STATEMENT *order, Tuscan order columns at entrance/portico; centered roof dormer. The Schricker house is a distinguished local example of Georgian Revival by local architect Gustav Hanssen. Red brick walls form an effective backdrop for paired pilasters of the Ionic order that visually support an extremely wide cornice, the latter embellished with minute dentils. Somewhat unusual is the tripartite articulation at the facade achieved by slightly advancing the pedimented end bays. The main doorway features double doors framed by side lights and transom. It is sheltered by a balustraded porch whose tuscan columns on a high pedestal are a little too heavy for the surprisingly light quality of the facade. Note also that access to the porch deck is thorugh a round-arched screen of brick.
