Description: The Crawford House is an eclectic example of Victorian architecture which contains elements of the Queen Anne style. The main facade has the gable end facing the street and three intersecting bays extend to the south in a stepped pattern. An interesting feature of the main facade is the one-story porch which displays brick piers and hollow core concrete blocks. Beneath the eave of the porch are frame spindles and horizontal pendants. Windows on the structure are both two-over-two and one-over-one sash with stone ashlar lintels and rusticated stone sills. The roof has pressed metal shingles and beneath the eaves are brackets. The house has a two-story attached porte-cochere with an open drive thru resting on brick piers. In the second story windows are twelve-over-one and diamond shaped windows. All original fixtures and woodwork of the house are intact on the interior.

Significance: The Crawford House was built ca. 1890 by M.T. Crawford who was a prominent businessman at the turn of the century. The house is an interesting example of the Queen Anne style and has a varied asymmetrical appearance. It displays an original porte-cochere and unusual frame porch on the main facade. The house also has many additions and is one of the largest Victorian homes in the county.
