DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The exact location of the original survey conducted as the first rectangular survey in America is not known. However, because of the construction of the present dam in East Liverpool this general tract is covered with water. The Beginning Point of the First Public Land Survey is therefore represented by the location of a granite marker with a six foot square area located on State Route 39, 2 miles east of East Liverpool, Ohio. An inscription on this marker gives testimony to the abstract nature of the landmark, it reads, "1,112 feet south of this spot was the point of beginning for surveying the Public Lands of the United States."

The East Liverpool Historical Society maintains the property in very good condition.

Boundary Information and Justification

The original survey of the Beginning Point was located in both Pennsylvania and Ohio. That portion of the landmark in Ohio is located in Columbiana County while the Pennsylvania section is in Beaver County. The County records describe the boundaries as follows:

Situated in the State of Ohio, County of Columbiana and City of East Liverpool and being a part of Section 36, Liverpool Township 6, Range 1 and being more fully described by beginning at the intersection of the north line of the C. & P. R.R. Company right-of- way with the east line of said section and running thence with said line North a distance of 44.0 feet to grantor's north line; thence with said line in a southwesterly direction, parallel with the north line of the C.& P. R.R. Company right-of-way, a distance of 8.0 feet to a point; thence South a distance of 44.0 feet to the north line of the C.& P. R.R. Company right-of-way; thence with said line in abnortheasterly direction a distance of 8.0 feet to the place of beginning, containing in area 0.008 Acres, more or less, but subject to all legal highways.

That part of the landmark located in Pennsylvania is described as:

Beginning at a point on the State Line between the States of Ohio and Pennsylvania, said point also being located on the north boundary of the right-of-way line of the Pennsylvania Railroad (formerly The Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad Company); thence N. 65° 06' 50" E. one hundred (100) feet along said rightof-way to a point; thence N. 0° 14' 10" W. parallel to the Ohio-Pennsylvania State Line to the southerly right-of-way line of Pennsylvania State Road No. 68 (Beaver County Route 243, Section 7) as established by Deed of Release and Quitclaim from this Grantor to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania dated October 15, 1958; thence S. 65° 06' 50" W. along southerly right-of-way

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

As the place where the rectangular land survey system for the survey of public lands was inaugurated in 1785, the Beginning Point, First Land Survey is of great historical importance. Accurate and convenient, the system has been utilized since that time in surveying the millions of acres of land making up the 31 states created out of the public domain.

It is tied inextricably to the advance of the frontier and opening of the vast expanses of public land to settlement. Its indelible imprint on the American landscape is noticeable in the angular fields and section line market roads. As the first mathematically designed system and nationally conducted cadastrial survey system in any modern country, it is an object of study by public officials of foreign countries as a basis for land reform.

History

The use of the rectangular survey system resulted from the Ordinance "for ascertaining the mode of disposing of lands in the western territory," enacted on May 20, 1785. The Ordinance provided that all public lands were to be divided into townships six miles square and that they were to be laid out both east and west and north and south of base lines (based on meridians of longitude and parallels of latitude) crossing one another at right angles. It also stipulated that each township was to be subdivided into 36 square mile sections, and that these, in turn, might be subdivided into minor rectangles of any desired size.

The Ordinance was exactly three months old on the day that the Beginning Point of the public land survey was established. Boundary commissioners representing Virginia and Pennsylvania, having set forth from the southwest corner of Pennsylvania in early June 1785, surveyed a line due north to the Ohio River, where they arrived on August 20. Junction with the south bank of the Ohio completed the marking of the boundary between Virginia and Pennsylvania; but the commissioners sent a field crew across the river to "set a stake on the flat North Side of the River." It was at this point that the public land survey was to begin.

8. Significance: (1) Beginning Point of the First Public Land Survey

The Ordinance specified that the Geographer to the United States, Thomas Hutchins, would personally supervise the running of the first east-west base line; and on September 30, 1785, Hutchins began the Survey. As its beginning point he used the stake set by the Virginia-Pennsylvania boundary commissioners.

Hutchins proceeded westward until October 8 when, having surveyed less than four miles of the line, he suspended operations because of the threat of Indian hostility. Surveying began again on August 9, 1786. When Hutchins reached a point on the base line six miles from the Pennsylvania boundary, he directed a subordinate to survey a line south to the Ohio River so as to complete the boundaries of the first township. At the four following six mile intervals, he directed subordinates to survey lines from the base line south to the Ohio, thus establishing six-mile strips of territory, which are termed ranges. He also instructed these men to survey east-west lines at six-mile intervals from the base line, thus setting the boundaries of the six-mile square townships within the ranges. When the survey was abandoned on September 18, 1786, the base line (which is now termed the Geographers Line) had been surveyed for about 45 miles, and the survey of the four ranges had been completed and that of the fifth had begun.

Hutchins' subordinates resumed the survey in early April, 1787, and completed surveying the first seven ranges in early July. Hutchins prepared a general plan covering all of the Seven Ranges; and on July 26, 1788, he submitted the plan and the concluding notes and plats to the Board of Treasury. Thus the first phase of U.S. public land surveying came to an end.
