This small two-story, two-room central chimney house of uncertain original ownership and date prior to 1800 is a well preserved vernacular Portsmouth dwelling of the late Georgian style. Sited with its gable end toward Deer Street, with its pedimented doorway on the western length of the house and raised upon a high field-stone foundation, the only alterations are replaced window sash within original openings and an added leanto ell continuing the length of the building. The lengthwise location of both house and ell on a narrow urban lot reflects a pattern of adapting typical rural architectural forms to the city house lot, common in Portsmouth before the rebuilding after 1813.

The triangular pediment and pilastered doorway, triple-run stairway and interior finish surviving in the house suggest a date in the last quarter of the eighteenth century.
