Describe the present and original (if known) physical appearance

310 N. E. 99 Street, Miami Shores, is a two story Mediterranean Revival style structure built in a modified rectangular plan with small lateral masses. The main two story entry portion has a clay barrel tile cross gable roof. The front elevation follows this L-shaped roof configuration as the right portion of the facade is taken up by an entry portico on the ground level and is recessed above. A double arch opening is supported by a central column with a modified ionic capital and is reached by four steps. Behind, two sets of double French doors with arched transoms, corresponding with the openings in front, give access into the house. Above the portico, the recess in the front plane is taken up by a double row of clay barrel tiles. Three sets of casement windows open the second story above the entrance. To the left the front mass continues uninterrupted through both stories to terminate in the gable end of the cross gable roof. Smaller openings punctuate this mass on both stories. A chimney with a shed roof extends above the roof line on the west elevation of this mass. Attached to the west end is a small one story, gable-front mass. Below, a large double French door with an arched transom opens onto a small balcony. To the rear of the right elevation, a small one story mass projects from the main structure.

There is a one story garage at the rear of the property that is contemporary with the main structure.

Specific dates 1925 Builder/Architect Kiehnel and Elliott

Statement of Significance (in one paragraph)

The residence located at 310 N. E. 99 Street was built in 1925 as part of the Shoreland Company's development of Miami Shores. The house was designed by the architectural firm of Kiehnel and Elliott. It is a fine example of Mediterranean Revival style architecture.

The Shoreland Company House Number 19 is an outstanding example of the large, two story Mediterranean Revival style houses designed for Miami Shores by Kiehnel and Elliott for the Shoreland Company. The architectural firm of Kiehnel and Elliott, originally based in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, opened an office in Miami in 1917 for their northern clients who were building winter residences in South Florida. John B. Elliott remained in charge of the firm's Pittsburgh office, while Richard Kiehnel headed their Miami operation. In South Florida, Kiehnel and Elliott specialized in designing in the Mediterranean Revival style, developing methods by which buildings were made to appear weathered and aged like those after which they were inspired in the Mediterranean countries of Europe.

Kiehnel and Elliott designed both public buildings and private residences. Included among their credits in the Greater Miami area are the Scottish Rite Temple, the Seybold Office Building, both currently being proposed to the National Register, as well as Miami Senior High School and the Congregational Church of Coral Gables both listed in the National Register of Historic Places on June 5, 1986 and October 10, 1978, respectively. The two structures mentioned here are currently being proposed for listing in the National Register as well as local designation. Kiehnel and Elliott is also credited with the design of numerous residences for individuals as well as for several development companies, including the Miami Beach Improvement Company, the Alton Beach Realty Company and the Shoreland Company. Their Mediterranean Revival style residences in Miami Shores established the development's theme of "America's Mediterranean."

The original contract with the building contractor has survived and is included with this nomination. It gives an insight into the care and attention to design details that were taken in construction of homes for the Shoreland Company.
