DESCRIBE THE P	RESENT AND OR	IGINAL (if kno	wn) PHYSIC	LAPPEA	RANCE

Centre's Administration Building, Old Centre, is believed to be the oldest college building in the south, west of the Alleghenies, to be in continuous use. Erected in 1819 and restored in 1929, it now houses the offices of the major administrative personnel of the College. The structure as it stands today is rectangular in plan comprised of two additions about the original red bricked two story rectangular edifice.

The original structure built in 1819 was a very simple two story rectangular building of the Georgian style. It was characterized by a large eliptically fan lighted central portal flanked by double hung twelve pane sash. This impressive portal is located on the east front of the building.

The roof of the original building is gabled with its ridge line extending in a north-south direction. The walls are constructed of red brick having been laid in a flemish bond. There are four symetrically spaced chimneys, two at each gable end.

The first addition occurred prior to the Civil War and consists of two story wings added to the north and south ends of the original building. The ends of the wings terminate in hipped roofs. The addition's east facade is in line with the east facade of the original structure; however, its width does not match that of the original structure. The brick is laid in a running bond with a flemish header every fifth course.

Also during the construction of the first addition impressive porticos were added to the east and west fronts of the original building dramatically changing the character of the entire structure. What had been a fairly modest Georgian building became an imposing Greek Revival structure with somewhat monumental scale.

The east facade is dominated by a central hexastyle doric portico. The shafts of the columns are of stuccoed brick. The plinths are sand stone and the stylobate is limestone. The frieze consists of triglyphs, regulea and guttae. The frieze and the architrave are extended from the portico onto the wings and are supported by pilastered brick columns.

The west facade is dominated by a central tetrastyle doric portico and is similar to the east portico except for the plinths, which are not used, creating a pure doric order column; however, the columns are arranged in pairs which are not pure Greek Revival but Renaissance influence.

The north facade of the first addition opens onto a brick walled courtyard which joins to a cluster of early structures called the "Quadrangle".

RELEVED All rectangular masonry openings are spanned by "jack arches".

NATIOTHE second addition occurred in 1930 and consists of one story structures with low pitch REGISTHED This addition occurred on the north and south sides and is flush in line with

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The construction of the original building of Centre College has considerable historical significance. It was devised by a Board of Trustees appointed by the Legislature at the time the charter of the College was issued. The list of first trustees is a priceless one, made up as it was of important Kentuckians of the first independent generation. The Chairman was the greatly esteemed Isaac Shelby, the first Governor of the Commonwealth. The Board was composed of John Boyle, Frankfort; William Owsley, Frankfort; Thomas Montgomery, Lincoln County; Samuel McKee, Lancaster; William Craig, Boyle County physician; Thomas Clelland McAfee, Boyle County; Barnabus McHenry, distinguished Methodist minister of Washington County; Samuel Nelson, Danville; Nathan Hall, Springfield; Joshua Fry, Danville; Ephraim McDowell, to this day the most distinguished man who ever lived in Danville; Jeremiah Briscoe, Mercer County; Jeremiah Fisher, Boyle County; Joseph McDowell, Boyle County; and Edward Worthington.

Centre College is fortunate in the possession of the first minute book of the Board of Trustees. It extends from January 21, 1819, to July 1, 1821. Among other things, it throws light on the building of Old Centre. Early in the year 1819, the minute book indicates provision for the appointment of a committee of the Board to arrange for the construction of the building. From an entry made on April 3, 1819, it is clear that a contract had been made by the trustees' committee with Mr. R. D. Crutchfield and Mr. Robert Russell to build the building and that the contract was approved by the Board. On February 15, 1819, the Board appropriated $10,000 for "the erection of an edifice" for the use of the recently chartered College. The money was to come from the sale of public lands, presumably from the grants made in the eighteenth century by the Virginia Legislature. David Cowan was appointed to collect these payments and was permitted to accept notes of hand in payment. In 1820, the building was accepted by the Board as complete and the Board proceeded to make the building available to the College. This building, of course, has been the central focus of the Centre College campus throughout its history and, as a consequence, all of the Centre alumni who have so well distinguished themselves and brought honor to the College have received all or a part of their education in this building. Among these distinguished graduates have been two Vice-Presidents of the United States, one Chief Justice and one Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, eight United States Senators and forty-two Congressmen, eleven Governors of the states and thirty-one college presidents. In the most recent statistical survey of "Who's Who in America," Centre College ranked first among the west facade of the original structure, which completes the rectangular plan of the whole building. The brick bond style is common running bond. The addition is typical of its era, and no attempt was made to articulate the design to compliment the existing building.

