Narrative Description (Describe the historic and current condition of the property on one or more continuation sheets.)

The Davidson Lake Shelter Cabin is a three-sided Adirondack style temporary shelter on the Admiralty Island Canoe Route that was constructed by Civilian Conservation Corps workers during the 1930s. It has a peeled log superstructure and shake walls and roof.

The structure is well-maintained, and its current appearance is similar to its original appearance. The sill logs have been replaced. Chainsaw cuts are visible on the replacements. Plywood shims were used to level the posts. The wall shakes are twenty inches long and abut vertically. None of the roof or wall shakes is original. Unlike many of the other shelter cabins on the canoe route, the front of the shelter does not have shakes protecting the ends of the horizontal poles used as nailers for the wall shakes. A painted box has been installed recently by the U.S. Forest Service to hold a visitors' register.

The natural context has not been changed since the shelter cabin was built. It overlooks Davidson Lake.

Narrative Statement of Significance (Explain the significance of the property on one or more continuation sheets.)

The Davidson Lake Shelter Cabin is a three-sided shelter built during the 1930s by the Civilian Conservation Corps as part of the Admiralty Island Canoe Route. It is a good example of a three-sided Adirondack style shelter built for public recreation during the 1930s. The natural environment is unchanged from the time of the shelter's construction. The shelter has been maintained with materials similar to the original and retains its integrity.

Verbal Boundary Description (Describe the boundaries of the property.)

The Davidson Lake Shelter Cabin is adjacent to a lake shore staging area and a trailhead, all within a circumscribed area of less than one acre in the SE 1/4 of the SE 1/4 of the SW 1/4 of Section 20, Township 49 South, Range 69 East, Copper River Meridian.

Boundary Justification (Explain why the boundaries were selected.)

The Davidson Lake Shelter Cabin has an obvious activity area arising from its function as a temporary stopping place on a recreational canoe route. The boundary encompasses the shelter cabin, lake shore staging area, and trailhead associated with the canoe route in the vicinity.
