The house retains many original features characteristic of the late 18th century. The roof has been rebuilt after several fires, and probably overhung several feet (rather than the existing one foot). Dormers have been added during the 20th century. There are new floors (over the old) and a modern window sash. A breezeway and a garage have been built to the rear.

Park Ridge, New Jersey-New York

This house was built about the time of the Revolution, possibly shortly after, by a Holdrum; the date 1778 is said to be cut in an attic beam. William Holdrum was a blacksmith; he emigrated and settled at Flushing and later at Harlem, and was drowned on or about Dec. 6, 1687. His son John married May 18, 1707 Cornelia Van Tienhoven, widow of Andries Holst and granddaughter of Cornelis Van Tienhoven, the Secretary of New Netherland. They removed to Tappan about 1713. Their son William Holdrum, bap. May 16, 1708 at New York City, married 1734 Margrietje Peters, daughter of Claes Peters of Rockland Co., on Dec. 18, 1760. William bought 258 acres west of the Hackensack River and south of the State line, from Rev. Benjamin Vanderlinde, and resided here the balance of his life. William had nine children including Claes, William, Jan, Abraham and Cornelius. It is not known who built this house, but it may have been Cornelius, as he is known to have lived in this vicinity. Cornelius Holdrum, b. Oct. 22, 1749 at Tappan, d. May 31, 1831, married Elizabeth Haring, and had three children: James C. born 1785, William C., and Cornelius C. The house was eventually inherited by Catherine Holdrum, b. Dec. 2, 1827, d. Oct. 8, 1866, married May 14, 1846 (as his first wife) John Wanasaker, b. April 4, 1827, d. March 30, 1904; they had two daughters Elizabeth and Sarah. (John Wanasaker's daughter by his second wife believes Catherine's father to have been a Cornelius Holdrum.) About 1850 John and Catherine Wanasaker exchanged houses with James Van Houten. His son Garret had a son Edmund Van Houten, who sold the house about 1925...
