Summary Paragraph

The Fairglen Additions subdivision comprises the central and largest section of Eichler's Fairglen development in Willow Glen. The Fairglen Additions consist of 218 homes, constructed between 1959 and 1961, on three tracts of land. The site plans and homes were initially designed by the architectural firms of Anshen and Allen AIA, of San Francisco, and Jones and Emmons & Associates AIA, of Los Angeles, and completed by Claude Oakland Architect & Associates, of San Francisco. Located in what was then a 1952 urban expansion area to the southwest of San Jose's early Willow Glen neighborhood, the subdivision is characterized by single-family residences on individual lots within a planned neighborhood. The homes are detached, one-story in height with flat or 2:12 pitched gable roof forms, open floor plans emphasizing privacy and presenting relatively minimal facades with integrated garages to the street, mixed post-and-beam framing with large expanses of glazing including clerestory windows, and concrete slab foundations with radiant heating. All these features are associated with the Mid-century Modern designs of Joseph Eichler's housing tracts. Although alterations, including changes to roof forms and second-story additions, have been made to individual homes over the years, the area as a whole continues to exhibit significant character-defining features of postwar housing tract construction, and the individual homes continue to exhibit significant character-defining features of modern residential architecture as viewed from the street; retaining integrity of location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling, and association.

Narrative Description

Subdivision

The Fairglen Additions (Unit 1, Unit 2, and Unit 3) was the third subdivision of five Eichler projects in San Jose between 1952 and 1963. The Fairglen Additions was the second of three noncontiguous subdivisions within the larger Fairglen development in the outer area of the Willow Glen neighborhood south of the urban center of the city. Their construction followed shortly after construction of the noncontiguous one and one-half block Fairglen tract to the north of the Fairglen Additions, and shortly before construction of the noncontiguous Eichler tracts to the west.

The Fairglen Additions were constructed between 1959 and 1961 in an area between Curtner Avenue and Andalusia Way, from the west side of Booksin Avenue to the east side of Briarwood Avenue on ranch land that had previously had fruit orchards. The area spanned more than five blocks and was laid out in a southwestern progression.

Unit 1, composed of 73 lots, began construction from the southwest corner of Curtner and Booksin Avenues in a grid pattern punctuated by cul-de-sacs. Unit 2, composed of 61 lots, continued in the grid pattern from the west side of Fairglen Avenue and transitioned into a winding grid pattern along the southern side of Fairlawn Avenue. Finally, Unit 3, composed of 84 lots, continued from the north side of Fair Orchard Avenue and ended in the winding grid pattern on the south side of Andalusia Way.

Thirteen distinct Eichler Homes plans were constructed on each of the approximately 6,000square foot lots. Newspaper articles reference plans for a larger subdivision with a community center and olympic-sized swimming pool, which never came to fruition. These references appear to be consistent with tract maps indicating that Eichler owned a fourth tract of land immediately to the south of Andalusia Avenue, which was sold just prior to the completion of Unit 3.

The nearby area of Willow Glen contains similarly-sized single-family subdivisions, largely built within the same time-frame. While the original Fairglen tract is consistent with larger-lot subdivisions having a mixture of custom and tract single-family designs on the north side of Curtner Avenue, the Fairglen Additions tracts are consistent with the smaller-lot tracts and mass-produced designs on the south side of Curtner Avenue.

The street patterns reflect state-of-the-art residential subdivision design of the period, and possibly local standards for the rapidly expanding City as well. Consistent with FHA recommendations for hierarchical street plans, the edge of the tract was defined by the arterial street of Curtner Avenue, with two collector streets, Booksin Avenue and Briarwood Avenue, allowing access into the tract. To reduce traffic and enhance the safety of the residents, minor residential streets and cul-de-sacs wound through the subdivision itself.

Block lengths varied from just a few to more than 15 house lots between streets. Lots are generally 60 feet in width and 100 feet in depth, with variations on cul-de-sacs and corners. Front yards are a minimum of 25 feet, rear yards 20 feet, and side yards five feet. Houses were carefully sited to fit individual lots, and many models featured a mirrored plan to maintain privacy while adding visual variation to the streetscapes.

Models can be categorized generally by their dominant roof forms of flat or broad gabled, and their parking configurations of one-car garage with carport or two-car garage. The site development amenities included power lines along rear property lines; detached concrete sidewalks with park strips, street trees, and street lights; and square concrete curbs with driveway curb cuts and gutters with storm drains. Homes included landscaping features - walks, concrete patios, planter boxes, benches, and fences. In front of privacy fences, front yards were connected, graded down to the sidewalks, and strategically landscaped with specimen trees to complete the park like setting belonging to the suburban public realm.

The Fairglen Additions subdivision has a unity of place within the boundaries of the original subdivision. The homes were constructed in a moderately dense, quickly developing, and affordable suburban fabric within a large and recognizable Eichler Homes community. Wooden power poles, concrete sidewalks, park strips, and street lights remain. The majority of the street trees have been replaced in original locations as a result of widespread disease, deterioration, and death of the original trees. Front yard landscape planting has been enhanced and replaced with compatible landscaping.

