COPYRIGHT AND RESTRICTIONS

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted materials. The various state privacy acts govern the use of materials that document private individuals, groups, and corporations.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a reproduction if the document does not infringe the privacy rights of an individual, group, or corporation. These specified conditions of authorized use include:

- non-commercial and non-profit study, scholarship, or research, or teaching
- criticism, commentary, or news reporting
- as a NPS preservation or security copy
- as a research copy for deposit in another institution

If a user later uses a copy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," the user may be personally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement. This institution's permission to obtain a photographic, xerographic, digital, or other copy of a document doesn't indicate permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, sell, distribute, or prepare derivative works from this document without first obtaining permission from the copyright holder and from any private individual, group, or corporation shown or otherwise recorded.

Permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, prepare derivative works from, sell, or otherwise distribute the item must be obtained by the user separately in writing from the holder of the original copyright (or if the creator is dead from his/her heirs) as well as from any individual(s), groups, or corporations whose name, image, recorded words, or private information (e.g., employment information) may be reproduced in the source material. The holder of the original copyright isn't necessarily the National Park Service. The National Park Service is not legally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement when materials are wrongfully used after being provided to researchers for "fair use."

This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copying order if fulfillment of the order is judged in violation of copyright or federal or state privacy or publicity law.

HISTORY

Enabling legislation for North Cascades National Park Service Complex was passed in 1968 and resulted in the creation of North Cascades National Park, Ross Lake National Recreation Area, and Lake Chelan National Recreation Area. Lands designated to become these national park units had previously been managed by the United States Forest Service. Assumption of management duties for these lands by the National Park Service documented by a series of property transfer records from the USFS, which became the initial core of the park complex's maintenance records. Further records were compiled by the Maintenance Division through construction and repairs to facilities and infrastructure; they also include documentation of natural events such as flood and wildland fire, hazardous material management, and other routine safety functions such as flight following. The division is divided into two districts on either side of the mountains, the Skagit District and the Stehekin District. The property management records (Series I) include materials from both districts, as do the Chief of Maintenance's files (Series II). As North Cascades National Park is designated as a wilderness park, the Maintenance Division records also include some records pertaining to the park's compliance with the 1964 Wilderness Act, specifically the Chief of Maintenance's participation in efforts to develop a Wilderness Management Plan.
