III. Physical description of property and historical significance

Description: This massive open dog trot house has an open passageway with a staircase, two rooms set on each side, and a rear wing. The upstairs central hall terminates in a massive pedimented balcony set as a single central dormer in the roof. The open end of the passageway is treated with four slender posts and a lower balustrade with scrollsaw ornamentation. This treatment is probably post Civil War. Original mantels remain on the interior. Structure is hewn.

Significance: This large dog trot house has an unusually large dog trot passageway, which has not been enclosed by subsequent construction. A surviving open dog trot is extremely rare in Louisiana. $(c_{on+in ued})$