Exterior

The homes feature approximately fifty-foot wide, open floor plans emphasizing both privacy and the relationship of indoor and outdoor living, while presenting relatively minimal facades with integrated fencing and garages to the street. Floor plans can be categorized generally as overall L-shaped in plan, with a front courtyard located in the corner between the garage and the living/dining wing; or overall square in plan with an atrium located between the garage and the bedroom wing.

Plans reflect the design collaboration of the architectural firms working on Eichler projects. The L-shaped plans with front courtyards grew out of Anshen and Allen's original T-shaped AA-1 prototype, developed for the second phase of the Sunnyvale Manor subdivision in 1950. The square plans with atriums grew out of drawings by Anshen and Allen exhibiting this feature as early as 1956, which were incorporated into Eichler architectural designs by 1958. All of the plans feature the second bathroom in a master suite, previously reserved for custom-built homes, which was introduced by Eichler in the 1953 Fairmeadow project in Palo Alto.

Elevations can be categorized generally by their dominant roof forms and parking configurations: low-sloped gable roof with one-car garage and carport; or flat roof with two-car garage. One unique model, designed by Claude Oakland & Associates, incorporates an A-frame into the center of a flat roof.

The construction consists of custom vertical-grooved redwood siding over mixed post-and-beam framing (exposed tongue-and-groove roofing over beams) on concrete slab foundations. In a departure from traditional California light-frame construction, the use of post-and-beam framing with its larger spans made it easier to design open plans and a much higher proportion of glazing to solid walls.

Where earlier Eichler homes built before the Korean War were finished in vertical redwood tongue-and-groove or shiplap siding, shortages following the war were at least one contributor to the change to the custom vertical-grooved redwood plywood siding used throughout the Fairglen Additions. Concrete block and redwood shingle siding were also incorporated into the front elevations of a limited number of models. The original siding and integrated front fencing were coated with dark, earth-colored stain; beams were coated with light, neutral-colored stain; and front slab entry doors were coated with contrasting, bright-colored paint.

Original homes included distinctive aluminum door hardware, exterior light fixtures, and mailbox flaps above which custom cast address numbers were placed. Large expanses of floor-to-ceiling glazing and sliding aluminum glass doors were designed to face a private atrium or courtyard in front, and a patio (terrace) across the back. Flat, slab entry doors, horizontal clerestory windows over integrated garage doors, obscured glass panels at atriums, or punched rectangular windows with operable sashes face the street.

Landscaping

Homes included integrated landscaping features – divided-concrete driveways, walks, organicshaped courtyard patios, terraces setback from the floor-to-ceiling glazing to allow for landscape planting; benches; and vertical grooved front privacy fences integrated into front elevations.

Interior

Original interior materials and finishes were selected for simplicity, low maintenance, durability, availability, and cost. The stained underside of two-inch by eight-inch tongue-and-groove redwood roof decking forms the ceiling. The interior wall finishes were deep-toned Philippine mahogany veneer paneling. Concrete slab on-grade foundations with radiant heating were covered with 12-inch asphalt tile flooring. Many models feature the popular built-in breakfast bar, which can swing into the multipurpose room and extend out into a long dining table.

Floor Plan Models

While the Eichler sales brochures for Unit 1, Unit 2, and Unit 3 include drawings of nine different floor plan models, the Fairglen Additions include thirteen floor plan models. The plot plan included in the Eichler sales brochure for Unit 1, City of San Jose building permits, and the field survey indicate eight models in Unit 1 (SJ-E31, SJ-773, SJ-1003, SJ-1004, SJ-1103, SJ-1114, SJ -1163, and SJ-1184); two models in Unit 2 (SJ-24 and SJ-1534); and three models in Unit 3 (SJ-4, SJ-4D, and SJ-1504).

Unit 1

PLAN SJ-E31 (4 bedrooms, 2 baths, multi-purpose room, hobby area, atrium, 2-car garage)

This model is overall square in plan with a central atrium. The flush front entry to the atrium is located between the garage and the bedroom wing. The bedroom wing flanks one entire side of the plan, with the master bedroom and living/dining areas opening onto the patio (terrace) across the back.

Similar to Eichler Homes E-111 floor plan model, built in Palo Alto, Terra Linda, and the San Mateo Highlands, this model has an eight-foot high level roof. The garage with clerestory windows above a supporting cross-beam on one side; and bedrooms, punctuated with thin floor-to-ceiling windows on the other; flank the flush entry door, with clerestory and sidelight. Some models include concrete block siding on the bedroom side of the front elevation. The projecting beams are oriented front to back, creating deep shaded overhangs, left uncovered, or covered with lattice along the front elevation, depending on the model.

