DESCRIBE THE P	RESENT AND OR	IGINAL (if kn	own) PHYSICA	L APPEA	RANCE

Westover mansion may well be the most famous Georgian house in America. It is noted both for the quality of its workmanship and for its architectural completeness. The mansion proper consists of a two-story central section on a high basement with two attached wings; the eastern wing is a replacement of the original, destroyed during the Civil War.

Several dependencies stand nearby, including the original kitchen, which may predate the main house. A brick privy, brick fence, and an iron gate leading to what once were the slave quarters also date to the seventeenth century. A brick house, barn, and silo lie northeast of the main building. They are contemporary structures, but are shielded from view by a tall hedge standing between them and the mansion.

The mansion itself features formal doorways in Portland stone on both main facades; a steeply pitched hip roof, rising to a sharp ridge rather than a deck; an off-center main hall, utilizing one of the regularly spaced facade windows as a light source; and a finely detailed interior with full-length paneling and enriched plaster ceilings. Exterior features include three original wrought iron gates of great intricacy; an under-ground tunnel from the house to the river bank; the site of the first Westover church, where William Byrd I and his wife are buried; the remains of an old ice house; and formal gardens, at the center of which is William Byrd II's grave.

The mansion group was restored about 1920 and came into possession of the present family shortly thereafter. The grounds are open to the public, but the interior of the main house is not.

Boundaries:

The historic extent of the Westover property is described by the description found in "Evidences Relating to Westover:

The Patent to Capt. Thomas Pawlett January the 15th 1637 by Sir John Harvey:" >>

"Now know ye that I the said Harvey Knight do with the Consent of the Council of State accordingly give and Grant unto Captain Thomas Pawlett Two Thousand Acres of Land Situate, Lying, and being in the Country of Charles City bounding to the River South, Northwest to the Main [?], Eastward to the Land of Capt Perry, West upon Berkeley Hundred Land extending by the Rivers Side from Herring Creek to a Gut of Land dividing said Land from the land of Barkley Hundred."

(Westover Title Book, John H. Guy, ed., Richmond 1921)

In 1666 Captain Pawlett transferred this same property to a Theodorick Bland and on February 4 of the same year Bland sold it, still intact, to William Byrd I. The landmark boundaries include all this land still belonging to the Westover estate.

The present Westover estate is entirely within the original boundaries, and about one half its size. As shown by the yellow line on the accompanying U.S.G.S. topographic map, entitled "Westover" and dated 1965: Beginning on Route 633, at a point approximately 3300 feet east of the junction of Routes 633 and 5, proceed northeast about 3000 feet to the center Herring Creek, then east and south about 14,000 feet along Herring Creek to the eastern tip of Ducking Stool Point. Proceed west along the James River northern shoreline about 9000 feet, then north about 4000 feet to Route 633. Proceed northwest along Route 633 about 2000 feet to the point of beginning.
