View from the northwest

A black and white photograph of the Daily News Building facade. At the top, the words "THE NEWS" are displayed in large, bold, block letters. Below this is a large, intricate relief sculpture. The sculpture is divided into several vertical panels. The central panel features a sunburst at the top, followed by a figure holding a torch, and a group of people below. The left and right panels show various scenes, including buildings and figures. At the bottom of the relief, a banner reads "THE ALMA MATER OF THE". The building has a grid-like structure with windows visible at the top. A "NO LEFT TURN" sign is visible on the right side of the image.