PLAN SJ-773 (3 bedrooms, 2 baths, multi-purpose room, courtyard, 2-car garage)

This model is overall square in plan with a central atrium. The recessed front entry is located between the garage and the bedroom wing. The bedroom wing flanks one entire side of the plan, with the master bedroom and living/dining areas opening onto the patio (terrace) across the back.

This Palo Alto floor plan model, specifically requested by the original owner, has a low (2:12) sloped gable roof over the garage and entry, meeting an eight-foot level roof. The garage with clerestory windows above a supporting cross-beam on one side and bedroom wing flank the covered recessed entry. The exposed beams are oriented front to back, creating deep shaded overhangs.

PLAN SJ-1003 (3 bedrooms, 2 baths, multi-purpose room, courtyard, 2-car garage)

This model is overall L-shaped in plan, with a private front courtyard in the corner between the main bar of the house and the projecting garage. The recessed front entry is located between the garage and the bedroom wing. The bedroom wing flanks the short side of the plan, with two bedrooms on the front courtyard, and the master bedroom and living/dining areas opening onto the patio (terrace) across the back.

This model has an eight-foot high level roof. The garage with a supporting cross-beam on one side; and bedrooms, set back beyond the courtyard, on the other; flank the entry door, with clerestory and sidelight. The exposed beams are oriented side to side over the garage and front to back over the house, creating deep shaded overhangs.

PLAN SJ-1004 (4 bedrooms, 2 baths, multi-purpose room, courtyard, 2-car garage)

This model is overall L-shaped in plan, with a private front courtyard in the corner of the L between the main bar of the living/dining areas and the bedroom/garage wing of the house. The recessed sliding glass aluminum entry door is located in the corner of the L between the living areas and the bedroom wing. The living/dining areas open onto both the front courtyard and, along with the master bedroom suite, onto the patio (terrace) across the back.

This model has an eight-foot high level roof. The garage with clerestory windows above a supporting cross-beam in front of the bedroom wing on one side; and the living/dining areas, set back beyond the courtyard, on the other; flank the recessed entry door. The exposed beams are oriented front to back, creating deep shaded overhangs.

PLAN SJ-1103 (4 bedrooms, 2 baths, multi-purpose room, atrium, carport, garage)

This model is overall square in plan with a central atrium. The flush front entry to the atrium is located between the garage and the bedroom wing. The bedroom wing flanks one entire side of

Some models include concrete block siding on the bedroom side of the front elevation. The projecting beams are oriented front to back, creating deep shaded overhangs.

PLAN SJ-1114 (4 bedrooms, 2 baths, multi-purpose room, atrium, carport, garage)

This model is overall square in plan with a central atrium and projecting garage/carport. The front entry to the atrium is located between the garage/living and the bedroom wing. The bedroom wing flanks one side of the plan, while the living/dining areas wrap the atrium on one side and open onto the patio (terrace) across the back, adjacent to the master bedroom suite.

This model has a low (2:12) sloped gable roof on the garage side of the house, meeting an eightfoot level roof on the bedroom side. One half of the gable roof covers the one-car garage, and a supporting cross-beam projects across to an exposed post, forming a combination of covered porch and carport. The garage on one side, post and bedrooms on the other, flank the front entry to the atrium. The exposed beams are oriented front to back, creating deep shaded overhangs.

PLAN SJ-1163 (4 bedrooms, 2 baths, 2-car garage)

This model is overall square in plan without a central atrium. The front entry is located between the garage and the bedroom wing. The bedroom wing flanks one entire side of the plan, with the master bedroom and living/dining areas opening onto the patio (terrace) across the back.

This model has a low (2:12) sloped gable roof over the entry and living area windows, meeting an eight-foot high level roof on either side. The majority of the gable roof covers the living area, with one side forming a shallow covered porch. The garage with a supporting cross-beam on one side; and bedrooms, with no street-facing window on the other; flank the entry door, with clerestory and sidelight. The projecting beams are oriented front to back, and project across the front and rear, creating deep shaded overhangs.

PLAN SJ-1184 (4 bedrooms, 2 baths, multi-purpose room, atrium, 2-car garage)

This model is overall T-shaped in plan with a central atrium and projecting garage. The front entry to the atrium is located between the master bedroom and the garage. The other bedroom wing, including the second bath with direct outside access, flanks the opposite side of the plan from the master bedroom, while the living/dining areas, accessed through the central atrium, open onto the patio (terrace) across the back.

and master bedroom flank the recessed entry to the atrium. The exposed beams are oriented front to back, creating deep shaded overhangs.

Unit 2

PLAN SJ-24 (4 bedrooms, 2 baths, multi-purpose room, courtyard, 2-car garage)

This model is overall L-shaped in plan, with a private front courtyard in the corner of the L between the living/dining areas and the bedroom/garage wing of the house. Some models included modern organic shaped concrete courtyard patios. The recessed front entry is located in the corner of the L between the living areas and the bedroom wing. The living/dining areas open onto both the front courtyard and, along with the master bedroom suite, onto the patio (terrace) across the back.

