and Cork streets; the circa 1786 Daniel Morgan House at 226 Amherst Street (138-0018; 138-0042-1077); Fair Mount (138-0042-0428) constructed ca. 1809 at 311 Fairmont Avenue; the circa 1840 courthouse located at 20 North Loudoun Street (034-5062; 138-0042-1067); the circa 1854 Thomas J. “Stonewall” Jackson Headquarters house situated at 415 North Braddock Street (138-0033; 138-0042-1088); the circa 1912 Handley Regional Library (138-0028; 138-0042-1086), and the 1924 George Washington Hotel (138-0042-0919) located at 103 East Piccadilly Street As well as and), both constructed in the Georgian style. Also included, while not architecturally significant, is the circa-1850, Greek Revival house, located at 608 South Kent Street (138-0042-0584), individually recognized under Criterion B for its association with country music legend Patsy Cline who occupied the house in the mid-twentieth century. “She lived at this residence longer than at any other house associated with her in the Winchester and Nashville areas, and she returned to it intermittently until 1957 when her singing career began.”⁷

This amendment proposes to extend the period of significance for the district from 1929 to 1964. The extension is eligible for inclusion in the NRHP under the same criteria as described in the original 1980

Nomination as continuation of several themes (commerce, architecture, and community planning) and characteristics that have persisted and are reflected in the physical fabric/architecture of the district. The expansion of the period of significance of the Winchester Historic District is eligible under Criterion A in the areas of commerce and community planning as it reflects the city's development as an urban landscape during the twentieth century. Of significant impact is the automobile on residential and commercial architecture as well as the urban environment within the district, such as the construction of garages, gasoline stations, and parking areas (driveways, lots, etc.). Overall, the expanded period of significance will allow for a better and more complete understanding of the history of the City of Winchester, from its founding through the mid-twentieth century.

The extension of the period of significance is also eligible under Criterion C for architecture as it retains distinctive architectural qualities of a mid-twentieth century urban landscape. The area emphasizes the district's growth and development through a variety of architectural styles. Buildings constructed between 1930 and 1964 within the existing Winchester Historic District boundaries are associated with domestic, civic, and commercial life of the inhabitants of the community. The diverse collection of buildings includes several popular early-twentieth century and post-World War II architectural styles including Colonial Revival, Craftsman, Tudor Revival, Minimal Traditional, and Ranch. In some cases they are a continuation of styles, materials, forms, and uses existing prior to 1930. While the more recent building styles "break" with traditional styles used prior to 1930 (according to the 1980 Statement of Significance), they still reflect the city's evolving landscape in response to residents and workers needs. The inclusion of these buildings within the Winchester Historic District's period of significance will seamlessly record the physical development of the city through the twentieth century.

For a resource or district to be considered eligible for the NRHP under Criterion B, "the persons associated with the property must be individually significant within a historic context," and further, "the criterion is generally restricted to those properties that illustrate (rather than commemorate) a person's important achievements."⁸ Country-music legend Patsy Cline lived in Winchester from 1948 to 1953 and the dwelling in which she spent those years is already individually listed on the NRHP under Criterion B for its association for her (138-0042-0584). She is known to have worked or frequented several commercial buildings throughout the city; however, many of those have been altered or torn down. As a result of the compromised historic integrity of those buildings the district's association with Patsy Cline and her early career has diminished. Therefore, there are no known associations between this area and important individuals, thus the district is not recommended eligible under Criterion B.

The district was not evaluated under Criterion D during this investigation. However, based on the known history of the community and the confirmation of known significant archaeological sites, it is probable that several intact archaeological sites could be located within the district.

Narrative Statement of Significance

The City of Winchester was settled during the mid-eighteenth century as a small farming community and gained regional prominence as the county seat of Frederick County. The town was fairly prosperous by 1860 as travelers from both the north and east passed through the area on westward routes, contributing to the city's rise as a trade and mercantile center. From the 1870s into the twentieth century the City of Winchester served as a commercial and industrial center. Those who chose to settle in the city constructed buildings of a wide variety of styles, representative of all periods of the city's growth.

