STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Brief History

That part of the land on the Chipman estate where the present Ripton Community House now stands was deeded by Silvester Fisher in 1864 to the Congregational Society with the proviso that a house of worship costing not less than $2000 must be erected within two years. The church was built and maintained by the Congregational Society until 1920 when it was deeded to the Troy Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church to be used for 'religious, social and educational purposes.' This restriction was removed in 1928. About this time the land and building was deeded to the Ripton Community Club which made renovations and used the facilities for club meetings, social events, community dinners, square dancing for the young people, etc., until 1964 when the club was dissolved. At this time, the property was turned over to the town and has since been used for town meetings, community gatherings and suppers, Christmas entertainments for the school children, wedding receptions, etc., until condemned for such use in 1973.

It is hoped that through town funds matched with federal assistance, the exterior of the structure can be stabilized.

Significance

The Ripton Community House is the architectural necleus of a typical Mermont mountain village. It is an excellent example of "Greek Revival Survival", and symbolizes the changes in the religious and social structure of the community over the period of a century. The building will soon be undergoing exterior stabilization and interior modernization in order to continue its service to the community.