This model has an eight-foot high level roof. The garage with clerestory windows above a supporting cross-beam on one side; and the living/dining areas, set back beyond the fenced courtyard on the other; flank the recessed entry door. The exposed beams are oriented front to back, creating deep shaded overhangs.

PLAN SJ-1534 (4 bedrooms, 2 baths, multi-purpose room, atrium, carport, garage)

This model is overall square in plan with a central atrium and projecting garage/carport. The front entry to the atrium is located between the garage/living and the bedroom wing. The bedroom wing, including the second bath with direct outside access, flanks one entire side of the plan, while the living/dining areas wrap the atrium on one side and open onto the patio (terrace) across the back, adjacent to the master bedroom suite across the back.

This model has a low (2:12) sloped gable roof on the garage side of the house, meeting an eightfoot level roof on bedroom side. One half of the gable roof covers the one-car garage, and a supporting cross-beam projects across to an exposed post, forming a combination of covered porch and carport. The garage on one side and post on the other flank the front entry to the atrium. An open skylight in the roof allows a unique light to fall onto the entry. The exposed beams are oriented front to back, creating deep shaded overhangs.

Unit 3

PLAN SJ-4 (4 bedrooms, 2 baths, multi-purpose room, hobby area, atrium, 2-car garage)

This model is overall square in plan with a central atrium. The flush front entry to the atrium is located between the garage and the bedroom wing. The bedroom wing, including the second bath with direct outside access, flanks one entire side of the plan, with the master bedroom and living/dining areas opening onto the patio (terrace) across the back, with the kitchen opening directly onto a separate smaller rear patio niche.

This model has an eight-foot high level roof, and a raised ten-foot high level roof with clerestory windows over the living and dining areas. The garage with clerestory windows above a supporting cross-beam on one side; and bedrooms, with either vertical wood or shingle siding and clerestory windows, framed by thin floor-to-ceiling windows on the other; flank the flush entry door, with clerestory and sidelight. The projecting beams are oriented front to back, and project across the front and rear, creating deep shaded overhangs.

The garage on one side and post on the other flank the front entry to the atrium. The exposed beams are oriented front to back, creating deep shaded overhangs.

Alterations

Alterations to the subdivision design features consist primarily of replacement of street trees and concrete sidewalk sections over time due to deterioration. Primary alterations to individual homes include infill of carports and garages, and addition of sloped (4:12) roofs and second stories. Secondary alterations include changes to doors, windows, siding, chimneys, fencing, and landscaping features.

Integrity

All of the homes were built within the period of significance of the subdivision. The majority of the altered homes retain the primary features of the original home designs, and all of the alterations are either compatible or reversible. 204 out of the 218 homes retain the architectural integrity of the original Eichler design: either through the retention of all primary features, the installation of compatible alterations, or a combination of both. At least three of the homes have suffered substantial fire damage but have been restored to their original designs. In cases where infill of carports and garages, or the addition of sloped roofs and second stories has continued overall to retain the one-story massing and dominant flat or low-sloped roofs with deep overhangs over exposed beams, the homes continue to convey their associations with the original Eichler development. In cases where these additions have resulted in the overall loss of the one-story massing and dominant roof forms and materials, the homes have been determined to be non-contributors. However, these additions have also been determined to be reversible. None of the homes have been replaced or so transformed with a completely non-contextual architectural style, that the overall integrity of the district has been compromised, and the Fairglen Additions subdivision retains all seven aspects of integrity.

County and State

• Location: The Fairglen Additions subdivision remains on its original site. It therefore retains integrity of location.

• Design: The Fairglen Additions subdivision retains significant character-defining features of its original Mid-century Modern site and architecture design by master architects Jones and Emmons, Anshen and Allen, and Claude Oakland. The site design features of the subdivision include winding street layouts and building orientations, detached sidewalks with planting strips and trees, and streetlights. The architectural features of the homes include: flat or low-pitched roof forms; open plans with atrium or courtyard; minimal facades with integrated garages and vertical-grooved custom redwood plywood exterior siding; exposed post-and-beam construction with deep overhangs; large expanses of glazing and clerestory windows; and brick fireplaces. It therefore retains integrity of design.

• Setting: The area around the Fairglen Additions subdivision retains its historic character of similarly-sized single-family subdivisions, largely built within the same time-frame. The homes retain their location within the subdivision. The Fairglen Additions subdivision therefore retains integrity of setting.

• Materials: The Fairglen Additions subdivision retains the majority of its historic materials, including: above-ground wood power poles and power lines along rear property lines; detached concrete sidewalks with park strips, street trees, and steel street lights; square concrete curbs with driveway cuts, and gutters with storm drains; and front yards graded down to sidewalks. Although there have been some alterations to individual homes over time, the Fairglen Additions homes retain the majority of their historic materials including: post-and-beam construction; concrete slab foundations; vertical-grooved custom redwood plywood siding; large fixed floor-to-ceiling and clerestory plate-glass and sliding aluminum doors and windows; and brick fireplaces. It therefore retains integrity of materials.