The plan is symmetrical about a north-south axis with the central portal opening into a central foyer running in an east-west direction through the entire width of the building. A stair is located at the west end of the foyer and provides the only means of access to the second floor areas.

The original structure has two large spaces on each floor flanking the central foyer on either side. The additions extended this flanking space and are presently partitioned into small offices.

Interior walls are simple, consisting mainly of painted plaster. The woodwork is very simple, done showing no great concern for ornamentation that is sometimes found in the Georgian or Greek Revival periods of architecture in Kentucky

The ground floors are random width wood planking. The upper level floors are narrow uniform width wood planks.

8 Statement of Significance

the nation's private co-educational liberal arts colleges in the percentage of its alumni listed.

Not only have the graduates of Centre College distinguished themselves, the College has played a significant role in southern and national higher education. Centre was the first Kentucky college to use the "Carnegie Unit" in admissions and was a leader in developing its use in the South. Centre was one of the founding members of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and the first Kentucky college to become a member of the College Entrance Examination Board. More recently Centre and Vanderbilt University have taken the lead in developing the Southern Conference of Colleges and Universities, a consortium of nine leading Southern institutions. Centre is one of two Kentucky institutions to shelter a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa and very early participated in the development of Omicron Delta Kappa, anational leadership fraternity for men.

As can readily be seen, from its very inception, this building has had an influence on the lives of many of the most distinguished citizens of this Commonwealth and, in fact, of the United States. It has been a building which is a very vital part of an institution that has been a leader in Southern and national higher education. The building has been in continuous service since the day it was built and continues today as the principal administrative building of Centre College of Kentucky.

7 Description

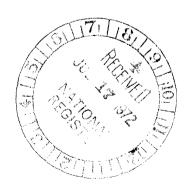

the west facade of the original structure, which completes the rectangular plan of the whole building. The brick bond style is common running bond. The addition is typical of its era, and no attempt was made to articulate the design to compliment the existing building.

The plan is symmetrical about a north-south axis with the central portal opening into a central foyer running in an east-west direction through the entire width of the building. A stair is located at the west end of the foyer and provides the only means of access to the second floor areas.

The original structure has two large spaces on each floor flanking the central foyer on either side. The additions extended this flanking space and are presently partitioned into small offices.

Interior walls are simple, consisting mainly of painted plaster. The woodwork is very simple, done showing no great concern for ornamentation that is sometimes found in the Georgian or Greek Revival periods of architecture in Kentucky

The ground floors are random width wood planking. The upper level floors are narrow uniform width wood planks.

8 Statement of Significance

the nation's private co-educational liberal arts colleges in the percentage of its alumni listed.

Not only have the graduates of Centre College distinguished themselves, the College has played a significant role in southern and national higher education. Centre was the first Kentucky college to use the "Carnegie Unit" in admissions and was a leader in developing its use in the South. Centre was one of the founding members of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and the first Kentucky college to become a member of the College Entrance Examination Board. More recently Centre and Vanderbilt University have taken the lead in developing the Southern Conference of Colleges and Universities, a consortium of nine leading Southern institutions. Centre is one of two Kentucky institutions to shelter a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa and very early participated in the development of Omicron Delta Kappa, anational leadership fraternity for men.

As can readily be seen, from its very inception, this building has had an influence on the lives of many of the most distinguished citizens of this Commonwealth and, in fact, of the United States. It has been a building which is a very vital part of an institution that has been a leader in Southern and national higher education. The building has been in continuous service since the day it was built and continues today as the principal administrative building of Centre College of Kentucky.