“As a result of Winchester’s manufacturing success, the city’s population continued to grow, rising from 5,161 residents in 1900 to 6,883 residents in 1920. Growth continued more rapidly after 1920, with the population reaching 10,855 residents by 1930, 12,095 in 1940, and 15,110 residents by 1960” because of increased commerce/industry.⁹ In 1960, Shenandoah College (now University) constructed a new campus nearby.¹⁰ The addition of a college led to an influx of students, faculty, and staff living in the vicinity. With the population increase, commercial construction continued within the city core to meet the demands of the people. New residential development waned during this time; however, several original single-family homes were renovated and redesigned into apartments.

In the 1930s and 1940s, commercial businesses started to appear within the residential neighborhood, including new types of buildings such as filling stations, auto repair shops, and auto showrooms. Because of the increased popularity of the automobile, urban environments, such as the City of Winchester, transformed into a more vehicular-friendly environment to meet the demands of its residents and a new influx of visitors. The 1947 Sanborn Fire Insurance map shows the arrival of new building types, like service stations and auto shops within the City of Winchester. Filling stations, such as those located at 501 North Loudoun Street (138-0042-0683, circa 1930), were constructed throughout the city, “and their architecture and design developed in a competitive market with the hopes of attracting the consumer through brand association.”¹¹ In addition, the rise of the automobile allowed for greater mobility which meant businesses like restaurants became more common. The commercial core was infilled with the construction of new buildings to capitalize on the growing economy. While being constructed later in the early 1960s, additions such as drive-thru banks (202 West Boscawen Street, 138-0042-0056) also became a mode of convenience offered to people traveling by car. Influenced by the automobile, the commerce within the City of Winchester changed and adapted to meet the needs of residents and visitors. However, demand for increased parking in the downtown area has led to the demolition of residences and commercial buildings for the construction of parking lots and garages.

Following World War II, American culture was dominated by a new found wealth and independence that men and perhaps more importantly, women, experienced during this time. Fueling what became known as the “American Dream,” the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) and Veterans Administration (VA) loan programs provided mortgages, “which typically cost less per month than paying rent, were directed at new single-family suburban construction.”¹² “Intentionally or not, the FHA and VA programs discouraged the renovation of existing housing stock, while turning their back on the construction of row houses, mixed-use buildings, and other urban housing types.”¹³ The automobile also allowed for more suburbanized living as it allowed for people to live farther from the downtown area and commute in during the week. However, the City of Winchester maintained its downtown area and increased housing, while impacts of the movement are seen outside the city core. Within the city limits during the late 1940s and into the 1950s the city experienced infill where larger lots were subdivided into smaller ones for the construction of modern housing (largely employing Minimal Traditional and Ranch styles). Also, post-war apartment buildings, such as 208–210 West Boscawen Street (138-0042-0057), were built in the city in response to the increased population and need for multi-family housing in a growing urban environment.

During World War II, women were employed in Winchester's factories, earning wages and contributing to the war effort. The independence and earning power enabled women to continue to break barriers in male-dominated careers after the war as well. One such woman was country music legend, Patsy Cline, born Virginia Patterson Hensley in Winchester Memorial Hospital in 1932. Patsy quit school at the age of 16 to help support her family "by working in a poultry plant. Later she took jobs at a bus depot and as a drugstore soda clerk at Gaunt's Drug Store (still extant) in downtown Winchester. She also began singing professionally at night and on weekends to supplement the money her mother made as a seamstress" in the City of Winchester.¹⁴

Other buildings associated with Patsy's early, formative career are still found in Winchester. The former G & M Music Store is at 38-40 Boscawen Street where Patsy listened to new music and even recorded her first demo disk for Nashville... Gaunt's Drug Store where Patsy worked and sang tunes from behind the soda fountain is still extant... Most of the nightclubs and sites, such as the Winchester Drive-In where Patsy performed, have been either torn down or remodeled.¹⁵

Patsy entered the music industry in the 1950s and became a nationally significant country music icon. Today, the house Patsy lived in with her mother and two younger siblings from the age of 16 until her marriage at the age of 21 (1948 to 1953) is still extant and located at 608 South Kent Street (138-0042-0584).