• Workmanship: The Fairglen Additions subdivision retains the physical evidence of period construction techniques that reflect its Mid-century Modern design, including: post and beam construction with vertical-groove redwood plywood siding and exposed tongue-and-groove ceilings, flat or low-sloped roofing, and divided-concrete work. It therefore retains integrity of workmanship.

• Feeling: The Fairglen Additions subdivision retains integrity of location, design, setting, materials, and workmanship, and continues to convey its historic postwar development patterns and Mid-century Modern design. It therefore retains integrity of feeling.

• Association: The property retains integrity of location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, and feeling, which combine to convey its original Mid-century Modern design by master architects Jones and Emmons, Anshen and Allen, and Claude Oakland; and its construction by master builder Joseph Eichler. Therefore, it retains integrity of association.

Statement of Significance Summary Paragraph (Provide a summary paragraph that includes level of significance, applicable criteria, justification for the period of significance, and any applicable criteria considerations.)

The Fairglen Additions subdivision is eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places at the local level of significance under criterion C. The subdivision represents a significant and distinguishable mid-century modern postwar housing tract by master builder Joseph Eichler. While the houses may not meet criterion C individually, in its totality, the subdivision is a distinctive example of its type and conveys a sense of its time. It meets the registration requirements outlined in the Multiple Property Documentation Form "Housing Tracts of Joseph Eichler in San Jose, 1952-1963;" Themes: Postwar Housing Tract Development in San Jose, 1952-1963; and Modern Residential Architecture in San Jose, 1952-1963. It exemplifies the tenets of the modern movement and the important characteristics of Eichler's developments from this period; displays the significant character-defining features of postwar housing tract development and modern residential architecture in San Jose; dates from the period of significance; exhibits quality of design; and retains all seven factors of integrity. The period of significance is 1959-1961, reflecting the dates within which the subdivision was constructed.

Narrative Statement of Significance (Provide at least one paragraph for each area of significance.)

The Fairglen Additions subdivision, consisting of 218 single-family homes, was completed in 1961. It is located on former orchard land, to the southwest of San Jose's early Willow Glen neighborhood. The Fairglen Additions subdivision is significant as an intact representation of the Housing Tracts of Joseph Eichler in San Jose, built at the height of the firm's productivity and renown. Standing at the central section of Eichler's Fairglen development in Willow Glen, it is the largest Eichler housing tract in San Jose.

Postwar Housing Tract Development

The San Francisco Bay Area was the gateway to World War II's Pacific Theater from 1941 to 1945. The large naval air station at Moffett Field was a center of war-time activity, and thousands of military personnel were brought to the area for training and processing. Many of them would return later to seek work and raise families.

William Hewlett and David Packard, two of engineering Professor Frederick Terman's students at Stanford, developed electronic test equipment in a Palo Alto garage in 1939, and during World War II, this small company obtained government contracts and continued to grow during the post-war period. Other local companies had reconstituted themselves during the war; Food Machinery Company (now United Defense) became a tank and weapon builder, and Joshua Hendy Iron Works (later taken over by Westinghouse) built steam engines and other military equipment for the Liberty ships.

Soon after World War II, the Santa Clara County business community had launched an active campaign to attract new non-agricultural related industries to the area. Early industries that established plants in the county included Chicago's International Mineral and Chemical Corporation's Accent plant in 1946, the General Electric plant in the early 1950s, and International Business Machines (IBM) in 1953 who built a sprawling campus in South San José. IBM had established a punch-card plant in San José in the 1930s, and in 1949 their new research center in Downtown San José began the development of the disk drive.

In 1954, the Stanford Industrial Park was established attracting the companies of Hewlett-Packard and the Varian brothers, also students of Terman, as well as Sylvania, Philco-Ford, General Electric, and Lockheed's research laboratory as well as the large Lockheed plant in Sunnyvale. These companies formed the nucleus of what became known as Silicon Valley.

The Fairglen Additions housing tract was developed during this early transitional period of industrialization and suburbanization in the Santa Clara Valley. The housing tract reflects the new reliance upon the automobile to get to work, as rural roads were widened into intercity transportation routes, expressways and freeways were being planning to crisscross the valley, and subdivisions were located on former orchard lands with access to new industrial employment centers, rather than the city center.

Between 1940 and 1950, as California's population increased by 53%, 850,000 veterans chose to return to live in the state after the war. The agricultural lands of Santa Clara Valley presented unique development opportunities for San José, which City Manager Dutch Hamann did not fail to recognize. Under the City's pro-growth leadership implemented by Hamann's aggressive annexation work, the City experienced phenomenal growth - from 95,000 in 1950 to over 500,000 in 1975, with the area of the City spreading at a quick pace, from 17 square miles in 1950 to 67 square miles in 1960. In 1958, building permits were issued for 5,722 single-family units, and the following year Eichler's Fairglen Additions subdivision was one of 150 subdivisions under construction. With annexation and construction of 218 homes, well over the 30- or 40-home subdivisions more typical of the earlier postwar period, the Fairglen Additions reflect the rapid pace of the residential development as San José found itself ideally placed for manufacturing and relatively affordable housing development at the southern edge of the San Francisco Peninsula.

