Since this two-story solid brick building was built in 1838 as a school, it has had a variety of tenants and performed many functions but it remains today much as it was originally. A perfectly simple exercise in the Classical Revival style, it is a massive cube (36.1' x 51.2') capped with a low-pitched gable roof. Instead of columns it has wide pilasters running from the foundation to a plain frieze of bricks forming a sort of entablature which serves visually to support the heavy box cornice at the eaves. Symmetry reigns throughout. The north and south facades each have four pilasters, nine windows and two doors. The east and west sides each have four pilasters. Each of the 15 windows is nine-over-nine and each is capped by a stone lintel. The north facade is now used as the main entrance but originally one entered from Perry Street on the west end under a semi-circular arched doorway with two major features: a large keystone and a now somewhat broken-up delicate fanlight. The original door with paned transome also survives.

Inside, each of the two floors are 35' x 33' with 12' ceilings. The stair hall is entered from the original west facade entrance. (In that section of the building a kitchen and restrooms have been added.) Each floor has two Federal style reeded mantlepieces on the east end where the inside chimneys rise from the foundation up through the roof. The floors are of matched wide pine as is the ceiling. Other original surviving woodwork is a wainscot and chair rail. (In addition fifteen "Hitchcock" type "fancy chairs" have survived with original painted masonic decorations.)

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (Include Personages, Dates, Events, Etc.)

The Gwinnett County Historical Society intends to buy from the Masons the Old Female Seminary and give it a chance to continue serving the community as it has since it was built in 1838. For over a hundred years the building's lower floor has been a sort of county civic center, performing the function of providing a dignified assembling space for indoor community activities. Built as a girls' school incorporated in 1837, Lawrenceville Masonic Lodge #131, in 1860, began to use the upper floor and for over 100 years they have had "peaceful possession." 1886 was the last year it was used as a female seminary and the last group to use the lower floor was "The Hi-Hope School for Retarded Children."

Erected by Daniel Killian who was one of the Trustees of the Female Seminary, this simple, rather masculine late-Federal, early Greek Revival structure resembles similar buildings throughout North Georgia. It has great significance for the town of Lawrenceville, the County Seat of Gwinnett County. It is the most imposing early building in the county. The Gwinnett County Historical Society is raising the necessary funds for its continued preservation and restoration.

OLD SEMINARY BUILDING OR OLD MASONIC LODGE LAWRENCEVILLE FEMALE SEMINARY BUILDING

Correction:

As a result of further research involving the newly found Minutes of the Lawrenceville Female Seminary, it has been established that the original building of 1838 was a wooden structure which burned in 1850 or 1851. The exact building date of the replacement occurred after 1854 Seminary trustees resolved to rebuild the Seminary of "wood - one story high and of the original size - with three rooms". At the same time they resolved to allow the Masons "to build a lodge room on the new building above the proposed. The lodge paying all the increased cost of the building in consequence thereof." The only conclusion one can draw is that the Masons were intimately involved in determining the earlier structure. Also the trustees and Masons evidently decided to use brick rather than wood.
