

A black and white photograph of a four-story brick building. The ground floor is a dark, modern-looking structure with large windows and a central entrance. A prominent sign above the ground floor reads "FORT WAYNE PLASMA DONOR CENTER" in white, bold, sans-serif capital letters. The upper three floors are made of brick and feature multiple rows of windows. Each row of windows is separated by a decorative horizontal band with a repeating pattern. The building is situated on a city street, with other buildings visible on either side. A street sign is visible on a pole in the foreground.

A black and white photograph of a brick building with a window. The window has four panes, with the bottom two panes covered in a chain-link fence. A sign on the wall to the right of the window reads "POSITIVELY NO SMOKING IN ANY PART OF THIS BLD" and "M.W. CO." The brickwork is weathered and shows signs of age. The window frame is dark, and the overall scene is somewhat dimly lit, suggesting an industrial or institutional setting.