Following Eichler's strategy of building on the edge of a popular area, the Fairglen Additions sales brochures indicate proximity to the infrastructure supporting the area's expansion: the schools, Valley Fair Shopping Center, General Electric Plant, San Jose Municipal Airport, County Health Center Hospital, and new freeway (Interstate 280). Within this context the brochures promise that in San Jose's Willow Glen Area buyers will find "the pleasures of country living – without sacrificing the comforts of an established community."

As testament to the success of the Fairglen Additions in creating its own sense of community, in 1962, the year after completion, the new neighbors created their own annual event dubbed "Art in Our Alley," that evolved into the Fairglen Art Festival. For 33 years the festival drew thousands of visitors from around the Bay Area, featuring talented local painters, craftspeople, weavers, and entertainers. Once the event grew to a scale that was no longer manageable, it closed with the last festival in 1995, replaced by annual smaller-scaled block parties beginning in 2001. The block parties continue today as a means to maintaining spirit in the Fairglen Additions neighborhood for those Eichler enthusiasts who celebrate their sense of place and community.

Mid-Century Modern Residential Architecture

Prior to World War II, Southern California architects Rudolph Schindler and Richard Neutra brought a European modernist aesthetic to the warm climates found in the southern part of the state. Between 1945 and 1962, editor John Entenza sponsored Arts & Architecture magazine's Case Study Program, featuring modern residential architecture for the California lifestyle. The Case Study Houses took advantage of California's weather and culture to further blur the distinction between indoor and outdoor, and formal and informal spaces. The primary living areas opened onto private gardens, which were clearly delineated and protected from the street. Case Study Houses presented environments in which the work of modern furniture and landscape designers was also featured.

In northern California, architect William Wurster, who later became Dean of the College of Environmental Design at the University of California, Berkeley, further incorporated natural materials, vernacular forms, and simply expressed construction principles, such as open tongueand-groove ceilings on exposed post-and-beam construction carrying low-sloped roofs, to create what is now known as the "Second Bay Tradition" style.

By 1959, Eichler Homes had constructed over 5,000 homes, including developments in Sunnyvale, Menlo Park, Redwood City, and Palo Alto. At the time the of the opening of the San Jose Fairglen Additions subdivision, Joseph Eichler explained that after months of effort by Jones and Emmons, AIA, and Anshen and Allen, AIA, "we believe this is the first time in the history of Northern California – or the entire nation, that a major homebuilder has been able to develop six completely different floor-plan concepts, each individually tailored in the pattern of living for a specific family." Each of the concepts emphasized modest-scaled homes exhibiting the Mid-Century Modern elements of exposed post-and-beam construction carrying low-sloped roofs, minimal facades, and open plans with indoor-outdoor relationships.

Verbal Boundary Description (Describe the boundaries of the property.) The boundary for the proposed district includes all of the properties listed in the attached table within Section: Additional Documentation (listed by both street address and County Assessor's parcel numbers), San Jose, California 95125. For a visual image of these boundaries see the accompanying map entitled "Fairglen Additions – units 1, 2, 3 Sketchmap", also located in Section: Additional Documentation. The detailed district boundaries are described as follows:

Beginning at the southwesterly corner of Booksin and Curtner Avenues and proceeding southerly along the easterly street frontages of the properties on the west side of Booksin Avenue to the southeasterly corner of 2437 Booksin Avenue. Then proceeding westerly along the south property lines of 2437 Booksin Avenue and 2435 Fairglen Drive and crossing Fairglen Drive to the southeasterly corner of 1622 Andalusia Way. Proceeding then westerly along the rear lot lines of the properties on the south side of Andalusia Way to Fairdell Drive and then across Fairdell Drive and across the south side properties lines of 2503 Fairdell Drive and 2582 Briarwood Drive. Then proceeding northerly along the westerly street frontages of the properties on the east side of Briarwood Drive to the northwest corner of 1679 Fairwood Avenue, and then easterly along the rear properties lines of the properties on the north side of Fairwood Avenue to the northeast corner of 1661 Fairwood Avenue. Proceeding northerly along the rear property lines of the properties on the west side of Fairhill Lane to Curtner Avenue, then easterly along the south side of Curtner Avenue to the point of beginning.

Boundary Justification (Explain why the boundaries were selected.)

The proposed boundary includes all of the properties that have or had resources historically associated with the Fairglen Additions Subdivision (Tracts 2238, 2239, and 2240), consisting of all 218 lots as recorded with the County of Santa Clara and then built upon from 1959-1961. The boundaries represent the historic boundaries of Fairglen Additions, developed by Eichler Homes.

