

APR 3 1989

United States Department of the Interior
National Park Service

National Register of Historic Places
Continuation Sheet

Section number 8 Page 37

1. Name

Fitch Hall

2. Location

street & number: New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology city, town: Socorro state: New Mexico code: NM county: Socorro code: 053

3. Classification

Category: Building
Ownership: Public
Status: Occupied
Present Use: Dormitory

4. Owner of Property

name: Regents of the New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology
street & number: New Mexico Institute of Mining and technology
city, town: Socorro state: New Mexico

5. Location of legal Description courthouse, etc.: Socorro County Courthouse street & number: 200 Church Street

city, town: Socorro state: New Mexico

6. Representation in Existing Surveys

Not Applicable

7. Description

Condition: Fair

Description: Fitch Hall is a two-story, symmetrical building with a basement floor that is partially above ground. The building is constructed of stuccoed masonry in the California Mission Revival Style, and is basically rectangular with a one-story entry porch projecting from the center of the main facade. The low-pitched, side-gable roof has bracketed overhangs and is covered with mission tile. There are curvilinear gables at the sides of the building which are echoed by a similar gable over the front entry and behind the one-story porch. Windows are 8/8, double-hung with aluminum storms. The entry porch has a flat roof and arched openings. Fitch Hall was designed by the architectural firm of Brittelle and Ginner and built in 1937 as a dormitory. The building is used as a dormitory at present. It has had no additions and no other significant alterations.