Description

The Greene Booth House is a one-and-one-half story, structural brick wall Craftsman residence. Its carport and wrap-around front porch conceals the virtually square plan of the house covered by the gable roof. It contains two interior, brick chimneys, one at the rear of the central, front gable dormer and the other rising from the rear slope of the gable roof, just to the east of the dormer on this elevation. It features a composition shingle roof, brick walls and a continuous cast concrete foundation.

The southern or front elevation is composed of a gable roof carport at the southwest corner and a shed roof wrap-around porch which extends to the eastern elevation covering the entire wall. The porch is supported on sloping wood columns and brick piers, and a low brick wall connects the piers on either side of an entrance stair with brick stoops which provides access to a raised concrete patio. The house wall behind is fenestrated with two tripartite wood sash windows flanking a central entrance. The tripartite windows are composed of two narrow nine-over-one wood sash windows flanking a wider central nine-over-one wood sash window. A central doghouse dormer above is lighted with six six-pane casement windows and is decorated at the eaves with exposed rafters.

The eastern elevation features a pair door entry beneath the wrap-around porch to the south and a slightly projecting, shed roof central bay. The pediment of the gable end above is half-timbered and stuccoed, and lighted with a central pair of nine-over-one wood sash windows. Below, a group of three nine-over-one wood sash windows lights the projecting bay and two more separate nine-over-one wood sash windows finish the wall to the north. The first story of the western elevation is lighted with a single nine-over-one wood sash window beneath the carport and a pair of identical windows placed in the center. A hipped roof projecting bay projects from the northern end of the wall and is lighted with a single nine-over-one wood sash window in its southern wall, and a pair of the identical sash in the western wall. Another pair of the same sash windows lights the half-timbered and stuccoed wall at the end of the elevation and the center of the gable peak above.

The northern elevation is composed around a central entrance and displays a brick wall to the east and a half-timbered and stuccoed wall to the west. The wall is fenestrated with nine-pane casement windows and nine-over-one wood sash windows. A doghouse dormer with five six-pane casement windows finishes the elevation.

The Greene Booth House is virtually unaltered and in good condition.

Significance

Criterion C, local significance

The Greene Booth House (Part E, Historic Context #4) is the best example in this neighborhood of Searcy of a one-and-one-half story, structural brick wall Craftsman residence. Its use of varied cornice lines, an assortment of multi-pane wood windows, low and broad porches, and mixed media for the exterior sheathing is typical of the Craftsman style and is organized within this design to particularly good effect. The voids and shadows beneath the porch and carport give the Greene Booth House an earthbound, organic feeling which is consonant with the Craftsman style architectural ethic.

Yet it is important to note that despite the picturesque effect of the elevations, the floor plan, even in the porch and carport placement, is relatively symmetrical and balanced. Even the central roof dormers are placed directly opposite each other on either side of the ridge. As such the Greene Booth House is typical of the second phase in the evolution of the Craftsman house designs in White County, in which the wings and appendages are placed more symmetrically around the house block, despite the continuing tendency for the elevations to exhibit an asymmetrical, picturesque aspect.