The City of Winchester is significant for its variety of architecture dating back to the late-eighteenth century. The original 1980 nomination states that "virtually every architectural style from late Georgian through Craftsman is represented within the district's boundaries" (Virginia Historic Landmarks Commission Staff 1979:107). While this is true, extending the period of significance from 1929 to 1964 will enable a more complete understanding of the city's history and development as it occurred during much of the twentieth century. It would also include new architectural styles and trends that were introduced to the landscape during the post-World War II period, because of the increased popularity of the automobile, and/or changes to modern amenities, and how these changed civic, commercial, and residential urban development patterns. This blending of architectural styles, forms, materials, and construction techniques is important to the understanding the development and history of the City of Winchester.

Integrity

Some of the buildings in the district have experienced common modifications and alterations over time (e.g., replaced windows, new siding, loss of historic details, modern additions) as well as a loss of integrity as a result of vacancy. As a whole, the buildings constructed from 1930 to 1964 retain a moderate level of integrity of design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling, locations, and association. Association of buildings to their original intent has been the most effected over time through rehabilitation projects, such as restoring some residential buildings for commercial uses, especially near the commercial core of the district. However, the attempts to repurpose the buildings rather than demolish them emphasize the city's recognition and attempt at retaining and protecting its resources. Based on the 2013 survey, a majority (151 individual resources or 79 percent) of the 191 individual resources constructed from 1930 to 1964 within the existing district boundaries would be considered potentially contributing resources to the Winchester Historic District. Overall, the proposed period of significance increase from 1929 to 1964 would retain the distinctive architectural qualities of an urban landscape, with an emphasis on the variety of architectural styles exhibited throughout the district reflecting the growth and development of the city through the twentieth century.

Archaeological Potential

To date, two archaeological investigations have occurred in the Winchester Historic District, George Washington's Headquarters and Fort Loudoun. The archaeological work at the George Washington Headquarters Office Museum was part of a salvage excavation conducted by the Shenandoah Chapter of the Archaeological Society of Virginia and Thunderbird Research Corporation. The salvage operation consisted of test unit excavation and shovel testing across the yard. The work determined that cultural deposits were present and, as such, additional work should be conducted prior to any ground disturbing activities.

Excavations at Fort Loudon, the site of a French and Indian War military fort constructed by George Washington, were completed to determine the construction of the fort wall and ditch, the possible function of interior buildings, and to examine the material culture of the soldiers living in the area. The excavations determined little on how the fort was designed but data on foodways in the fort as well as the dichotomy between the higher ranking officers and the enlisted men was revealed.

As very little archaeological investigations have been completed in the district, it was not evaluated under Criterion D. However, based on the known history of the community and the confirmation of known significant archaeological sites, it is probable that several intact archaeological sites could be located within the district. Subsurface investigations within the district boundaries are warranted to identify notable archaeological deposits.

Although the photo coverage is the weakest part of this nomination, I think the photos are representative & can be accepted as is.

e.g. Stone & log houses which were common in the city's early history are shown in photos # 4, 6 & 11. Vernacular workers' housing is shown in # 9 while upper-middle class housing is shown in # 2. There is also a photo of one institutional structure & one commercial block. Although it certainly would have been desirable to have had more photos of commercial structures & examples of intrusions, what has been provided will do.

B. updated since

I also have problems with the VBD & the fact that it is based on 1927 maps. Are the street numbers ~~as~~ referred to in the VBD 1927 or 1979 street numbers? Many seem to have been changed on the maps & ^{this} would seem to suggest that they are 1979 numbers. If so, I have problems combining 1979 numbers with a 1927 map - a person could not refer to another copy of the Sanborn maps & follow the VBD.

Why wasn't ~~the~~ a larger copy of the 1974 map provided with the nomination used for the VBD? Other slight problems with VBD (see nomination)

Architecturally significant district comprised of about 1100 structures representing full range of 19th C architectural styles, in addition to regional house form--log framing carried well into 19th C. Residences & commercial & church buildings demonstrate late Georgian, Federal, Gothic & Greek Revival, Italianate, vernacular as well as architect-designed. Overall similarity in form & character throughout district provides rhythm & harmony. Good contrast of materials. Roofs, setbacks, form (I-house), detailing provide unified architectural streetscapes in res. sections. Contrast between large residences & worker houses. Sense of time & place strengthened by unity of the district, compatibility & variety of architecture.

