DESCRIPTION	0
	1 brewery in Davenport before the Civil War. By 1860 it employed six hands and had an etwice was changed to "littic Br	n annual output valued at $16,800. By 1870, the firm others" and a new plant had been erected. The brewery also operated as "Eagle	Brewery" during this period.
	y Klindt - both German immigrants - bought out Littig and operated the brewery. Operated	ating from this W. 5th Street Location, the brewery was alternately known as "Menge.	ating from this W. 5th Street Location, the brewery, 1 & Klindt," "Eagle Brewery," "J. Lage & Co.," and
"Lage, Mengel & Klindt," before	the turn of the century.
	ere consolidated as the "Davenport Malting Co." Klindt and Mengel were instrumental in	the formation of this company. Mengel became its first vice-president and Klindt	's son, George, became its first secretary-treasurer.
	the member breweries were continued at first with the various sites. Eventually all operations were n in the southwest industrial district.
	Company was divided into two firms - "Davenport y Co.". The brewing company continued until state production of 75,000 barrels per year made it the second largest brewing operation
