National Register of Historic Places
Continuation SheetSection number 7 Page 1Description

During the Railroad Era (1870-1914) in White County a variety of vernacular houses were constructed. They were also built out of a variety of materials. Intact surviving examples from this period, however, are somewhat limited. The Dr. Lovell House is a fine example of a double-pen I-House. It has a composition shingled gable roof, walls are clad with novelty siding that replaced the original weatherboard, and the entire structure rests on a stone pier foundation. This balloon frame building was constructed c. 1900, and is in good condition.

Located on the west side of Walnut Street, between Main and Church Streets, this building is located less than four blocks from the site of the Missouri-Pacific Railroad depot. The main, or east, elevation of the house is dominated by a two-story, gable roofed porch which encompasses both of the front doors. Both stories of the porch are supported by wooden columns which are adorned with wooden ornamentation and turned baluster balustrades. Single doors exit each of the original pens onto the porches. Single two-over-two double-hung wood sash windows are located in each of the pens on this elevation. This type of window is found on both floors of the south gable end. The ground floor of the northern gable end is entered by sliding doors, while the second floor is relieved by a centrally placed paired two-over-two double-hung wood sash window.

Rising above this, in the central part of the original building, is a large brick corbelled chimney. A one-story, gable roofed, T-shaped addition is attached to the west elevation of the structure. The north elevation has both single and paired windows that are not original. A single entry is located on the northern edge of the west elevation and a single, modern, two-over-two double-hung aluminum sash window is located in the gable end of the addition. Similar windows are symmetrically placed on the south elevation of the addition. Attached to this addition and extending from the west elevation of the original building is a one-story shed roofed room which is fenestrated with a paired three pane fixed frame window while a single door enters the south elevation of this addition. This door is flanked by ten-pane sidelights. A hipped roof storage shed is located approximately thirty feet west of the house and was constructed c. 1920.

Significance

When this building was constructed, c. 1900, it was one of numerous I-Houses built in White County during the Railroad Era. Double-pen I-Houses, however, have always been rather scarce in the county; central hall's have been the most popular. There are only twenty-four I-Houses of various floorplans left in the county and only eight of these are double-pens. The Dr. Lovell House is the best surviving example of a double-pen I-House in the county. Thus this building is being nominated under Criterion C with local significance.

Reviewer's Comments

The boundaries of this property are presently located along building lines. A resource listed in the National Register should include all features of the property which contribute to its significance. In almost all cases this includes its historic setting. Page 77 of National Register Bulletin 16, Guidelines for Completing National Register of Historic Places Forms, states that "the boundaries of buildings should include the land surrounding the building, unless the lot occupied by the building contains no surrounding land as in the central business district of most cities."

Please revise the boundaries to include the property historically associated with the resource. If a portion of the original setting has lost its integrity, please explain.

Verbal Boundary Description:

Beginning at the point formed by the intersection of the southern edge of Walnut Street with a perpendicular line running parallel to the western elevation of the associated outbuilding and located approximately 50 feet to the west thereof, proceed southerly along said line for a distance of approximately 200 feet to a point formed by its intersection with a perpendicular line running parallel to the southern elevation of the house; thence proceed easterly for a distance of approximately 200 feet along said line to a point formed by its intersection with a perpendicular line running parallel to the eastern elevation of the house; thence proceed northerly along said line for a distance of approximately 200 feet to a point formed by its intersection with a perpendicular line running along the southern edge of Walnut Street; thence proceed westerly along said line for a distance of approximately 200 feet to the point of beginning.

Boundary Justification:

The original lot has been subdivided during the non-historic period, resulting in an indefinite current log boundary; therefore, this boundary includes all the property historically associated with this resource that retains its integrity.