Dear Mr. Murtagh:

Reference is made to your letter H32-NR, dated June 22, 1979, concerning properties in Winchester, Virginia located at 11-15 South Loudoun Street and 41-45 W. Boscawen Street.

We also own property at 19-23 South Braddock Street, 31 West Boscawen Street, 19-21 West Boscawen Street and other buildings in the downtown historical district.

We feel that this old historical city should be designated and listed as such and we recommend and approve of this proposed action. Our properties are all on the original Colonel James Wood's plat of Winchester, the first city west of the Blue Ridge. This was western frontier for many decades. George Washington's office and frontier fort was here. Also the city changed hands seventy-one times during the Civil War.

Thanking you for asking our opinion, I remain

Dear Mr. Murtagh:

The County of Frederick, Virginia has several buildings in the proposed Winchester Historic District. We would like to know, if this district is recognized by the National Register, what constraints, if any, would be placed on our buildings? We are particularly concerned with building modification and the construction of parking facilities.

I look forward to your response.

Gentleman: Re: Winchester Historical Dist.

Your letter of June 22.

I do think the District in question should definitely have historical protection.

Whereas my home has no particular historical value other than it is built on Dart London original land, & here is across the street from one Stonewall Jackson's head quarters, my house backs up to Dart London & one block down is the beautiful restored

(apartment house) home of Stuevel Jackson while in Winchester during the Civil War + across the street is an old house (not lovely) which is on the only land owned by Geo.

Washington while in Winchester

A year or more ago the State discussed putting a highway directly thru Winchester on Peyton St. which
St. had on faces + on which the mansion in which Jackson lived faced + it was now thought these would have to be eliminated as if they came thru several yards more it would eliminate
St. had on + Jackson's head quarters.

The City of Winchester has never been historically minded

+ many places have been removed with the approval of Winchester, with some instances the city ~~to~~ itself wanted the land for money making parking lots. Two of the items
I have seen removed in my times have been a large colonial & historical mansion against the strenuous complaints made directly by the people of Winchester to the council for a parking lot, & the building in which Pres. McKinley was made a mason & attended masonic meetings. One large home of civil war vintage was left for an exchange but thru approval for its sale for a modern building was sold for a Sears Roebuck store.

& torn down.

I do think Winchester does need some protection of its historical properties

Sincerely

Evelyn H. Jackson

Dear Dr. Murtagh:

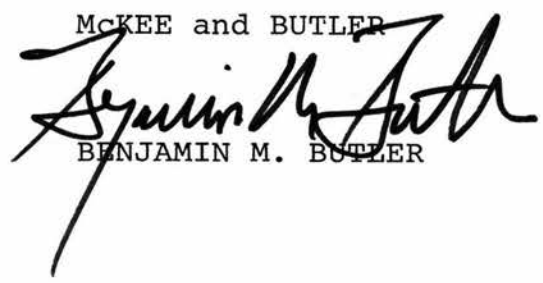

I am in receipt of your letter of June 22, 1979 concerning the Winchester Historic District, Winchester, Virginia.

This area of the City of Winchester is a most historical area inasmuch as building which served as residences and businesses have, for the most part, been converted into office spaces, yet maintaining the historical integrity of the building involved.

I think it most appropriate that the Winchester Historic District be listed in the National Register.

Dear Dr. Murtagh:

We feel that the continued restoration of the buildings of historical significance in Winchester will be of great benefit to the community. The listing in the National Register of Historic Places will facilitate the qualification for tax purposes of the restoration of these buildings for income producing purposes. Such a listing should also serve to increase the pride of the people in our area in their community.

We encourage the Secretary to list the Winchester Historical District in the National Register.

Dear Dr. Murtheh:

This acknowledges your letter dated June 22, 1979 stating that nomination for our property is in your office to be listed in the National Register of Historical Places.

This is to advise you that our building is not an old building as it is only approximately 30-40 years old. It is a former commercial retail lumber supply business location. We bought the property and remodeled it into professional offices. The property to the left of us is a burned out shell of a former manufacturing facility for furniture. Because of the present local restrictions on the area, the property has not been able to be developed and has been looking in very sad shape for over 12 years now, growing up with trees, weeds and debris.