Using the words "homebuilder" and "architect" in the same breath is the exception rather than the rule; but then Joseph L. Eichler threw away the rulebook the day he ventured into the homebuilding field. Since then his forward ideas in home construction have set the pace for the entire industry. Not a man to stand still very long, Eichler has embarked on a new concept by which the advantages of row housing are merged with contemporary apartment living. What led up to that development is told in this article by May B. Hipshman, A/W's Northern California editor.

Fairglen Additions (Housing Tracts of Joseph Eichler in San Jose, California, 1952-1963 MPS) San Jose, Santa Clara County, California National Register of Historic Places Staff Report

Fairglen Additions, located in San Jose, is nominated under cover of the San Jose Housing Tracts of Joseph Eichler in San Jose, California, 1952-1963 MPS. Located in the Willow Glen neighborhood of San Jose, the subdivision consists of 218 homes constructed between 1959 and 1961, designed by the architectural firms of Anshen and Allen, Jones and Emmons & Associates, and Claude Oakland & Associates. The district currently includes 204 contributors and 14 non-contributors. Based on repeated use of common plans, Unit 1 features eight different models of Eichler home, while Unit 2 featured two different models and Unit 3 featured three additional different models of home. The district is an example of the Modern Housing Tract property type and is eligible under Criterion C.

The San Jose Housing Tracts of Joseph Eichler in San Jose, California, 1952-1963 MPS and associated property were nominated by Sally Northoff Zarnowitz, a resident of the district. The MPS itself has received no letters of support or objection.

Fairglen Additons received eight letters of support, including one from the City of San Jose, a certified local government, and three notarized letters of objection. The applicant also provided a petition containing signatures from 131 property owners indicating their support for listing; there are a total of 218 property owners.

OHP staff recommends the State Historical Resources Commission approve the San Jose Housing Tracts of Joseph Eichler in San Jose, California, 1952-1963 Multiple Property Documentation Form and associated nomination for Fairglen Additions. Staff recommends the State Historic Preservation Officer approve the MPDF and associated nomination for forwarding to the National Park Service for listing on the National Register.

Dear Sir / Madam:

I hereby certify that I am the sole owner of 1654 Fairwood Ave, San Jose CA, 95125, which I purchased in April, 2000.

I object to having my home included in the National Register of Historic Places.

My home was extensively remodeled by the builder who took the original structure literally down to the studs and installed all modern windows, roof, cabinets, trim, etc. It was also enlarged by the builder. It bears virtually no resemblance to the original Eichler homes in the Fairglen district. My home is in no way historic.

Sincerely yours,

Stuart Bonnema

RE: National Register of Historic Places Nomination for Fairglen Additions (Historic District)

Dear Ms Polanco,

I, Anne Phillips DeRienzo, and I, Dominick Peter DeRienzo, are the sole owners of the privately owned property at 1663 Fairwood Avenue, San Jose, California. We are writing to inform you that we object strenuously to our property being placed on the National Register of Historic Places. Under no circumstance do we want our home placed on the National Register or any state or local historic registries.

We believe that there are no significant reasons or benefits to placing our property or any other of the properties included in the Fairglen Additions listed in your letter of November 28, 2018 onto the National Register.

Again, we do not want our property placed on the National Register of Historic Places or any other historic registry.

Dear Ms. Polanco:

This letter is in response to your letter dated November 28, 2018, in which you provided the City of San Jose with a 60-day review and comment period before the State Historical Resources Commission takes action on a National Register of Historic Places nomination of the Fairglen Additions (Historic District). On February 1, the State Historical Resources Commission voted unanimously to accepted the nomination and forward to the Keeper of the National Register.

On February 6, 2019, the San Jose Historic Landmarks Commission reviewed the nomination and voted unanimously in support. On March 12, 2019, the San Jose City Council considered the comments of the Historic Landmarks Commission and voted unanimously to support the nomination. There were no persons at either meeting who spoke against the nomination.

Feel free to email me at Juliet.Arroyo@SanJoseCa.gov or call me at (408) 535-7847 with any questions or comments.

Sincerely Juliet M. Arrovo Historic Preservation Officer

Re: National Register of Historic Places Nomination for Fairglen Additions (Historic District)

We bought our home in 1970 and raised our family here. We are now enjoying grandchildren.

We would like to subscribe to the preservation of the Fairglen Eichler neighborhood. We see this as a way to preserve the uniqueness of the neighborhood. This neighborhood is unique not only in its architecture, but in its spirit. We hope that this would continue.

Please consider this letter as an endorsement for a listing of the Fairglen Eichler neighborhood in the National Register of Historic places.

RE: National Register of Historic Places Nomination for Fairglen Additions (Historic District)

We have lived in the Fairglen Eichler neighborhood since 1972 and have owned our home since 1977.

By subscribing to the mission of Eichler preservation in recognizing and protecting the architectural character of the Fairglen Eichler neighborhood, we celebrate the uniqueness of the Eichler aesthetic and how it creates a distinctive sense of community.

