The house originally consisted of a $l_2^{\frac{1}{2}}$ story section, older than the main part of the house, and a two story section built in 1778. Its present design has not been changed except for a small porch on the north and south elevations.

The early section contains a large kitchen with a cooking fireplace and a bake oven, and two small rooms down stairs; there are three small rooms upstairs. The 1778 section contains four rooms and a central hall on each floor.

Each room has a fireplace with original paneling and plaster. There are random width wide board floors throughout the house.

The cellar has a dirt floor and four large fireplace foundations. The walls are of field stone. The main parts of the house are frame and clapboard construction with a recently restored hand-split cedar shingle roof. The chimneys are stucco covered.

The building has recently been repainted in historically accurate original colors and presently each interior room is being restored.