I think to be placed on a listing of historical places would be a total farce and further impose totally unnecessary regulatory restrictions on the due development of the commercial property in this area.

This is just to put me on record that I am personally against this nomination.

Yours very truly,

Re: H32-NR
Winchester Historical Dist.

Gentlemen:

In response to your letter of June 22, regarding the fact that my property is located in a historic district, I wish to comment as follows.

My home is a private residence located in an area zoned as single family dwelling. It has absolutely no historical significance to my knowledge, and is not a good representation of its era.

In accordance with criteria set forth, it does not meet any points.

As I interpret Section 2124 of the Tax Reform Act of 1976, Tax Incentives for Rehabilitation of Historic Buildings are available only for Commercial and income-producing buildings. Again, I do not meet this criteria.

I do not want or desire my home to be listed as a historic place in the National Register or elsewhere, and trust my wishes will be observed.

Yours truly,

Dear Sir:

In regards to your letter of June 22, 1979. I think the district that I live in should be listed in the National Register. The home that I live in is nearly 100 years old and is in fairly good shape.

Re: H 32 - NR

31 South Braddock Street
Winchester, Virginia

Dear Dr. Murtagh:

Although our building may be located within what could be considered a historic district, the building itself is not an old building within the definition indicated under criteria in your enclosed document.

This building was a lumber storage facility until it was purchased by us for complete renovation as a new, modern office site.

The building adjacent to our building was the Braddock Street Methodist Church which dated to the late 1800's until torn down to make room for a new, modern and now five year old church facility.

The building immediately across from our office has been totally renovated from an Acme market store to a modern furniture store.

This street is approximately two blocks from a newly added onto hospital. The primary location of historical buildings is at least three blocks east of our location.

It appears that the effort to restore the old and live in the past would be better directed in an area where the facilities available for renovation are intact and consistent with the rest of the buildings.

Sincerely,

RE: Winchester Historic District

January 30, 1980

Dear Ms. Skell,

I was delighted to receive your letter regarding the listing of historic Winchester in the National Register. I heartily urge that this be done promptly. This city is full of 18th and 19th century structures - historical and architectural treasures - in deplorable condition and neglected. They have been demolished to provide extra parking or had unsightly facades added.

This city has played important roles in our nation's history and it's sad to see the evidence disappear bit by bit and remain only in history books. It's exciting to walk the streets and see the old buildings where the events took place - to appreciate the high standard of craftsmanship and materials. These are living statements from two hundred years ago to our age today. Incentives are needed to preserve these structures as well as money, and being included in the National Register will be an important step.

Sincerely,
Mack S. Headley, Jr.

Dear Mr. Andrus:

Enclosed, please find a copy of a notice of a public hearing held in Winchester, Virginia, on December 1, 1979, and a copy of a study report by the Winchester Citizens Association on Butler Drive, one of the proposed highways in the Winchester Transportation Plan for 1980.

Besides causing congestion within the City, this Butler Drive would separate, impair, and destroy one of the oldest historic neighborhoods in our community.

This historic neighborhood includes the house, started in 1750 and completed in 1794, of one of Winchester's founders. This is shown on the map in the back of the Winchester Citizens Association report as Circle B.

Our Old Town Spring, which is one of the old underground water systems in the nation using hollow wooden logs as pipes. Near this spring is an old home that was built by James Wood, Jr., Brigadier General in the Revolution and Governor of Virginia, 1796-1799. A short distance away is a hexagonal house, the location of the Steele Gardens, and the George Mason house. These historic locations and buildings may be found on the map within Circle A.

Within Circle C, may be found more than 20 structures that have historic and architectural values of over 100 years. One was used as a bank during the Civil War and the money was hidden under the house. Another was one of the first school houses. Another was the home of Daniel Morgan, 1799, who marched a company of crack riflemen from Winchester to Canada, before the Revolutionary War. Also, within this Circle C, may be found a lot of land owned by George Washington and another plot of land held by George Washington and others. In this same area is found Fort Loudoun's location and dug well for the fort, which was constructed by George Washington to protect the people from the Indians, and there is also the grave of Lord Fairfax.

This community was established in 1752, long before the Revolutionary War, but George Washington, while surveying for Lord Fairfax, had an office here. This same office was used by George Washington in 1756-58, when he commanded troops in the French and Indian War.