We wholeheartedly endorse listing of the Fairglen Eichler neighborhood in the National Register of Historic Places.

Subject: Fairglen Eichler Historic Preservation

Dear Julianne,

We wanted to take a moment to write and pledge our support to the cause of the historic preservation of our Eichler neighborhood at Fairglen in San Jose. My wife and I moved into our Eichler during the Spring of 1987, after having been introduced to the dramatic architecture of these homes by a friend of ours who owned one in Foster City, California. As newlywed's, Deanna and I could not afford that particular neighborhood, so we set out to find a more affordable location.

We found the Fairglen neighborhood here in San Jose, and were fortunate to be able to buy this Eichler home that we have lived in ever since. We were taken by the simplistic beauty and functionality of the models found here, and once settled in, were delighted to learn that there was a very rich culture of Eichler living. We found that most of our neighbors had come to live in their Eichler's for the same reason as we had – the postmodern, simple, elegant design, that is celebrated by these homes. We shared our ideas for paint colors and landscaping, and enjoyed the fellowship of our friends and neighbors who appreciated the Eicher aesthetic. There simply are no other homes that compare.

Thank you for taking a moment to consider our thoughts.

With Best Regards,

Greetings,

My name is Walter Bugna and I reside at 1609 Fairlawn Avenue, San Jose, CA part of the Fairglen Eichlers. I want to go on record once again to say that I am in favor of what the Fairglen Eichlers Committee is attempting to do and that is 'to preserve the preservation process' of our Eichler Community.

It is very important to me as an owner to protect the character of our neighborhood and to not allow 'reckless' remodels to this fine neighborhood.

I can be reached by calling 408 799 3004 for info or questions. Thank you for assistance in this matter.

Dear Juliann Please find b	e, elow my letter in support of our Eichler tract -
Hello

My name is Jan Horton and my husband and I have lived at 2326 Fairglen Drive, San Jose, in the Fairwood Eichler Division since Feb 1986.

In 1959, my parents purchased their NEW Eichler in the Sunnyvale Fairbrae Tract – I was 5 years old. They were fortunate to be original buyers, and were able to specify their Luan Mahogany walls in the grey finish, the particular flooring they wanted, and the exterior paint finish. These finishes were chosen from the palette offered by Eichler Homes.

My Father was an Architect, educated at Cranbrook Institute of Arts in Michigan. He lived and studied with Eliel Saarinen and was highly influenced by Frank Lloyd Wright, Mies van der Rohe in the Minimalist Design Theory. The concept and design was in keeping with these influences. Growing up, my Mom and Dad's favorite saying was, "Keep it simple stupid" – a meme later made famous as Silicon Valley grew around them.

Growing up in an Eichler for most of my life, I have also watched sadly as those who did not understand the concept, nor appreciate the vision of Joseph Eichler, made a complete mockery of the precious niche that this design defines. Anyone who has any idea of contemporary design – if you tell them that you live in an Eichler - immediately knows what you are talking about, and often times say – "I wish I could live in one – they are so good looking and functional – So Mid Century!" My older brother lives in an Eichler in Orange, CA, purchased in 2004 in the Fair

Meadows Tract. They too, along with their community, are hoping to protect the design aesthetic they love. He tells me that two other tracts are also making progress towards preservation with the complete support of the City of Orange.

In conclusion – I don't believe there is a more dedicated community of appreciation of home design than those who are privileged to own Eichler homes. It is our sincere hope that these amazing, beautiful and functional homes can be protected to ensure that future generations will be allowed to enjoy them and love them as we have.

Kind Regards,
Jan Horton
I look forward to positive results! Jan

NAT. REGISTER OF HISTORIC PLACES INATIONAL FARX SERVICE

Joy Beasley Keeper of the National Register National Register of Historic Places 1849 C St., NW Room 3316 Washington, D.C. 20240

Subject: Fairglen Additions Housing Tracts of Joseph Eichler in San Jose, 1952-1963 MPS San Jose, Santa Clara County, California National Register of Historic Places

Dear Ms. Beasley:

The enclosed disk contains the true and correct copy of the nomination for Fairglen Additions, located in San Jose, Santa Clara County, to the National Register of Historic Places. On February 1, 2019, the State Historical Resources Commission unanimously approved the cover document and found the property eligible for the National Register under Criterion C at the local level of significance, with a period of significance of 1959-1961. The property is nominated under the cover of the Housing Tracts of Joseph Eichler in San Jose, 1939-1955 Multiple Property Document, under the Modern Residential Architecture in San Jose, 1952-1963 property type.

The nomination was submitted by a resident of Fairglen, Sally Notthoff Zarnowitz. Nine letters of support (including one from the City of San Jose), three notarized letters of objection, and a petition of support signed by 131 property owners, were received. If you have any questions regarding this nomination, please contact William Burg of my staff at 916-445-7004.

Sincerely,

Jฬlianne Polanco State Historic Preservation Officer
