The Samuel Coles House is a 23 story brick structure ho! x 35'.

The front elevation (South) is Flemish bond with a drip course set at 2nd floor level. The foundation is of iron rock and sandstone. The house faces South-East.

Originally a pent roof extended along the front of the house; a block front porch was added in the twenties, and the pent roof removed. In 1968 the porch was removed and a new pent roof added.

The original front door opening was enlarged and moved several feet to the right(viewer facing the front of the house) and the fan light removed in the 19th century. This Victorian treatment has not been corrected yet.

On the first floor all the original window openings were reduced and Victorian 2 over 2 sashed installed. The owners have replaced four of the windows with 8 over 8 sashes also restoring openings to original dimensions.

The windows on the 2nd floor have been Victorianized. To date the owners have restored 5 windows to the original.

The floors on the 1st floor have been replaced over the past century with a variety of flooring. To date the owners have replaced all but one room with flooring taken from the attic or salvaged from period homes in the area. All flooring is yellow pine more often than not 5/4 thickness. All floors on the 2nd floor are original and in fine condition.

The original floor plan of the house consisted of four large rooms on the first floor. The front door opened into a large front room; you entered the rear rooms from door ways in each of the front rooms. The stair case to the second floor was in the center toward the rear of the house. This is now gone. The second floor was basically the same.

At the present time the floor plan is that of a "center hall colonial". The stair case located in the 1st and 2nd floor halls. To the best of our knowledge the stairs are of the Victorian era.

There were originally 8 fireplaces on the two floors. Being corner fireplaces only two chimneys are needed, one at either end of the house. Today because of a bay-window addition in the 1870s at one end of the house there are 6 fireplaces remaining. Four of the remaining fireplaces are in use and have been used every winter since 1958.

The celllar is a full 8'6" high with a brick floor and a large corner fireplace. The opening measures approximately 8'. This fireplace has not been opened yet.

Some interesting interior woodwork features are: a room end closet in an upstairs bedroom. The doors and exterior walls of the closet are of raised panel construction; the wood is red cedar which is still seen in the fields of South Jersey. Two 8 light transoms above the closet permit light to enter.

TATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

In 1740, Samuel Coles II purchased 268 acres of land from John Estaugh of Newton (now Audubon, N.J.) and constructed a 2½ story brick house approximately 1.5 miles South East of Kings Highway in Waterford Township. Today the road is still known by the original name; the official designation is county road 41.

At one point during the nineteenth century the large cellar of the house served as a local jail, the cells, leg irons and chains remaining until the 1940s.

The importance of the Coles House, we feel, is for its architecture. It is representative of an early South Jersey house owned by a family of some means. At the present time the house contains examples of local interior woodwork of the period salvaged from other old homes of similar age in the area. This woodwork has been incorporated in the house during our restoration.

7. Description

(Continuation Sheet) 1

(Number all entries) 1743 House

Period over mantles from demolished houses in the area have been set up as hall end panelling on the 2nd floor.

STATE

Every fireplace has its cuddy and, more often than not, the doors are gone. However, there are some fine examples of doors with hand hinges, and two doors with particularly fine butterfly hinges.

The attic or actually 3rd floor is unfinished. There is evidence of two dormers in the front of the house.

The initials S C M and the date 1743 appear in glazed brick on the South West elevation (side). The initials Samuel Coles, and his wife Mary.

The house today has all of the modern conveniences. A new oil heater was installed last winter. I might add that we as a family of six draw our water via pump of course from a thirty three foot dug well that has not failed us yet.

A new roof was installed in 1966.