A look at the map in the WCA report would readily show how this historic neighborhood would be divided by the construction of the Butler Drive highway.

001612

Mr. Cecil D. Andrus, Secretary of Interior

July 5, 1980

At the public hearing were members of the Planning Commission and the Common Council. The Winchester Citizens Association presented its report at this hearing and requested that Butler Drive be removed from the Transportation Plan map, and that a bypass be constructed just north of the City limits.

After this public hearing was held, it was learned that Council members were informed, before the hearing, that if Butler Drive would be removed from the map, no other highway could be constructed in the area by the State Highway Dept. This certainly smells like blackmail! Also, this information should have been stated in the newspaper notices, but it was not.

Under the U.S. Code, Title 23: Highways, 1973, the Virginia Highway Department is required to report to the Secretary of Transportation, among other things, the various alternates raised during the public hearing. We have reason to believe that the Secretary will never hear of the bypass recommended by the Winchester Citizens Association.

We also wonder how it is possible for the Virginia Highway Department to construct Butler Drive through our historic neighborhood under Section 138, of the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1968, when the Secretary of Transportation is instructed not to approve any project that would require the use of any land from historic sites, unless there is no feasible alternate? Winchester's feasible alternate is the bypass.

Also, how can this same highway department flagrantly disregard Article XI of Virginia's Constitution, which is close to being an Environmental Bill of Rights, with protection for historical sites and buildings?

Many other communities in the U. S. have to scratch and stretch to facts to come up with one historical building or neighborhood. One such community is using the house of a murderer as an historical attraction, but Winchester doesn't have to resort to such tactics. Our City has a few historic buildings in an historic neighborhood left, and this neighborhood should be preserved and protected from destruction by highways. Future generations might like to know what George Washington did the years he spent in this community. They might also like to know that our community changed hands 72 times during the Civil War.

We would appreciate very much any information that might help us show the highway department that they should use the bypass instead of destroying our landmarks. Please, read the letter in the back of the Winchester Citizens Association report.

Sincerely,

George W. Jones

~~FREDERICK CO.~~

Dear Mr. Jones:

Thank you for your letter and documentation concerning the above-mentioned property. We have forwarded a copy to the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation because the authority of the National Register of Historic Places extends only to the definition, evaluation, and recognition of historically and culturally significant properties. It is through the Advisory Council that properties listed in or determined eligible for the National Register are afforded protection from inadvertent alteration or destruction through projects which involve a Federal agency.

In accordance with Federal regulations which implement the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, as amended, and Executive Order 11593, Federal agencies involved in a project which will affect a property listed in or determined eligible for the National Register are to consult with the appropriate State Historic Preservation Officer and request the comments of the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation on appropriate management options. We have enclosed a copy of the consultation procedures followed by Federal agencies and the Advisory Council. If you have any questions about the consultation process, you may wish to write to Ms. Charlene Dwin, Advisory Council on Historic Preservation, 1522 K Street NW., Suite 430, Washington, D.C. 20005, or to call them at (202) 254-3495. RE: Winchester Historic District (Update 2014), City of Winchester, Virginia

Dear Mr. Loether:

The enclosed additional documentation, referenced above, is being submitted for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places. The Winchester Historic District originally was listed in the National Register in 1980. The enclosed nomination update provides a full, updated inventory of all resources within the historic district, justification for extending the extending the period of significance from 1929 to 1964, and additional context and historic data to support the expansion of the period of significance. The historic district's original boundaries have not been altered as a result of this nomination update.

Should you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact me. My direct phone line is 804-482-6439.

Sincerely,

Lena Sweeten McDonald
National/State Register Historian

RE: Winchester Historic District (Update 2014), City of Winchester, Virginia

Dear Mr. Loether:

The enclosed additional documentation, referenced above, is being submitted for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places. The Winchester Historic District nomination was updated in early 2014 and submitted to the National Park Service review on April 2, 2014. Since that time, it was discovered that the contributing status of one property, 160 N. Loudoun Street, needed to be changed from "non-contributing" to "contributing." The enclosed page contains this correction.

Should you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact me. My direct phone line is 804-482-6439.

Sincerely,

Lena Sweeten McDonald
National/State Register Historian
