A black and white photograph of a classical building entrance. The central feature is a white door with a transom window above it and a decorative glass pattern in the lower half. The door is flanked by two windows with dark shutters. The entire entrance is framed by a decorative pediment and pilasters. A large column is visible on the left side of the frame. The number '261' is mounted on the wall to the right of the door.

261.
