

Watson. Eighth day.

My dear Brother Richard,

The wind

has safely at a $\frac{1}{4}$ of 8 this afternoon remained, at Uncle Thomas's until after 5 o'clock when Father came for us. Oh! how lovely it seems without Mother, just leaving so lovely a place. But I shall become used to it before long do not feel badly dear Mother we will soon feel more cheerful. Willie is going to school with sister Sarah but I do ~~not~~ think I shall for some time until we get along better. Tell Cousin Lizzie I think likely I shall write to her next week. dear little Georgie here he goes. Mother and Father and all of the family feel very badly I can't help crying all the time, but I am going to keep up my spirits as well as possible. Mother sends a great deal of love and says she is glad that is improving so fast.

She had quite a time coming home but a very interesting company when we reached Genoa two men got on laughing and giggling at something. They gave the Conductor an old fourth of July Ticket the Conductor rang the bell and stopped the cars to put them out. but he concluded to let ride to Auburn where they got off they were very sorry but enough of this. It was raining quite hard. When we reached home but I believe it has turned to snow perhaps we shall have slighing. I can not imagine who has got my heart. I can tell you I shall think over my visit a great many times in my life are you all as well as usual. They seem to think our party was rather small is it not too bad we did not invite more I did not bid any of the boarders good-bye left that for them and Cousin Lizzie to do. I left my seissors in Syracuse I hope they have not followed the heart they will please bring them when they come home. I delivered thy letters have not had time to read them yet.

I send thee but one post stamp as that is all we have will send thee more next time would you writing bad spelling and all mistakes and do not look at the way in which it is expell'd with very much love to all, and from one and all thy ever affectionate sister writes very soon. Many,

Dear Brother Richard
Many & Cousin Sarah arrived (as she told thee) this afternoon and the rain and appear very much pleased with their visit also with the Boarders especially Mrs Telt and Adams, They seem to think O W Holmes's lecture exceeded that of Taylor, We have very muddy streets indeed now, but Mary tells me they are not so bad as yours in Syracuse, Georgie Fay's baby has not been recovered yet I believe how terrible it is they cannot find him, he has been in the water over a week, Please excuse this blot & poor writing, I must close Goodbye, thy aff. sister Sarah
