STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Winchester House is a 160-room Victorian Mansion that was built and owned by Sarah L. Winchester (Mrs. William Wirt Winchester). It is a prime example of construction at its best but construction that was unrestricted, to say the least.

The history begins at the height of the Civil War when Sarah L. Pardee met and married William Wirt Winchester, the son of the manufacturer of the famous Winchester Repeating Rifle. They were married on September 30, 1862. They had one child, Annie Pardee, who died about a month after birth. (June 15, 1866-July 24, 1866). Then, about 15 years later, on March 7, 1881, her husband died.¹

Mrs. Winchester was deeply upset at these deaths, and seems to have consulted a spiritualistic medium who told her that the reason for her husband's and daughter's deaths was that the victims who had been killed by the rifles her family had and was still manufacturing, were seeking their revenge by taking her husband's and daughter's lives. Further, they had placed a curse on Mrs. Winchester stating that if she wished to continue to live, she must appease them by moving out west and continusouly, without ceasing, build a home for them night and day.²

She then did move out west and settled in what is now San Jose, California, purchasing an eight room farmhouse from a Dr. Caldwell. She then began her continuous construction operations in 1884.³

With a great deal of money and very few responsibilities, she satisfied her every whim and arrant notion in her uninterrupted building operations. She had no master plan for a house and according to her carpenters, built whenever, wherever and howsoever she pleased. As a result of the constant building, tearing down and remodeling, her mansion spread out over the southeast section of her 162-acre estate. She built steadily until her death on September 5, 1922.

The Winchester House is the only and, therefore, most significant of a type in its unique structure. Although it is basically Victorian, the structure has overtones of a midwestern or eastern Victorian home with its mixture of shingles, sidings, bric-a-brac, cornices and appurtenances which show traces of definite eastern influence in design not found in local craftsmen.

It is an outstanding example of Victorian construction, complete with the inevitable accidents of unrestricted and unchecked growth.

Two other areas of significance are: 1) the number of people who have visited the house. In over 50 years of business, we estimate that approximately 3,000,000 people, to date, have taken a tour and that more than 150,000 visited us last year, and 2) we have already been recognized as an Historical Landmark (#868) by the State of California.
