STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (Include Personages, Dates, Ewonts, Etc.)

Constructed in 1803-04 by General William Floyd, a Signer of the Declaration of Independence for New York, this house served as Floyd's home from 1803 until his death in 1821. The structure is little-altered and in excellent condition.

History

William Floyd, son of a wealthy Long Island landowner, was born, raised and resided on an estate at Mastic, New York, from 1734 to 1803. In 1803 he gave his Long Island farm to his son Nicoll and at the age of 69, accompanied by his second wife and young children, moved into western New York State to take up a pioneering life. In 1784 he had begun purchasing a tract of wild land in this area, near Rome. In 1787 he was given a tract of 10,240 acres in this area by the State of New York, provided that he, within a period of seven years from 1 January 1788, would make "one actual Settlement on said Tract of Land.... for every six hundred and forty acres thereof." He began work on this project at Western, now Westernville, soon after receiving the grant and continued work there each summer until 1803, when he settled upon his estate. He spent the remainder of his life clearing and subduing this wilderness land, enjoying uninterrupted good health until a short time before his death on August 4, 1821. During this period he acted as a presidential elector in 1804 and 1820 and also one term as state senator in 1808. He is buried in the Presbyterian Cemetery in Westernville.

His house remained in the possession of the Floyd descendents until 1956 and the structure was acquired by the present owners in 1965.
